The order how the rest of the holy Scripture (besyde the psalter) is appoynted to be redde.

The olde
Hemmet

The olde Testamente is appoynted for the fyrste Lessons, at Matins and Vespynge, and is redde throughe euery yere once, excepte certayne booke and chapiters, whiche be least caryng might best be spared, and therefore are lefte out.

The new Testament

The newe Testamente is appoynted for the seconde Lessons, at Matins and Eumfonge, and to be red ouer ordzely euery yere thyrse, besyde the Epistles and Gospeiles: excepte the Apocalyps, oute of whiche there be onely certayne Lessons appoynted vpon dyuers proper feastes.

Letons.

¶ And to knowe what Lessons shall be reced euery daye: fynde the daye of the Moneth in the Ital-dar folowynge: and there ye shall perceyue the bookes and Chapiters, that shall be red for the Lessons, boat Martins and Euenfonge.

Proper Calms.

¶ And here is to be noted, that whensoever there be any proper psalmes or Lessons, appoynted for any feaste, moueable or immoueable: then the psalmes and Lessons appoynted in the Kalender, shall be omitted for that tyme.

The Hope

¶ Ye muste note also that the Collect, Epistle, and Gospel, appoynted for the Sundaye, shall be all the weeke after, excepte there fall some feast that hath his propre.

This is also to be noted, concerninge the leape yeares, that the .xxv. daye of February, which leape yeares is counted for two dayes, shall in those two dayes, alter neyther Iscaine nor Lesson: but same Iscaines and Lessons, whiche be sayed at the fyrste daye, shall tcrue also for the seconde daye.

Also, in heretofore the begynnynge of any Lesson, Epistle, or Gospel is not expressed, thereby begynnynge at the begynnynge of the Chapter.

An exhortacion to ## An exhortaci-

on to the study of the holy Scripture, gathered out of the Byble.

Chryste vnto the people.

John. v.

Search the Scriptures: For they are they that testifie of me.

Paule to Timothy.

ii. Tymo. iii.

All Scripture geuen by inspiration of God, is profitable to teache, to imroue, to amende and to instruct in righteousnes, that the man of God may be perfect and prepared to al good worbes.

The same to the.

Roma. xv.

What thynges soeuer are wyrtten, are written for our learning: that we throu patience and comforth of the scripture, myght haue hope.

Salomon. Prover. xxx.

All the wordes of God are pure and cleane, it is a spyde vnto them that put their trust in it. But nothing vnto hys wordes, lest he reprove the and thou be founde a lyar.

Moses to the people.

Deut. xii.

Ye shal not do euery man what seemeth hym good in hys owne eyes: But whatsoeuer I co-maunde you, that take hede ye do: and put nought therto, nor take ought there from.

The Lord vnto Iosua.

Iosue. i.

Let not the booke of this lawe depart out of thy mouth: But recorde therein daye & night, that thou mayest be circumspect to do according to all that is wyrtten therein. For then shalt thou make thy waye prosperous, and thou shalt haue vnderstandyng. Turne from them neyther to the right hand nor to the lefte, that thou mayest haue vnderstandyng in all that thou takest in hande.

The same to the people.

Erod. xiii.

And thou shalt shew thy sonne at that tyme, sayinge: This is done because of that whiche the Lord did vnto me when I came out of Egypt. Therefore it shalbe a signe vnto the vpon thyne hande, and a remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, that the Lordes lawe maye be in thy mouth. For with a strong hande the Lord brought the out of Egypt.

Moses. Deutero. xxxi.

Se that thou reade this lawe before al Israel in their cares. Gather y people to gether, both men, women, and chyldren, and the straungers that are in thy cytyes, that they maye, heare, learne, and feare the Lord poure God, to kepe all the wordes of thys lawe.

The summe and content of the holy scripture, both of the olde and newe testament.

He the holy writtings of the Bible teach vs, that there is one god, almighty, that hath nether beginning nor ending: which of his owne goodnes did create all thynges: of whō al thynges procede, & about whom there is nother: which is righteous & mercifull, and which worketh al thynges in all after his wyl:
of whom it maye not be demaunded, wherefore he doth this or that.

Then that this verye God did create Adam the first mā after his owne image & similitude, & did ordeine & appoint him lord of al y creatures in the erth. Whiche Adā bi the enuy of the deuil, disobeying the comaundmēt of his maker, dyd firste synne, and brought synne into this world, such and so greate, that we whiche be spronge of hym after the fleibe, are subdued vnto sinne, death, and dampnation, brought vnder the yoke & tyranny of the deuil.

And further y Christ Iesus his sonne was promised of god y father, to be a sauour to this Adam, Abraham, Isaac, Dauid & the other fathers: which should deliuer the from their sin-nes & tyranny of the deuil, that w a quick & liuyng sayth would beleue this promise, & trust to this Iesus Christ, hoppyng to haue this deli-uerance of & by hym. And truly this promise, is very oft rehearsed in the booke of the old te-stamēt, yea, & the old testamēt, is this promise: as it is called the new, which teacheth that this promise is fulfilled.

And that in the meane season whyle the fathers looked for saluacyon and deliuerance promised, because mannes nature is suche that he not only can not, but also will not confesse himself to be a sinner, & specially such a sinner that hath nede of y sauing health promised, the law was geue, wher throughe me might know sin, & that they are sinners: whē they se y they doo none of y thynges y the lawe comaundeth, w so glad & willing a mind as god requirerth; but rather agayst their willes, wout affectiō, & as tho ughe they were constrained w the feare of y hell whiche y law threteneth, sayng: Cursed be he y mainteneth not al y wordes of this law to kepe the. And y this law was geue, to thintēt y sinne and y malice of māes hert being thereby y better knowē, men should y more feruently thintēt y coming of Christe, whiche should redeme them fro their sinnes: As it was figured vnto y Jewes bi mani ceremonies, hostes, & sacrifices: whiche were ordeined of god, not to thintēt to take away sinnes, but to shew & declare y they shoulde be put away bi faith in the saluation promised thorow Christ: & whiche now are put away by y coming of that Christ, whiche is the very host of the father that taketh away all synne.

Last of all by y booke of y new testamēt, we are taught, y Christ whiche was promised & shadowed in y olde testamēt, is sent of y father, at such time as he had determined w him selfe, at such time (I say) as al wickednes florished.
And y he was sent not for any mans good wor-kes (for they all were sinners) but to the intent that he would truly shew the abundant riches of hys grace, whiche he had promised.

the holy scripture

In the newe Testament therefore it is most evidently declared, that Iesus Christ the true lambe and hoste, is come to thintent to reconcile vs to the father, paying on the crosse the punishment due vnto our sinnes: and to deliuer vs from the bondage of the deuell (vnto whome we serued through sinne) and to make vs the sonnes of God, sith he hath geuen vs the true peace and tranquillite of conscience, that we no longer do feare the paynes of hel: which feare is put away by the fayth, confidence and assurance, that the father geueth vs drawing vs vnto his sonne. For that faith is the gift of God, wherby we beleue that Christ is come into this worlde to saue sinners: whiche is of so greate pyth that they which haue it, desire to performe all the duties of loue to all men, after the example of Christ. For fayth ones receyued God geueth his holy gost, wherby he tokeneth and marketh all that beleue: whiche is the pledge and earnest that we shall surely possesse euerlasting life, and that geueth witness vnto oure sperte, and grafieth this fayth in vs, that we be the sonnes of God: pouyrng there with the loue into our hertes which Paul describeth and setteth out to * the Corinthians. By that fayth and confidence in Christ which by loue is mighty in operation, and that sheweth it selfe thorow the workes of loue, stirring men thereto, by that (I say) we are iustified: that is by that faith, Christes father (which is become oures also thorow that Christe our brother) countereth vs for righteous and for his sonnes: imputing not our sinnes vnto vs, thorow hys grace.

To conclude, he came to thintent that we beinge clesed from our sinnes, and sanctified vnto God the father: that is, halowed vnto the vse of the father to exercise good workes renynge & forsaking the workes of the fleshe, should frely serue hym in righteousness and holines all our life long: thorow good workes which God hath ordeyned to thintent that we shold walke in them, declaring our selves thereby to be surely called vnto this grace: whiche workes whosoeuer hath not, declareth that he hath not fayth in Christ.

Vnto whom we must come, and folow him with a chearful hert, that he may instructe and teach vs: for he is our master, meke and humble of hert: he is our exemple of whom we muste learne the rule of good liuing: further, he is our prest, hye bishop, and onli mediator: which now sitteth on the right hande of God the father, is our aduocate, and prayeth euer for vs: whiche wil vndouted obtayn whatsoeuer we desyre, ether of him, or of his father in his name: if we beleue that he wil do it when we requier it: for so hath he promised. Let vs therefore not doute, (although we somtyme sinne) with a confidence to come vnto him, and with a liuyng and vndouting fayth, that we shall obtayn mercy. For therefore came he to thintent to saue sinners: neither requiereth he any thing more of vs, then to come vnto him without feare.

Thys is the same IESUS Christe whiche after he hath kylled the manne of synne with the breache of hys mouth, shall sit in his maiestie and iudge all men, geuing vnto euery one the workes of his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad: And that he shall saue vnto theym that shall be on hys ryghte hande. Come ye blessed chyl dren of my father, inheret ye the kyngedome prepared for you from the begynnyng of the worlde: And vnto them that shall be on hys left hande, Departe from me ye cursed, into euerlasting fyre: which is prepared for the deuell and hys aungels. The shall the ende come and he shall deliuer up the kyngdome to God the father.

To the intent that we should knowe thys, by the goodnes of God workynge by hys holy sperte, are the holy wyrtynge of the Byble geuen vs: That we should knowe (I saye) and beleue that there is one God, and Iesus Christ whome he hath sent: and that in beleuyng we should haue euerlastyng lyfe thorow his name.

Another foundation then this can no man laye. And saynt Paul despyeth that he be holden a cursed whiche preacheth any other faith and saluacion, then onely by Iesus Christ: yea, although it were an aungel of heauen. For of hym, and thorow him, and for hym, are all thynges: to whome, with the father and the holpe gost, be honour & glorie for for euer more. Amen.

To the christi- an Readers

The grace and peace of God be geue vnto you by Iesus Christe.

As the Bees diligently do gather together swete flowers to make by naturall crafts the swete hony: so haue I done the principall sentences conteyned in the Byble. The which are ordeined after the maner of a table, for the cosolation of those which are not yet exercised & instructed in the holy scripture. In the whiche are many harde places, as well of the olde as of the new Testament expounded, gathered together, concorded, and compared one with another: to thintent that the prudent Reader (by the sperte of God) may heare away pure and cleare vnderstanding. Wherby euery man (as he is bounde) maye be made ready, strong and garnished to aunswere to all them that aske hym a reason of hys fayth. This is also profitable for the particular and general exhortacions whiche we make to certain personages, or common people: & for to aunswere truly to Heretikes, and to confounde the aduersaries of the worde of God. In the which also we may fynde (that whiche helpeth greatly the study of the Readers) the opening of certain hebrew tropes, translations, similitudes, and maners of speakynges (whiche we call Phrases) conteyned in the Byble. And for the more easely to fynde the matters desired (because that disorder, engendryth confusion) I haue proceeded after the order of an Alphabet: to the intent that none be deppryued of so precious a treasure: the whiche ye shall vse to the honour and glorie of God, and to the edifyinge of hys Church.

Howe be it (good Reader) yf thou fynde not the thynges in thys table expressed, in the same letters of the Chapters wherein they are assigned: vouch saue to looke in the letter goyng next before or in the letter nexte folowynge.

Houghe a manne hadde a preciouſſe Jewell and a riche, yet if he wyl not the value therof, nor wherefore it serued, he were neyther the better, nor richer of a straw. Esuen so thoughe we reade the Scripture, and bable of it neuer so much, yet if we knowe not the vse of it, and wherefore it was geuen, and what is therein to be soughte, it profiteth to vs nothyng at all. It is not inoughe therfore to reade and talke of it onely, but we muste also desyre God dape and nyght instantly to open our eyes, & to make vs vnderstande and feele wherfore the Scripture was geuen, that we maye apolye the medicine of the scripture, euery man to hys owne soze, onlesse we entende to be idle disputers, and brawlers about vaine wordes euer gnawynge vpon the bitter bark wthoute, and neuer attaynyng vnto the swete ppythe within: and persecutynge one another, for defendynge of lewde maginations and phantasies of our owne inuencions.

Paule in the thetyde of the second Epistle to Timothe sayeth: that the Scripture is good to teache (for that ought me to teache and not dreames of theyr owne makinge, as the Pope doth) and also to improue, for the Scripture is the tutchest stoon that tryeth all doctrines, and by that we knowe the falsse from the true.
And in the xxi. to the Ephesiā he calleth it the sword of the spirite, because it killeth hypocrites, and bit-teth and improueth theyr falsse inuencions. And in the xv. to the Romanes he sayth, al that are wyrtten, are wyrtten for our learnynge, that we thowme patience and confozte of the Scripture myght haue hope. That is, the examples that are in the Scripture, confozte vs in all oure tribulations, and make vs to put our truste in God, and patientlye to abyde hys leasoure. And in the. x. of the. i. to the Corin. he byngeth in examples of the Scripture to feare vs, and to bypde the fleshe, that we caste not the yocke of the lawe of God from oure neckes, and fall to lustynge and doyng of euill.

So now the Scripture is a lyght, and sheweth vs the true way, both what to do, and what to hope. And a defence from all erreure, and a confozte in aduersitie that we despayre not, & feareth vs in prosperitie that we synne not. Marke therfore in the Scripture (as thou reade it) firste the lawe, what God commaundeth vs to do. And secundarilye the promyses, whiche God promyseth vs agayne, namelye in Christ Iesus our Lorde. Then seke examples, firste of confozte how God purgeth al them that submit them selues to wal-ke in hys wayes, in the purgatorye of tribulation, deliuerynge them yet at the latter ende, & neuer fearynge anye of them to perishe, that cleaue fast to hys promyses. And finally, note the examples which are wyrtten to feare the fleshe that we synne not. That is, howe God suffereth the vngodlye and wycked synners that resyste God, and refuse to folowe hym, to continue in theyr wyckednes, euer wayenge worse and worse vntill theyr synne be so sore encreased, and so abhominable, that if they shoulde longer endure, they woulde corrupte the very electe. But for the electes sake, God sendeth the preachers.ouerthels they harden theyr heries agaynst the trueth, and God destroyeth them vnterlye, and begynneth the worlde a newe.

Thys confozte make thou euermore synde in the playne terte and lreterall sence. Forther is there anye stoppe so homelye, so rude: yea, or so byle (as it semeth outwarde) wherin is not exceedynge greates confozte.
And when some (whiche seme to them selues greates clarkes) saye, they wotte not what moze profyte is in manye verses of the Scripture, if they be reade wthout an allegorye, then in a tale of Robyn Hoodes, saye thou

A Prologue.

thou: that they were wyrtten for oure consolation, and comfort, that we despayre not, if such lyke happen vnto vs. We be not holier then Noe, though he were once dyonke. Neither better beloued the Jacob, though heys owne sonne defiled hys bedde. We be not holier then Lot, though heys daughters throughe ignorance deceyued hym, nor peraduenture holier the those daughters. Neither are we holier then Dauid, though he brake wedlocke, and vpon the same committed abhominable murther. All those men haue wyrtesse of the Scripture that they pleased God, and were good men both before that those thynges chaunced them, and also after. Wherefore such thynges happened the for oure example: not that we shoulde counterfayte their euill, but if whyle we fight with oure selues, enforce to walke in the lawe of God (as they dyd) wee yet fall lyke wyse, that wee despayre not, but come as gayne to the lawes of God, and take better holde.

We reade sence the tyme of Christes deathe, of virgyns that haue bene brought vnto the comune stowes and there defiled, and of martyrs that haue bene bound and hoies haue abused thei bodies. Wherby the iudgements of God are bottomles. Suche thynges chaunced partely for examples, partely God thowow synne healeth synne. Hyde can neither be healed, nor yet appeare but thowowe suche horrible dedes. Peraduenture they were of the Popes sect, and reioysed fleshy, thynging that heauen came by dedes, & not by Christ, and that the outwarde dede iustified them, and made them holier, and not the inward spirite receyued by fayeth, and the consente of the hearte vnto the lawe of God.

As thou readeest therfore, thynke that euery syllable pertaineth to thine owne selfe, and suche ouer the pythe of the scripture, and arme thy selfe agaynst all assautes. First note the stronge faith the power of God in creatyng all of nought. Then marke the greuous fall of Adam, and of vs all in hym, thowowe the light regardynge of the commaundemente of God. In the fourth Chapter of Genesis. God turneth him vnto Abell, and then to hys offerynge, but not to Cayne and hys offerynge. Wher thou seest that though the dedes of the euill appeare outwardely as gloriouse as the dedes of the good: yet in the syghte of God whyche lokeith on the herte, the dede is good bycause of the man, and not the man good bycause of hys dede. In the syxt God sendeth Noe to preach to the wycked, and geueith thym space to repente, they warte harde herted, God byngeth them to nought. And yet saueth Noe: eue by the same water by whyche he destroyed them. Marke also what folowed the hyde of the buyldynge of the tower of Babel.

Consider howe God sendeth forth Abraham out of hys owne countrey into a straunge land ful of wycked people, & gaue hym but a bare promise with hym that he woulde blesse hym, and defende hym. Abraham beloued: and that worde saued and deliuered hym in all perels, so that we se, how that mans lyfe is not mapntened by breade onely (as Christ sayeth) but much rather by beleynge the promises of God. Behold howe soberlye and howe circumspectlye both Abraham and also Isaac behaue them selues amonge the infidels. Abraham dyeth that whyche myghte haue bene geuen hym for nought, to cutte of occasions. Isaac when hys welles whyche he had dygged, were taken from hym, geueith roume, and respyeth not. Noe ouer they eyre and some, and fede their cattell, and make confederations, and take perpetuall truce, and do all outwarde thynges: Euen as they do whyche haue no fayeth, for God hath not made vs to be idle in theyr wyllde. Euerre man muste worke Godlye and trulye to the bittermoste of the power that God hath geuen hym, and yet not trust therein, but in Goddes word of promise: and God will worke with vs, and bynge that wee do to good effecte. And then when oure power will extende no further, Gods promises will worke all alone.

Howe manye thynges also ressted the promises of God to Jacob? And yet Jacob comurich God with hys owne promises, saynge: O God of my father Abraham: and God of my father Isaac: O Lorde whyche saydest vnto me, retorne into thine owne contrey, and vnto the place where thou was borne, and I will doo the good. I am not worthy of the leaste of those merces, nor of that trouthe whyche thou hast done to thy seruant. I wene oute but with a staffe, and come home with two byoues, deliuer me out of the handes of my brother Esau, for I feare hym greatly. &c. And God deliuered hym, and will lyke wyse all that call vnto hys promises with a repentyng hert, were they neuer so grete synners. Marke also the weake infirmities of the ma. He loueth one wyse more then an other, one sonne more the an other. And se how God purgeth hym. Esau threatened hym: Laban begyleth hym. The beloued wyfe is longe barayne: hys daughter is rauished, hys wyfe is defiled, and that of hys owne sonne. Rabel dyeth, Joseph is taken away, yea, and as he supposed, rente of wyld beasts, & yet howe gloriouse was hys ende. Note the wyckednesse of his chyldren, yea, and the synne of theym, and howe God thowowe their owne wyckednesse saued them.

Ge. xxxiii
Gen. xxxv
Ge. xxxvi

These examples teache vs that a manne is not at once perfecte the firste daye he begynneth to lyue well. They that be stronge therfore, muste suffer with the weake, and helpe to kepe them in vnitie and peace one with an other butyll they be stronger.

Note, what the bethze said whle they were attached & arrested in Egypt, we haue verely synned (sayd they) agaynst oure brother, in that we sawe the angur of hys soule, when he besought vs, and woulde not heare hym, and therfore is thys tribulation come vnto vs, by whyche example thou seest, how that conscience of euyl doyngees synnder men out at the last, but namelye in tribulation & aduersitie. There temptation and also desperation: yea, and the verye paynes of hel find vs out. Ther the soule feleth the scarce wrath of god, and wyth mountaynes to fall on her, and to hyde her if it were possible from the angrie face of God. Marke also howe little an occasion. Dina goeth but forth alone to se the daughters of the countrey, & how greate mischief & trouble folowed? Jacob loued but one sonne more then an other, and how greuous murther folowed in theyr hertes. These are examples for our learnynge to teache vs to walke warelye, and circumspectlye in the face of the wyllde, and weake people, that we geue no man occasion of euill. Finallye, se what God promised Joseph in hys dreames, those promises, accompanied him alwayes, and went downe with him, euen into the deepe dungeon, and broughte hym vp agayne, and neuer forsoke hym, till all that was promised was fulfilled. These are examples wyrtten for our learnynge (as Paule sayeth) to teache vs to truste in God in that stronge tyme of tribulation and purgatorie of oure fleshe. And that they whyche submitte them selues to folowe God shoulde note and marke such thynges, for their learnynge and comfort. It is the fruite of the scripture, and cause why it was wyrtten, and with suche a purpose to reade it, is the waye to euerlastynge lyfe, and to those is tofull blessinges that are promised vnto all nations in the

worlde.

The first boke of Moses called Genesis.

How heauen and earth, the lyght, the firmament, the sunne, the moone, the sterres, and all beastes, foules and fishes in the sea were made by the worde of God. And howe man also was create.

The first Chapter.

In the begyn-nyng* God created heauen and earth. The erth was voyde and empty, and dark-nesse was vpon
the depe, and the spirite of GOD

mooued vpon the water.
Then God sayde: let there be light: and there was lyght. And God sawe the lyght that it was good: and deuoyded the light fro the darkenes, & called the light y day, & the darknes the nyght: & so of the euening and moornyng was made the first day.

And God sayde: let there be a fyrmamente betwene the waters, & let it beide the waters a sonder. Then God made the firmament, & parted the waters which were vnder the firmamēt, from the waters y were aboue the fir-mamēt. And it was so. And God called the firmament heauen. And so of the euening and moornyng was made the seconde daye.

And God sayde: * let y waters that are vnder heauen gather them selues vnto one place, that the drye land may appere. And it came so to passe. And God called the drye land the erth, and the gathering together of waters called he the sea. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: let the erth bringe forth herbe and grasse that sowe seed, and frutefull trees, that beare frute e-uery one in his kynde, hauynge theyr seed in them selues vpon the erth. And it came so to passe. And y erth brought forth herbe and grasse sowyng seed e-uery one in his kynde, and trees bea-ryng frute, and hauynge theyr seed in them selues, euery one in hys kynde.

And God sawe that it was good, and then of the euening and moorning was made the thyrde daye.

Then sayd God: * let there be lyghtes in the firmament of heauen, to de-uyde the day from the nyghte, & they maye be vnto sygnes, seasons, dayes and yeares. And * let them be lyghtes in the firmament of heauen, to gyne vpon y erth: And so it was. And God made * two great lyghtes: A greater lyght to rule the daye, and a lesse light to rule the nyght: and he made sterres also. And God put them in the fyrmament of heauen to gyne vpon the erth, and to rule the day and the nyght: and to deuoyde the lyght fro darkenes. And God saw that it was good: & so of the euening & moorning was made y fourth daye. Children of Light and his Moon Light.

And God said: * let the water bring forth creatures that moue and haue lyfe, & foules for to flye ouer the earth vnder the firmament of heauen. And God created greete whalles and all maner of creatures that lyue & moue, whiche the waters broughte forth in their kyndes, & all maner of fethered foules in their kyndes. And God saw that it was good: & god a blessed them sayinge: Growe and multiplie and fil the waters of the seas: and let the foules multiplie vpo the erth. And so of the euening and moornyng was made the fyfth daye.

And God sayd: let y erth bring forth lyuyng creatures in their kyndes: ca-tell and wormes & beastes of y erth in their kyndes, & so it came to passe. And God made the beastes of the erthe in their kyndes, and catell in their kyndes, & all maner wormes of the erth in their kyndes: and GOD sawe that it was good. Let vs make man: Or

And God sayde: let vs make man in our similitude & after our lykenesse:
that he maye haue rule ouer the fyfthe of y sea, and ouer the foules of y ayre, and ouer catell, and ouer all the erthe, and ouer all wormes that crepe on the erth. And God created man after hys lykenes, after the lykenesse of God created he hym: male and female created he them. And God blessed them, and God sayde vnto them: * Growe & multiplye and fylle the erth, and subdue it, and haue dominyon ouer the fishes of y sea, and ouer the foules of y ayre, and ouer all the beastes that moue on the erth.

And God sayde: see, * I haue geuen you all herbes that sowe seed, whyche are on all the erth, and all maner trees that haue frute in the and sowe seed: to be meate for you and for all beastes of the erth, & vnto all foules of y ayre, and vnto all y crepeth on the erth where in is lyfe, that they maye haue all maner herbes and grasse for to eate, and euell so it was. And * God behelde al that he had made, and loo, they were exceeding good: and so of the eueryng and moynynge was made the syxte daye.

The notes.
Here is it sayde that God blessed his creatures, that is to saye, prophesied them good, not in making a crosse ouer them (as the pope and hys apes woulde inuente God in creatyng the creatures) but in saying. Growe & multiply. &c. Man is made after the likenes of God, in that he hath a soule immortall, indued with vnderstanding and other diuine qualities. Yet semeth it rather in this place to be spoken of that similitude or lykenes wherein God dyd afterwarde appere vnto man, whiche was the shap appointed afore to be the shap of Christ the secorde persone in Trinitie, when he shoulde shewe him selfe to the worlde, and suffre in the same.

The.ii. Chapter.

The Chapter d went before is here repeted agayne: the halowing of the Sabboth daye: the foure floudes of paradys: the settinge in of man in paradys: the tree of knowledge is forbydden hym: howe Adam named all creatures: the creation of Eua: y institucio of marriage.

Shus was heauen & erth finished with all their apparell, and in the seuenth daye God ended hys worke whiche he had made, * and rested in the seuenth daye from al his workes whiche he had made. And God b blessed the seuenth daye, and sanctified it, for in it he rested from all hys workes whiche he had created and made.

These are the generacions of heauē and erth when they were created, in the tyme when the Lord God created heauen and erth and all the shrubbes of y felde before they were in the erth. And all the herbes of the felde before they sprange, for y Lord God had yet sent no rayne vpon y erth, nether was there yet any man to tylle y erth. But there arose a myste out of the grounde, and watered all the face of the erth: The the Lord God * hope man, euell of the mouldre of the erth, & bryethed into hys face the bryeth of lyfe. So * man was made a lyuynge soule.

The Lord God also planted a garden in Eden from the begynnynge, and there he sette man whome he had formed. And the Lord God made to sprig out of the erth, all maner trees bewtyfull to the syght and pleasant to eate, & the * tree of lyfe in y myddes of y garden and also the tree of knowledge of good and euell.

And there sprange a ryuer oute of Eden to water the garden, and thence deuyded it selfe, & grewe into foure principall waters. The name of the one is * Phislon, he it is that compasseth all y lande of Heupla, where golde groweth. And the gold of that cōtre is pacious, there is rounde Bedellyon, and a stone called Onix. The name of the seconde ryuer is Gihon, whiche compasseth all the lande of Inde. And the name of the thyrde ryuer is Hydekell, whiche runneth on the east syde of the Assyrians. And the fourth ryuer is Euphrates.

And the Lord God toke Adam, and put him in the gardē of Eden, to dresse it and to kepe it. And the Lord God commaunded Adam saying: Of al trees of the garden se thou eate: But of y tree of knowledge of good and bad se that thou eate not: for euē y same day thou eatest of it thou shalt dye y deth.

And the Lord God sayd: It is not good that man should be alone, I wyll make him an helper to beare hym company. And after that y Lord God had made of the erth all maner beastes of y felde, and all maner foules of the ayre, he brought them vnto Adam to se what he wolde call them. And as Adam called all maner lyuing beastes, euē so are their names. And Adam gaue names vnto all maner cattell, & vnto the foules of the ayre, and vnto al maner beastes of the felde. But there was no helpe founde vnto Adam to beare hym companye.

Then the Lord God cast a slumber on Adam, and he slepte. And thē he toke out one of his ribbes, and in stede ther-

The.iii. Chapter.

The serpent deceiveth the woman. The serpent, the woman, and the man are cursed, and vnten out of paradys. That our sauour is promysed.

But the serpente was sotyller than al the bestes of þe felde, whiche the Lorde God had made: and sayde vnto þe womā: yea, hath God sayd in dede, ye shal not eate of all maner trees in the garden: And the woman sayde vnto þe serpente, of the frute of the trees in þe garden we maye eate, but of þe frute of the tree that is in the myddes of the gardē (saide God) see that ye eate not, and see that ye touche it not, lest ye dye. Then sayd the serpente vnto þe womā: tuche, ye shall not dye: but God doth knowe þe when so euer ye shulde eate of it, your eyes shulde be opened, & ye shulde be as God, and knowe both good & euell. And the woman saue þe it was a good tree to eate of, & lusty vnto the eyes, & a pleasante tree for to geue vnderstandynge. And toke of the frute of it & ate, and gaue vnto hys husbāde also with her, & he ate. And the eyes of both them were opened, that they vnderstode how that they were naked. Than they sowwed fygge leues together and made them apurples. Took of the tree and

And they herde the voyce of þe Lorde God as he walked in the garden in the coole of the daye. And Adam hyd hym selfe and his wyfe also from the face of the Lorde God, amonge the trees of the garden. And the Lorde God called Adam, and sayd vnto him: where arte thou? And he answered: Thy voyce I hearde in the gardē, but I was afrayed, because I was naked, and therefore hyd my selfe. And he sayde: Who tolde the þe thou wast naked? hast thou eaten of the tree, of whiche I bad the þe thou shuldest not eate? And Adam answered: The womā which thou gauest to beare me cōpany she toke me of the tree, and I ate. And the Lorde God sayde vnto the woman: wherfore diddest thou so? And the womā answered: The serpente deceaued me and I ate.

And the Lorde God sayde vnto the serpent: because thou hast so done most cursed be thou of all catell and of all bestes of the felde: vpon thy belly shalt thou go: and erth shalt thou eate all dayes of thy lyfe. Moreouer, I wyl put hatred betwene the and the woman, & betwene thy seed and hys seed, And thā seed shal tread the on thy heed, & thou shalt treade it on the hele.

And vnto the woman he sayd: I wyl surely encrease thy sorowe, & make the oft w childe, & with paine shalt þe be deliuered: And thy lustes shal pertayne vnto thy husband, and he shal rule the.

And vnto Adam he sayde: for as moche as thou hast obeyed the voyce of thy wyfe, & hast eaten of þe tree of which I commaunded the, sayinge: Se thou eate not therof: cursed be the erthe for thy sake. In sorowe shalt thou eate therof all dayes of thy lyfe: And it shall beare thornes and thystels vnto the. And thou shalt eate the herbes of þe feld. In þe sweete of thy face shalt thou eate bred, vntil þe returne vnto þe erthe whence thou wast taken. And the Lord God said vnto the serpent: because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all serpents, and above all beasts of the field: upon thy belly shalt thou go, and dust shalt thou eat. And I will put enmity betweene thee and the woman, and betweene thy seed and her seed: she shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise her heel.

And Ada bare Jaball, of whome came they that dwel in tentes, & possesse catel. And his brothers name was Jubal, of him came all that exercise them selues on y harpe & on the organs. And Zilla she also bare Tubalcayn a worker in metall & a father of all y graue in braske or yron. And Tubalcayn's sister was called Naama.

Then sayd Lamech vnto his wyues Ada & Zilla: heare my voyce (ye wyues of Lamech) & hearken vnto my wordes, for I haue slaine a man, & wounded my selfe, & haue slayn a yong mā, & got my selfe stryppes: for Cayn shall be auenged seuenfolde, but Lamech seuentie times seuenfolde. The genealogie of Adam vnto Noe.

Alys is the boke of the generation of man. In y day when God created man & made hym after the symilitude of God. Male and female made he them, and blessed them, and called theyr names man, in y daye when they were created. And when Adam was an hundred & thyrty yere old, he begat a sonne, after hys lyknesse & similitude: & called his name * Seth. And the dayes of Adam after he begat Seth, were eyght hundred yere, & begat sonnes and doughters. And al y dayes of Adam whiche he lyued, were ix. hundred & xxx. yere, and then he dyed.

And Seth lyued an hundred and. v. yeres, & begat Enos. And after he had begot Enos he lyued. viii. hundred & vii. yere, & begat sonnes & doughters. And all y dayes of Seth were. ix. hundred & xii. yeres, & dyed. And Enos lyued. lxxx. yere & x. & begat Kenan. And Enos after he begat Kenan, liued. viii. hundred & xv. yere, and begat sonnes & doughters: and all the dayes of Enos were. ix. hundred & v. yere, & thā he dyed. And Kenan lyued. lxx. yere, & begat Mahalaliel. And Kenan after he had begot Mahalaliel, lyued. viii. hundred & xl. yere, & begat sonnes and doughters: & al the dayes of Kenan were. ix. hundred & x. yere, & than he dyed. And Mahalaliel lyued. lxxv. yere, & begat Jared. And Mahalaliel after he had begot Jared lyued. viii. hundred & xxx. yeres, & begat sonnes and doughters: & al the dayes of Mahalaliel were. viii. hundred nyntie & v. yere, & thā he died.

And Jared lyued an hundred & lxxi. yere, & begat Henoch & Jared lyued after he begat Henoch. viii. hundred yere, & begat sonnes & doughters. And al the dayes of Jared were. ix. hundred & lxxi. yere, and than he dyed. And Henoch lyued. lxx. yere, & begot Mathusala. And * Henoch walked with God after he had begotten Mathusala. iii. hundred yere, & begat sonnes & doughters: And al the dayes of Henoch were. iii. hundred & lxxv. yere, & than Henoch lyued a godlye lyfe, and was no more sene, for God toke hym awaye.

And Mathusala lyued an hundred and. lxxxvii. yere & begat Lamech: and Mathusala after he had begot Lamech, lyued. vii. hundred & lxxxii. yere, & begat sonnes and doughters. And all the dayes of Mathusala were. ix. hundred. lxxix. yere, and than he dyed.

And Lamech lyued an hundred. lxxxiii. yere & begat a sonne, & called him Noe, sayinge: Thys same shall comforte vs: as concerning our worke & sorowe of our handes, whiche we haue about the erth: that y Lorde hath cursed.

To walke a. To walke with god, is to do his will & leade a lyfe accordyng to his worde.

The. vi. Chapter.

The cause of the floude. God warneth Noe of the commynge of the floude. The preparynge of the arcke.

And it came to passe, whan menne began to multiply vpon the erth, and had begot them doughters, the sonnes of God sawe the doughters of men that they were fayre, and toke vnto them wyues, whyche they beste lyked amonge them all. And the Lorde sayde: My spirite shall not alwaye sturue w man, for they are fleshe. Neuerthelesse I wyll gyue them yet space an. C. & xx. yeres.

There were tytanes in þe worlde in those dayes. For after þe chyldre of God had gone in vnto the doughters of men, and had begoten them chyldre, the same chyldren were the mightiest of the worlde, & men of renowne. And whan the Lorde sawe that the wyckednesse of man was encreased vpon the erth, & that all the ymaginacion and thoughtes of hys heart was onely euyl continuallye, he & repented þe he had made man vpon the erth, and sorowed in hys hert. And sayde: I wyll dystroy man: kynd whiche I haue made, from of the face of the erth: both mā, beast, worme and foule of the ayre, for it repenteth me that I haue made them. But yet Noe founde grace in the sight of the Lorde.

* These are the generactōs of Noe. Noe was a righteous mā & vncorrupt in hys tyme, & walked with God. And Noe begat. iii. sonnes: Sem, Ham, & Japheth. And the erthe was corrupte in the sight of God, & was full of mischefe. And God looked vpon þe erth, and lo, it was corrupt: for al flesh had corrupted hys way vpon the erth.

Then sayde God vnto Noe: the ende of al flesh is come before me, for þe erth is full of thei mischefe. And lo, I wyll dystroye them with the erthe.

Make the an arcke of pyne tree, and make chaumbers in the arcke, and pitch the it within and without with pitch. And of this facion shalt thou make it.

The length of the arcke shal be. iii. hundred cubytes, & the bredth of it. i. cubites, and þe heygth of it. xxx. cubytes. A wyndowe shalt thou make aboue in the arcke. And within a cubyte compass shalt thou synyth it. And the dore of the arcke shalt thou sette in the syde of it: and thou shalt make it with. iii. loftes one aboue a nother. For behold, I wyl bynge in a floude of water vpon the erth to dystroye all flesh fro vnder heauē, wherein bryeth of lyfe is: so þe all that is in þe erth shal perishe. But I wil make myne apoyntmēt w the, that bothe thou shalt come in to the arcke and thy sonnes, thy wyfe & thy sonnes wyues with thee.

And of all that lyueth what so euer fleshe it be, shalt thou bynge in to the arcke, of euery thyng a payre, to kepe them a lyue with the. And male and female se that they be, of byrdes in their kynde, & of beastes in their kynde, & of all maner of wormes of þe erth in their kynde: a payre of euery thyng shalt thou come vnto the to kepe them a lyue. And take vnto thee of all maner of meate þe maye be eaten and laye it vp in stooze by the, þe it maye be meate both for the and for them: and Noe dyd accordyng to all that God commaunded hym.

The notes. Foxes shall come to byrdes.

a The sonnes of Seth are called þe sones of god, because their father had instructed & nourished the godly, & trayned them vp in the fere of god. Contrarye wise, the sonnes of Cayn are called the sones of me, because they were trayned and brought vp in the wyckednes of the fleshe.
b. This is not to be taken so that we shoulde hereby holde opinton, that god may do any thyng rashly, wherof he may afterwarde repent him (for god is stable in all hys wayes & repenteth not of ought that he doeth) but it is to be gathered of this, that the synnes of mankynd were then so greute, that yf it had ben possible for god to haue repented hys workes, he had than cause sufficient.
c. By all fleshe, is ment in this place al kyndes of men as well suche as descended lineally of Seth as of Cayn.

The. vii. Chapter.

The entrance of Noe & them that were with hym in to the arcke. The rypynge of the floude wherewith all thynges dyd perishe.

Noe founde grace of god And

And the Lord said vnto Noe: *Go into the arke both thou & all thy household. For thee haue I sene a ryghteous be- fore me in this generacyō. *Of al cleue bestes take vnto the seuen of euery kynd, the male & female, and of vncleue bestes a payre, the male & his female: lyke wyse of the byrdes of the ayre seue of euery kynd, male and female to saue seed vpon all the erth. For seuen dayes hence wyll I sende rayne vpo the erth. xl. dayes and xl. nyghtes, and wyll destroye all maner of thynges y I haue made, fro of the face of the erth.

And Noe dyd accordyng to all that the Lorde commaunded him: and Noe was syre hundred yere olde; when the *floude of water came vpon the erthe: and Noe went and his sonnes, and his wife, and his sonnes wyues w him, into the arcke fro the waters of the floud. And of vncleue bestes, and of y bestes y were vncleue, and of byrdes and of al that crepeth vpo y erth, came in by couples of euery kinde vnto Noe into the arcke, a male and a female: eue as God commaunded Noe. And the seuēth day the waters of y floud came vpo y erth.

In the. vii. hundred yere of Noes life, in the seconde moneth, in the. xlii. daye of the moneth, y same daye were all the fountaynes of the great depe broken vp, and the windowes of heauen were opened, and there fell a rayne vpon the erth. xl. dayes and xl. nyghtes.

And the selfe same daye wente Noe, Sem, Ham and Japheth, Noes sons, and Noes wyfe, and y. iii. wyues of his sonnes w the into y arcke: both they & al maner of bestes in their kynde, and al maner of catel in their kynd, and al maner of wormes that crepe vpo y erth in their kind, and al maner of byrdes in theyr kynde, and al maner of foules whatsoeuer had fethers. And they came vnto Noe into y arcke by couples, of all fleshe that had bryth of ylf in it. And they that came, came male & female of euery fleshe accordyng as God comaūded hym: and the Lorde shut the doore vpon hym. And the *floude came, foure tyde dayes and fouertye nyghtes vpon the earth, and the water increased and bare vp the arcke, and it was liſte vp fro of the erth. And y water preuayled and encreased exceedingly vpo the erth: and y arcke wet vpo the toppe of y waters. And the waters preuayled exceedingly aboue measure vpo the erth, so that all the hve hylles whiche are vnder all the partes of heauen were couered: euen. x. cubytes hve preuayled the waters, so that y hylles were couered.

And all fleche that moued on y earth, bothe birdes, catell and bestes perished, w all that creple on the erthe and all men: so that all that had the bryth of lyfe in the nostrils of it thoroowe out all that was on dyve lande, dyed. Thus was destroyed all that was vpon the erth, both mā, bestes, wormes and foules of the ayre, so y they were destroyed fro y erthe: saue Noe was reserved only and they y were with him in y arcke. And the waters preuayled vpo y erth, an hundred and. l. dayes.

a. They are ryghteous before God, y lone their neyghbours for Gods sake, vnſappely haung the spyrte of God, whiche maketh them y sonnes of god, & therefore are they accepted of God as iust & ryghteous, as it is in Gen. xlii. c. b. In this place, vncleue beastes seme to be suche beastes as (for some vncleue properties whiche they had) were not vsed to be sacrificed. For as it appeareth by the. ix. chap. of this boke, ther was then no meate vlawful to be eaten. c. That is, all the waters that were on the earth, sprang vp, encreased and multiplied, in suche wyse, that the greete depe, that is the sea ouerflowed and seemed to haue her springes opened. d. That is, suche aboundance of water came fro aboute, y heauē seemed to haue be none other thyng but an whole sea of waters, & to haue his floude gates euen then opened that it myghte issue to ouerflowe the carthe.

The. viii. Chapter.

After the sentyng of the of the rauen and the dove Noe went forth of the arcke. He offereth sacrifice. The malice of mannes heart.

And God remembred Noe & al the bestes, & all the cattell that were with hym in the arcke. And God made a wynde to blow vpon the erth, and the waters ceased: and the fountaynes of the depe and the wyndowes of heauen were stoppte and the rayne of heauen was forbydde, and the waters returned from of the erth, & abated after the ende of an hundred and. l. dayes.

And the arcke rested vpon the mountayns of Ararat, the. xlii. daye of the vii. moneth. And the waters wente away, & decreased vntyll the. x. moneth.

And the Lord said vnto Noe: Thou shalt be fruitful and multiply, and shalt fill the earth. Unto thee, and to thy wife, and to thy sonnes, and to thy sonnes wyues, I will geue thee, and thou shalt be fruitful and multiply, and shalt fill the earth. Unto thee, and to thy wife, and to thy sonnes, and to thy sonnes wyues, I will geue thee, and thou shalt be fruitful and multiply, and shalt fill the earth.

And the first day of the tenth moneth, the toppes of þe mountaynes appered.

And after the ende of .xl. dayes Noe opened the window of the arcke which he had made, & sent forth a rauen, which went out, euer going & coming again, vntyl the waters were dreyed vp vpon the erth.

Then sent he forth a doue fro him, to wete whether the waters were falle from of the erth. And when the doue coulde fynde no resting place for hyr fete, she returned to hym agayne vnto the arke, for the waters were vpon the face of all the erth. And he put out his hand, & toke her, and pulled her to him into the arcke.

And he abode yet .vii. dayes more, & sent out the doue again out of þe arcke, & the doue came to him agayne about euentyde, & beholde, there was in hyr mouth a lefe of an olyue tree which he had plucked: whereby Noe perceaued that the waters were abated vpon the erth. And he tarped yet .vii. other dayes, and sent forth the doue, whiche fro thence forth came no more agayne to hym.

And it came to passe, þe fyrte hundred and oite yere & the first day of the fyrst moneth, that þe waters were dreyed vp vpon the erth. And Noe toke of the hatches of the arcke, & looked: and behold, the face of the erthe was drye. So by the .xxvii. daye of the seconde moneth the erth was drye.

And God spake vnto Noe, sayinge: Come out of the arcke, both thou and thy wife, & thy sonnes, & thy sonnes wyues with the. And al þe bestes that are with the, whatsoeuer fleshe it be, bothe foule & cattel, & al maner wormes that crepe on the erth, brynge out with the,

& let them moue, & grow & multiply bp on the erth. And Noe came out, & hys sonnes, & hys wife, and his sonnes wyues with him. And all the bestes, and all the wormes, and al the foules, and al þe moued vpon þe erth, came also out of the arcke, all of one kynde together.

And Noe made an aulter vnto the Lord, & toke of all maner of clene bestes, and all maner of clene foules, and offered sacrifice vpon the aulter. And þe Lord smelled a swete sauour, & said in his hert: I wyll heliceforth no more curse þe erth for mannes sake, & for the ymaginacio of manes hert is euil, eue fro the very yowth of him. Moreouer I wyll not destroy from hence forth al that lyueth as I haue done. Neyther shal sowynge tyme and haruest, colde & hete, somer and wynter, day and night, cease, as longe as the erth endureth.

The Notes.

a. Thys is spokē after the maner of menue. For God neuer forgetteth thyng, that he may call it to remembraunce agayne.

b. The Lordes smelling of sauour is a lowaunce of the workes of the faythfull. As in Exod. xxx. & Leui. i. ii. iii.

The ix. Chapter.

God blessed Noe and hys sonnes. He forbiddeth to eate the bloude of bestes, and forbiddeth the shedding of mans bloude. The lawe of the swerde. He maketh a touenaunte that he wyl destroye the world nomore by water, and graunteth the raignebowe as a token and consymatyon of the same. Noe is dyonichē, & Ham vncouereth hym, and getteth his curse.

And God blessed Noe & hys sonnes, & sayd vnto the: Increase & multiply, and fyl the erth. The feare also & drede of you be vpon all bestes of the erth, and vpon all foules of the ayre, & vpon al that crepeth on the erth, and vpon all fyshes of the sea, which are gyuen vnto your handes. And all that moueth vpon the erth hauynge lyfe, & all be your meate: Eue as þe grene herbes, so geue I you all thyng. Only the fleshe wyth his lyfe whiche is his bloud, se that ye eate not.

* For verely the a bloud of you wher in your lyues are wyl I require: Euen of the hande of all bestes wyl I require it, & of the hande of man, & of the hande of euery mannes brother wyl I require the lyfe of man, * so þe which sheddeth mannes bloude shall haue hys bloud shed by man agayne: for God made man after his owne lykenes. Se that ye encrease, & waxe, & be occupied vpon the erthe, and multiplye therein.

Furthermore God spake vnto Noe and to his sonnes wyth him, sayinge: Se, I make * my bonde with you, and your seed after you, & with all lyuinge thing þe is to you: both foule & catel, & all maner bestes of the erth that is to you, of al that cometh out of the arcke what soeuer beste of the erth it be. I make my bonde with you, that hence forth all fleshe shall not be destroyed wth the waters of any floude, & that hence forth there shall not be a floude to destroye the erth.

And God sayde: Thys is the token of my bonde whiche I make betwene me and you, & betwene all lyuing thinge & is wth you for euer: I wyll set my bowe in the cloudes & it shal be a signe of the appoyntement made betwene me & the erth: so that when I byng in cloudes vpon the erth, the bowe shal appere in the cloudes. And than wyll I thynke vpon my testamēt whiche I haue made betwene me and you, and all & lyueth what so euer fleshe it be. So that hece forth * there shall be no more waters to make affoud to destroye al fleshe.

The bowe shalbe in the cloudes, and I wil loke vpon it, to remember the euerlastyng testament betwene God & all that lyueth vpo the erth, what so euer fleshe it be. And God said vnto Noe: This is y<sup>e</sup> sygne of the testamēt whiche I haue made betwene me and all fleshe that is on the erth.

The sonnes of Noe that came out of the arke were: Sem, Ham, & Japheth. And Ham he is the father of Canaan. These are the.iii. sonnes of Noe, and of these was all the world ouerspred.

And Ham the father of Canaan sawe his fathers priuitees, & tolde his two brethren y<sup>e</sup> were without. And Sem & Japheth toke a matel, & put it on both their shoulers, & went backward, and couered their fathers secrets, but their faces were backward, so y<sup>e</sup> they sawe not their fathers nakednes.

As soone as Noe was awake from hys wyne, and wylt what hys yongest sonne had done vnto him, he sayd: Cursed be Canaan, & a seruāt of al seruātes be he to his brethren. And he sayde: Blessed be the Lord God of Sem, and Canaan be his seruāt. God b<sup>e</sup> increase Japheth that he may dwell in y<sup>e</sup> tentes of Sem. And Canaan be their seruāt.

And Noe lyued after the flood thre hundred and syttie yere: so that all the dayes of Noe were. ix. hundred & syttie yere, and thait he dyed.

The notes.

a. Here is al cruelnes forbidden man, in that the bloud of al beastes is forbydden him. For y<sup>e</sup> lyfe of euery thyng is in the bloud whiche God hath threatened to auenge in al beastes, muche more in men.

b. In this place, encrease is taken for reioyse or to be in peace and of good conforste, as it is Gen. xxi. e. and psal. xiii. a.

The. x. Chapter.

The genealogie of Japheth, Sem and Ham.

JThese are the generacions of the sonnes of Noe: of Sem, Ham and Japheth, whiche begatte them childzen after the floude.

* The sonnes of Japheth were: Gomer, Magog, Madai, Iauan, Tubal, Melech & Thyras. And the sonnes of Gomer were: Ascanas, Riphath & Togarima. And the sonnes of Iauā were: Elisa, Charlis, Cithim & Dodanim. Of these came the Isles of the gentyls in their confrees, euery manne in hys speache, kyured and nacyon.

The sonnes of Ham were: Chus, Mizraim, Phut & Canaā. The sonnes of Chus were Seba, Heupla, Sabla, Rayma and Sabtema. And y<sup>e</sup> sonnes of Rayma were: Sheba, and Dedan. * Chus also begat Nemrod, which began to be myghty in the erth. He was a myghty hunter in the syghte of the Lorde: wherof came the prouerbe: he is as Nemrod that myghty hunter in the syght of the Lorde. And the begynnyng of his kyngdome was * Babel, Erech, Achad & Chalne in the lande of Synear: Out of that land came Assur, and buylded Ninue, and the cyte Reshoboth, & Calah, and Resen betwene * Ninue & Calah. That is a great cite. And Mizraim begat Ludim, Enamim, Leabim, Paphthim, Pathrusim & Casluhim: from whence came the Philistyns, and the Capththerpnes.

Canaan also begat zidon his eldest sonne, & Heth, Jebull, Emori, Girgosi, Him, Arki, Simi, Aruadi, zemari & Harmati. And afterwarde sprange y<sup>e</sup> kynreds of y<sup>e</sup> Cananytes. And the costes of y<sup>e</sup> Cananytes were frō Sydon tyl thou come to Gerara & to Asa, and tyl thou come to Sodoma, Gomorra, Adama, zeboum.

zebolim, eue vnto Lasa. These were the children of Ham in their kynredes, tonges, landes and nacjons.

And Sem the father of al the children of Eber, & the eldest brother of Japheth begat childre also. And his sons were Elam, Assur, Arphachsad, Lud, & Aram. And the children of Aram were:

D Uz, Hul, Gether & Mas. And Arphachsad begatte Sala, & Sala begat Eber. And Eber begat two sonnes. The names of the one was Peleg, for in his tyme the earth was deuyded. And the name of his brother was Jaketan.

Jaketan begat Almodad, Saleph, Hazarmapheth, Jarah, Hadorā, Ulal, Dikela, Obal, Abimael, Seba, Ophir, Hevila & Jobab. All these are y sonnes of Jaketan. And the dwelling of them was fro Mesia, vntyll thou come vnto Sephara a mountayne of the east lād. These are the sonnes of Sem in theyr kynredes, languages, contrees & nacjons. These are the kynredes of y sons of Noe, in their generacions & naciōs. And of these came y people that were in the worlde after the floude.

The .xi. Chapter.

The building of the tower of Babel. The confusyon of tonges. The generacion of Sem the sonne of Noe vntyll Abim which goth with Lot vnto Haran.

AND al the worlde was of one tōge & one language. And as they came fro the east, they founde a playne in the lande of Spilear, & there they dwelled. And they sayde one to another: come on, let vs make byrcke & burne it with fyre. So byrcke was their stone and styne was their morter. And they said: Come on, let vs buyld vs a cyte & a tour, that the toppe maye reache vnto heuē. And let vs make vs a name, for perauēture we shall be scatered abrode ouer al the erth. And the Lorde came a downe to see the cyte and the toure, whiche the children of Adam had buylded. And y Lorde sayde: See, the people is one, & haue one tonge amonge them all. And thys haue they begonne to do, and wyl not leaue of fro all that they haue purposed to do. Come on, let vs descende, & myngell theyr tonge euen there, y one vnderstande not what another sayeth.

B Thus the Lorde skattered them from thence vpon all the erth. And they leste of to buylde the cyte. & herfore y name of it is called Babel, because that the Lorde there confounded the tonge of all the world. And because that y Lorde from thence skattered them abrode vpo all the erth.

* These are the generaciōs of Sem: Sem was an hundred yere olde, & begat Arphachsad. ii. yere after y floude. And Sem lyued after he had begot Arphachsad. b. hundred yere and begatte sonnes and daughters.

And Arphachsad lyued. xxxv. yere & begat Sala, & lyued after he had begat Sala. liii. hundred yere & lii. & begat sonnes and daughters. And Sala was. xxx. yere olde and begat Eber, & lyued after he had begot Eber. liii. hundred & thre yere, and begat sonnes and daughters. When Eber was. xxxiii. yere olde, he begat Peleg, & lyued after he had begot Peleg fourte hundred & xxx. yere, & begat sons & daughters.

And Peleg when he was. xxx. yere old begat Regu, & liued after he had begot Regu. ii. hundred & ix. yere, and begat sonnes & daughters. And Regu when he had lyued. xxxii. yere begat Serug, and lyued after he had begot Serug. ii. hundred and. vii. yere, & begat sonnes and daughters.

And when Serug was. xxx. yere olde he begat Nahor, & lyued after he had begot Nahor. ii. hundred yere, & begat sonnes & daughters. And Nahor when he was. xxix. yere olde, begat Terah, & lyued after he had begot Terah, an hundred and. xix. yere, & begat sonnes and daughters. Begat Abram Nahor and Haran.

And when Terah was. lxx. yere old, he begat Abram, Nahor and Haran.

And these are y generaciōs of Terah. Terah begat Abram, Nahor and Haran. And Haran begat Lot. And Haran dyed before Terah his father in y lād where he was borne, at Ur in Chaldea. And Abram and Nahor toke them wyues: Abrams wyfe was called Sarai. And Nahors wyfe Mylca y doughter of Haran which was father of Milca, & of Isca. But Sarai was bare, and had no chylde.

Then toke Terah Abram his sonne and Lot hys sonne, Haraus sonne, and

a. God is counted to come downe, when he doth

b. Not that God sawe it not, nor could se it tyl he might come downe from heauen to loke vpon or vīue it after the maner of men. (For he seeth all thyng, and hathe them alwaye presente before hys eyes) but by cause the scripture applyeth it selfe to our weakenesse, and vseth our phrases and maner of speakynge. For we vse to saye, that whan prynces and rulers do punyssh open offenders, they loke vpon suche thynges as such men do committe.

Ch. xii. Chapter.

Abraham is blessed of God, and goeth with Lot into a strange lande that apered to hym in Canaan. And God promyseth to geue the same lande to hym and to his seide. And afterwarde goeth Abraham into Egypt and causeth Sarai hys wyfe to saye that she is hys syster.
And he was rauished of Pharaos, for whiche the Lorde plageth hym.

Then the Lorde sayde vnto Abram. Get* the out of thy countre and fro thy kintred, and out of thy fathers house, in to a lande which I wyl shewe the. And I wyl make of thee a myghty people, & wyl a blesse the, and make thy name great, & thou mayst be a blessing.* And I wyl blesse the that blesse the, and curse the that curse the.
* And in the shall be blessed all the generations of the erth.

And Abram went as the Lorde bad hym, and Lot went with hym. Abram was. lxxv. yere olde, when he went out of Haran. And Abram toke Sarai hys wyfe, and Lot his brothers sone, with all* thyr goodes whiche they had gotten, and b soules whiche they had besgotten in Haran. And they departed to goo into the lande of Chanaan. And when they were come into the lande of Chanaan, Abram went forth in to the lande, tyll he came vnto a place called Sichem, & vnto the oke of More.* And the Canaanites dwelled then in y<sup>e</sup> lande.

which Land he shewed vnto him for an inheritance he went for he had heard saye that the Canaanites dwelled there he came to a place called Sichem

Then the Lorde apered vnto Abra, and sayde: vnto thy* seed wyl I geue thys lande. And he buylded an aulter there vnto the Lorde whiche appeared to hym. Then departed he thence, vnto a mountayne that lyeth on the East syde of Bethel, and pyched hys tente: Bethel beyng on the west syde, and Ay on the east: and he buylded there an aulter vnto the Lorde, and called on y<sup>e</sup> name of the Lorde. And thau Abram departed and toke hys iourney southwarde.

After this there came a derth in the lande. And Abram wente downe in to Egypt, to sojourn there, for the derth was sore in the land. And when he was come nye for to entre in to Egypte, he sayde vnto Sarai hys wyfe. Beholde, I knowe that thou arte a fayre woman to loke vpon. It wyl come to passe therefore when the Egyptians see the,
that they wyl saye: she is hys wyfe.
And so shall they sle and saue thee.

Say* I praye the therefore that thou arte my syster, that I maye fare the better by reason of thee; and that my soule maye lyue for thy sake.

As soone as he came in to Egypt, the Egyptians sawe the woman, that she was very fayre. And Pharaos lor-des sawe hys also, & prayled hys vnto Pharaos: So that she was taken into Pharaos house, whiche entreated Abbra wel for hys sake, so y<sup>e</sup> he had shepe, oxen, & he asses, men seruauntes, mayde seruauntes, she asses and camels.

* But God plagued Pharaos, and his house with great plages, bycause of Sarai Abrahams wyfe. Then Pharaos called Abram and sayde: Why hast thou thus dealte with me? Wherefore tol-dest thou me not y<sup>e</sup> she was thy wyfe?
Why saydest thou y<sup>e</sup> she was thy syster; & causedest me to take hys to my wyfe?
But nowe loo, there is thy wyfe, take hys & be walkynge. Pharaos also gaue a charge vnto hys men ouer Abram, to leade hym out, wyth hys wyfe and all that he had.

Rehearsed by the Lord, Abrahā, Isaac, &c.

The. xiii. Chapter.

Lot is taken prisoner. The victorie of Abram of the Sodomites. Lot is deliuered by Abram. Melchisedech offreth yfetes vnto Abram. Abram payeth tithes vnto Melchisedech. Abram holdeth nothinge of the king of Sodomes goodes.

And it chaunced wythin a whyle, that Amraphel kynge of Synear, Arioch kyng of Ellasar, Kedorlaomar kyng of Elam and Chydear kyng of the nacyns, made warre with Bera kyng of Sodome, and with Birsa kyng of Gomorra, and with Sinear kyng of Adama, and with Semeabar kyng of Zeboun, and with the kyng of a Bela, whiche Bela is called Zoar. All these came together vnto the vale of Siddim, whiche is now the salte see.
Twelue yere were they subiecte to king Kedorlaomar, and in the. xiii. yere rebelled. Therefore in the. xiiii. yere came Kedorlaomar and þe kynges that were whore before the Lord Destroyer in the Garden of the Lord

...were with hym, & smote the Raphapims in Alstaroth Barnaim, & the Sulyms in Ham, & the Emyns in Sabe Bariathaim, and the Horyms in their awne mounte Seir vnto the playne of Pharan, which bordzeth vpo the wyl-dernesse. And then turned they & came to the wel of iugemente whiche is Cades, and smote all the contre of the Amalechytes, & also the Amozites that dwel in Hazezon Thamar.

Then wente out the kynge of So-dome, and the kynge of Gomorra, & the king of Adama, and the king of Zeborim, & the kyng of Bela nowe called Zo-ar. And sette their men in aray to fight with the in the vale of Syddym, that is to saye, with Kedozlaomar the kyng of Elaim and with Thydeall kynge of the Pacions, & with Amraphel kynge of Synear. And with Arioch kynge of Ellasar: foure kynges agaynste fyue.
And that vale of Syddym was full of fyme pyttes.

And the kinges of Sodome and Gomorra fled, & fel there. And the respyde fled to the mountaynes. And they toke all the goodes of Sodome and Gomor-re, and all theyr bytayles, and wente theyr waye. And they toke Lot also Abrahams brothers sonne, & hys good (for he dwelled at Sodome) and departed.
Then came one that had escaped, and tolde Abraham the Hebrew whiche dwelled in the okegroue of Mamre the A-mozite, brother of Elchol & Aner: which were confederate with Abraham. * Then

Abraham hearde that hys brother was taken, he harnesssed hys seruantes bozne in his own house, thre hundred & eygh-tene, & folowed tyll they came at Dan.
And sette hym selfe and hys seruantes in araye, and fell vpon them by nyght, & smote them, & chased them away vnto
Damascos, & brought agayne al the goods, and also hys brother Lot, and hys goodes, the women also and the people.

And as he returned agayne fro the daughter of Kedozlaomar & of the kings that were with hym, then came the * kynge of Sodome to mete hym in the vale of Saue, whycher nowe is called kynges dale.

Then * Melchisedech kynge of Salem brought forth the breed & wyne.
And he being y<sup>e</sup> priest of the most highest God, blessed hym, saying: Blessed be Abraham vnto the most hyghest God, possessor of heauen and erth. And ble-sed be God y<sup>e</sup> moste highest, which hath deliuered thyne enemies in to thy han-des. And Abraham gaue him tithes of al.

Then sayde the kynge of Sodome vnto Abraham: gyue me the soules, & take the goodes to thy selfe. And Abraham swered the kynge of Sodome: I lyfte by my hand vnto the Lorde God most hyghe possessor of heauen and earthe, that I wil not take of al that is thyne, so much as a thred or a showlachet, lest thou shouldest saye, I haue made Abraham ryche. Saue onely that whiche the yonge men haue eaten, and the par-tes of the men whycher wente with me, Aner, Elchol and Mamre. Lette them take their partes.

- The notes. Note that Christ is before a. The cite that Lot desired for his refuge was Bela. he came out of Sodome was called Bela, as in Gene. xix. c
b. In scripture Raphatims are counted for gyauntes, whiche lyued of theft and robbery.
c. The Jewes supposed Melchisedech to be Semelchisedech the sonne of Noe: because he lyued after y<sup>e</sup> flood fyue hundred yeres, and after the deathe of Abraham (by Goddes prouydence) was kynge of Salem. The Jewes lieth of
d. Blessed be Abraham, is as muche to say as praysed be Abraham. And praysed bee the moste hyghe God. As it is in Gene. xlvii.
e. Soules are men & women. As in: Gene. xlvii.

The xv. Chapter.
The lande of Canaan is yet agayne promysed to Abraham. God promyseth hym seed. He beleueth and is iustified. The prophesye of the bondage wherein the chyldeu of Israell shoulde be vnder Pharaon, and of their deliuerance from the same.

After these dedes, the worde of God came vnto Abraham in a bysis on sayinge: feare not Abraham, I am thy hyld, and thy rewarde shall be excedyng great. And Abraham answered: Lorde Jehouah what wylte thou geue me: I go chyldelesse, and the caster of myne house, this Eleasar of Da-malco hath a sonne. And Abraham sayde: Se, to me haste thou geuen no seed: lo, a lad bozne in my house shall be myne heyre.

And beholde, the worde of the Lorde spake vnto Abraham, saying: He shal not be thyne heyre, but one that shal come

Halte here a sonne, and shalt call hys * name Ismaell: Bycause the Lorde hath herde thy tribulacion. He wyl be a wylde man, and hys hāde wyl be a-gaynst euery man, & euery mans hāde agaynste hym. And yet shall he dwell fast by al his brethre. And he called þe name of the Lorde þe spake vnto her: thou arte the God þe lokest on me, for he sayd: I haue of a suertie sene here þe backe part of hi þe seeth me. Wherefore he called the well, the well of the lyuing þe seyth me, whiche well is be-twene Cades and Sared. * And Hagar bare Abzā a sonne, and Abzā called his sonnes name whiche Hagar bare Ismael. And Abram was .lxxxvi. yere olde, when Hagar bare hym Ismael.

The Notes. The well of lyuing
 a. To go in vnto her mayden, is to haue carnall copulation with her, as these wordes knowe & slepe do also signifie. Gene. xix. g.
 b. Affect the maner of the Debrues: for some is taken for companyng with a woman, and it is also taken for saythe. As in Luke. xvi. f.

 lation or otherwyse, haue perseuerance or knowledge of God.

The .xvii. Chapter.

Abram is called Abraham, & Sarai is named Sara.
 The lande of Canaan is here the fourth tyme promp-sed. Circumcysion is here institute. Isaac is promised.
 Abraham prayeth for Ismael.

When Abzā was nyntie yere olde and .ix. The Lorde appeared to hym, saying: I am the almyghty God: walke * before me and be vncorrupte. And I wyl make my bōde betwene the & me, & wyl multiplie the excedynglye. And Abzā fell on hys face. And God talked moreouer with him, sayinge: I am, be-holde my testament is with the, þe thou halte be a father of manye nacyns.
 Therefore, shalt thou no more be called Abram, but thy name shal be Abrahā: for a father of manye nacions haue I made the, & I wyl multiplie the excedingly, & wyl make naciōs of the: * yea & kings shal sprynge out of the. More-ouer I wyl make my bonde * betwene me & the, and thy seed after the, in their times to be an euerlasting testamēt, so þe I wyl be God vnto the & to thy seed after þe. And I wyl geue vnto the & to thy seed after the, the lande where:
 in thou arte a straunger: Euen all the lande of Canaan, for an euerlastynge possession, and wyl be their God.

And God sayde vnto Abraham: Se thou kepe my testamēt, both thou and thy seed after the in their tymes: thys is my testamēt whiche ye shal kepe be-twene me and you, & thy seed after the, þe ye circūcise all your men childre. Ye shal circūcise the foreskinne of your fleshe, & it shal be a tokē of the bonde betwixte me and you. And euery man child when it is .viii. dayes * olde, shal be circūcised amōge you in your ge-neracions, & al seruautes also borne at home, or bought with money, though they be straungers & not of thy seed.
 The seruaunt borne in thy house, & he also þe is bought with money, must ne-des be circūcised, þe my testamēt may be in your fleshe, for an euerlastynge bōd. If there be any vncircūcised māchyld, that hath not the foreskinne of his fleshe cutte of, his soule shal perish from his people: because he hath broke my testamēt. And God sayd vnto Abraham. Sarai thy wyfe shal no moze be called Sarai: but Sara shal her name be. For I wil bles her & geue the a sonne of her, & wyl blesse her: so þe people, yea and kynges of people shal sprynge of her. And Abraham fel vpon his face & laughte, & sayd in his hart: shal a chyld be borne vnto hym that is an hundred yere olde, & shal Sara þe is nyntie yere olde, bere? And Abrahā sayd vnto God. O that Ismael might lyue in thy syghte. Sin by faith in

Then sayd God: Sara thy wife shal * bere the a sonne in dede, & thou shalt call hys name Isaac. And I wyl make my bonde with him, þe it shal be an euerlastynge bonde vnto hys seed after hym. And as concerning Ismael also,
 I haue herde thy request: loo, I wyl blesse him, & encrease him, and multyply hym excedyngly. Twelue * princes shal he begette, & I wyl make a great naciō of hym. But my bonde wyl I make w Isaac, which Sara shal bere vnto the: eue this time twelue moneth.

And God lefte of talkynge with him, and departed by from Abraham.
 And Abraham toke Ismaell his sonne & al the seruautes borne in his house and al that was boughte w money as many as were men childre among the men of Abrahams house, & circumcised the foreskynne of their fleshe, euen þe selfe same daye, as God had sayde vnto him. Abraham was nyntie yere olde & nyne, when he cut of the foreskynne of his fleshe. And Ismaell his sonne was xii. yere olde, when þe foreskynne of his fleshe was circumcised. The selfe same daye was Abraham circumcised and Ismael his sonne. And all þe men in his house, whether they were bozne in hys house or bought with money (thoughe they were straungers) were circumcised with hym.

The figure a. The Scripture useth to call þe sygne of a thyng, by the name of the thyng it selfe. Duely to kepe the thyng signified the better in memorie. As here he calleth circumcision his bande, whyche is but a token therof. And as in Exod. xii. b. the paschal lambe is called the Lordes pascouer, and also as the breade in the Lordes supper is called his bodye. Math. xxvi. &c.

The. xviij. Chapter.

There appeared thre men vnto Abraham. Isaac is promysed to hym agayne, at whiche Sara laughed. The destruction of the Sodomytes is declared vnto Abraham. Abraham prayeth for them.

And the Lorde appeared vnto him in the okegrove of Mamre: as he sat in his tent doore in the heate of the day. And he lyfte vp hys eyes and looked: & lo, thre men stode not farre from him. And whē he sawe thē, he ran to mete thē fro the tent doore, and fell to the grounde. & sayde: Lorde, yf I haue fōude sauoure in thy syght: goo not by thy seruaunt. Let a litle water be sette, & wash youre fete, & rest your selues vnder the tree:

And I wyl fet a moztel of b. breed, to & cōfōrte youre hartes withal. And thā goo youre wayes, for euen therfore are ye come to your seruante. And they answered: Do euen so as thou hast sayde. And Abraham wēt a pace in to his tent vnto Sara, and sayde: make redye attonce thre peckes of fine meale, kneade it and make cakes. And Abraham ran vnto his beastes, and set a calfe þe was tendre and good, & gaue it vnto a yongman, whiche made it redy attonce. And he toke butter, and mylke, and the calfe whyche he had prepared, and sette it before them, and stode hym selfe by them vnder the tree: and they ate.

And they sayde vnto him: Where is Sara thy wyfe? And he sayd: in þe tent. And he sayde: I wil come agayne vnto the as soone as þe frute can yue. And loo: Sara thy wyfe shall haue a sonne. That herde Sara, out of þe tente doore, whyche was behynde his backe. Abraham and Sara were both olde, and wel stryken in age, and it ceased to be with Sara after þe maner as it is with wyues. And Sara laughed in hys selfe, sayinge: Now I am waxed olde, whal I geue my selfe to lust, and my lord olde also: Than sayde the Lorde vnto Abraham: wherfore doth Sara laughe, sayinge: shall I of a suertye bere a chylde, now when I am olde: is the thyng to harde for the Lorde to do? In the tyme * appoynted wyl I retorne vnto the, as soone as the frute can haue life, and Sara shall haue a sonne. Than Sara deriyed it, sayinge: I laughed not, for she was afrayde. But he sayd: yes thou laughtest. Than the men stode vp from thence, & looked towarde Sodome. And Abraham went w them, to bryng them on the waye. And the lorde sayde: Can I hyde fro Abraham, that thing which I am aboute to do, seynge that Abraham shall be a great and a mighty people, and al the nacions of the erth shall be blessed in him: for I knowe hym, & he wil commaunde his childe and his household after hym, that they kepe the waye of the Lorde, to do after righte & conscience, & the Lorde may bryng vpo Abraham, that he hath promysed hym.

And the Lord sayd: The crite of Sodome and Gomorra is great, & theyr synne is excedynge greuous. I wyl go downe and see, whether they haue done al together accordinge to þe crite, which is come vnto me or not, & I may know. And the men departed thence and went to Sodome ward. But Abraham stode yet before the Lord, and drewe nere and sayd. Wylt thou destroy the righteous with the wicked? If there be .l. ryghteous within the crite, wilt thou destroy it, and not spare the place for the sake of .l. ryghteous that are therein? That be farre from the, that thou shouldest do after this maner, to sle the ryghteous with the wycked, and þe ryghteous should be as the wycked: & be farre

Lot receaued two Angelles into his house. The synners of the Sodomites. Lot is deliqued and despycked to dwell in the cytie soe. Lottes wyfe is turned into a pyller of salt. Sodom is destroyed. Lot is drunken and lyeth with his daughters whyche contemned chylde by hym.

And there came. ii. angels to Sodom at euen. And Lot sat at the gate of y cytie. And Lot sawe them, and rose vp to mete them, and he bowed him selfe to the ground with his face. And he said: Se Lordes, turne in (I pray you) in to youre seruantes house, & tary all night: & washe your fete & ryle vp early and go on youre wayes. And they said: nay, but we wyl hyde in the streates all nyghte. And he compelled them exceedinglye. And they turned in vnto him and entred in to his house, and he made them a feast & dyd bake swete cakes, and they ate. But before they were to rest, the men of the cytie of Sodom compassed the house rounde aboute bothe olde and yonge, all the people fro all quarters. And they called vnto Lot and sayd vnto him: where are the men which came in to thy house to a nyghte: brynge them out vnto vs that we may do oure lust with them. Lot & D. whore

And Lot went out at doores vnto the & shut y doze after him, & said: nay for goddes sake brethren, do not so wickedlye. Beholde, I haue two daughters, which haue knowne no mā, them wyl I brynge out vnto you: do with the as it semeth you good: Onely vnto these men do nothyng, for therefore came they vnder y shadowe of my roie. And they sayde: come hyther. And they sayde: camest thou not in to sogeorne, & wylte thou be now a iudge? we wyl surely deale worse with the thā w the.

And as they pleased sore vpon Lot and began to breake vp y dooze, the mā put forth their hādes, & pulled Lot in to y house to the, & shut to the dooze. And the men that were at the dooze of the house, they smote with blyndnesse both small and great: so y they coulde not fynde the dooze. And the men sayde mozeouer vnto Lot: If thou haue yet here any sonne in lawe, or sonnes or daughters or what so euier thou haste in the cytie, brynge it out of this place: for we must destroy this place, because the cry of the is great before y Lorde. Whetfore he hath sent vs to destroy it.

And Lot wet out and spake vnto his sonnes in lawe, whiche shoulde haue married his daughters, and sayd: stande vp, and get you out of this place, for y Lorde wyl destroye the cytie. But he seemed as though he had mocked, vnto his sonnes in law. And as the moynynge arose the angels caused Lot to spede him, sayinge: Stande vp, take thy wyfe and thy two daughters and that that is at hande, lest thou perthe in the synne of the cytie. And as he prolonged the tyme, the mā caught both him, his wyfe and his two daughters by y handes (because the Lord was merciful vnto him) & they brought him forth, wyfe that she was hys*syfter. Then Abimelech king of Gerar sente and fet Sara awaye.

And GOD came to Abimelech by nighte in a dreame and sayde to hym: Se, thou arte but a deyd mā, for þ̃ wor

 So they continued to give their that thou dydest it in the purenesse of thy herte. And therefore I kept the, that thou shouldest not synne agaynste me, neither suffered I the to come nygh her. Nowe therefore deliuer the mā his wife agayne, for he is a prophete. And let him praye for the, that thou maist liue. But & yf thou delyuer her not agayne, be sure, that thou shalt dye the deth, with all that thou haste.

Then Abimelech rose bp be tymes in the mornynge, and called al his seruantes, and tolde all these thinges in their eares, and the men were sore afraid. And Abimelech called Abraham, and said vnto him: what haste thou done vnto vs, and what haue I offended the, that thou shouldest brynge on me and on my kyngdome so greate a synne: thou hast done debes vnto me that oughte not to be done. And Abimelech sayd moreouer vnto Abraham: what salwest thou that moued the to do this thynger?

And Abraham answered. I thought that peraduenture the feare of God was not in this place, & yf they shoulde slei me for my wyfes sake: yet in very dede she is my syster, the doughter of my father, but not of my mother: & became my wyfe. And after God caused me to wandre out of my fathers house, I said vnto her: *This kindnesse shalt thou shewe vnto me, in al places where we come, that thou saye of me, holwe that I am thy brother.

Then toke Abimelech shepe, & oxen, menservantes & womenservantes & gaue them vnto Abraham, & deliuered him Sara his wyfe agayne. And Abimelech sayde: beholde, the lande lyeth before the, dwell where it pleaseth the best. And vnto Sara he sayde: Se I haue geuen thy brother a thousand peeces of syluer: beholde, this thyng shall be a couerynge to thyne eyes, & vnto all that are with the and vnto all men an excuse.

And so Abraham prayde vnto God, and God healed Abimelech, and hys wyfe & his maydens, so that they bare chylde. For yf Lord had closed to, all y matrices of y house of Abimelech, because of Sara Abrahams wyfe.

The .xxi. Chapter.

Isaac is borne. Azar is cast oute with hys younge sonne Ismael. The Angell comforteth Agar. The colles naunne betwene Abimelech and Abraham.

The Lorde blyssed Sara as he had sayde and did vnto her: accordynge as he had promysed.

And Sara was with chylde, and bare Abraham a sonne in his olde age, euen the same season, whiche the lorde had appoynted. And Abraham called hys sonnes name that was borne vnto him (whiche Sara bare him) Isaac, & Abraham circumcised Isaac his sonne whē he was. viii. daies olde, as God commaunded him. And Abraham was an hundred yere olde, whē his sonne Isaac was borne vnto him. And Sara sayd: God hath made me a laughynge stocke: for all that heare, wyll laughe at me.

She said also: who woulde haue sayde vnto Abraham, that Sara shoulde haue geuen chylde luche, or yf I shoulde haue borne him a sonne in his olde age: The childe grewe, and was wened, & Abraham made a great feast, the same daye that Isaac was wened. Sara sawe the sonne of Hagar the Egyptian (whiche she had borne vnto Abraham) a mocking.

Then she sayde vnto Abraham: put away this bondmayde and hir sonne: for the sonne of this bondwoman shall not be heyre with my sonne Isaac: But the wordes semed very greuous in Abrahams syghte, because of hys sonne. Then the Lorde sayde vnto Abraham: let it not be greuous vnto the, because of the lad & of thy bondmayde: But in all that Sara hath sayde vnto the, heare hys voyce, for in Isaac shall thy seed be called. Moreover of the sonne of the bondwoman wyl I make a nation, because he is thy seed.

And Abraham rose bp early in the mornynge, and toke breade and a bottel with water, and gaue it vnto Hagar, puttynge it on hys shoulders with the lad also, and sente her awaye. And she departed and wandred bp and doune in y wilderness of Berseba. When y water was spent y was in y botel, she cast y lad under a bush, & went, and satte her out of syghte a greate waye, as it were a bowshot of: for she sayde: I wil not se the lad dye. And she satte doune oute of syght, & lyfte vp hyr voyce and wepte.

And God herde the voyce of þe childe.

And þe angel of God called Hagar out of heauen & said vnto her: What ayleth the Hagar? feare not, for god hathe herde the voyce of the childe, where he lyeth. Arise and lyfte vp the lad, & take hym in thy hande, for I wyll make of hym a great people. * And God opened hyr eyes and she sawe a wel of water. And she wente and fylled the bottell w water, and gaue the boye drynke. And God was with the lad, and he grewe and dwelt in the wyldernesse, & became an archer. And he dwelte in the wildernesse of Pharan. And his mother gotte hym a wyfe oute of the lande of Egypte.

And it chaunced the same season, that Abimelech and Phicol his chiefe captaine spake vnto Abraham, saying:

* God is with the iust that thou doest.

Nowe therfore swere vnto me, euere here by God, that thou wylte not hurte me, nor my children, nor my childrens chyldren. But that thou shalte deale w me and the contre where thou arte a stranger, accordynge vnto the kynnesse that I haue shewed the. * Then sayd Abraham: I wyll swere.

And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for a well of water, which Abimelechs seruants had taken awaye. And Abimelech answered: I wylte not who dyd it: Also thou toldest me not, nether herde I of it, but this daye. And Abraham toke shepe and oxen, and gaue the vnto Abimelech. And they made bothe of them a bonde together. And Abraham sette .vii. lambes by them selues. And Abimelech sayde vnto Abraham: what meane these .vii. lambes, whiche thou hast sette by the selues? And he answered. .vii. lambes shalte thou take of my hande, that it maye be a wytnesse vnto me, & I haue dygged this well: Wherefore þe place is called Berseba, because they sware bothe of them. Thus made they a bonde together at Berseba. Then Abimelech and Phicol his chiefe Captayne rose vp, & turned againe vnto the lande of the Philistines. And Abraham planted a wood in Berseba, and called there on the name of the Lord, the euerlastynge God: and dwelte in the Philistine lande a longe season.

The xxii. Chapter.

The faith of Abraham is proued in offeringe, bys sonne Isaac. Chyke our sauour is promysed. The generation of Hagar Abraham's brother.

After these dedes, God dyd * proue Abraham and sayde vnto hym: Abraham. And he answered: here am I. And he sayde: take thy onely sonne Isaac whom thou louest, and get the vnto the lande Moria, & sacrifice hym there for a sacrifice vpon one of þe mountaynes, whiche I wyll shewe the. Then Abraham rose vp early in the morninge, and saddled his asse, & toke two of his meyn with him, and Isaac his sonne: and cloue wod for the sacrifice, and rose vp and got him to the place which God had appoynted hym.

The thirde daye Abraham lyfte vp his eyes, & sawe the place a farre of, & said vnto his yonge men: byde here w the asse: I and the lad wyll goo yonder and worshyp, and come agayne vnto you. And Abraham toke the wood of the sacrifice and layde it vpon Isaac his sonne, and toke fyre in his hande and a knyfe. And they wente bothe of them together. By faith Isaac a lamb without blem

Then spake Isaac vnto Abraham his father and sayde: My father? And he answered, here am I my sonne. And he sayd: Se here is fyre and wood, but where is the shepe for sacrifice? And Abraham sayde: my sonne, God wyl prouyde hym a shepe for sacrifice. So went they bothe together.

And when they came vnto the place whiche God shewed him, Abraham made an autler there, and dressed the wod, and bownde Isaac his sonne and layd him on the autler, aboue vpon the wod. And Abraham stretched forth his hande, and toke þe knyfe, to haue kylled his sonne. Then the angell of the LORD called vnto him from heauen, sayinge: Abraham, Abraham? And he answered: here am I. Sara dyeth and is buried in the felde that Abraham bought of Ephron the Hethite.

SARA was an hundred & xxvii. yere olde (for so longe lyued she) & thā died in a heade cite called Hebron in the lande of Canaā. Chan Abraham came* to moorne Sara, and to wepe for her. And Abraham stode vp from the cooze, and talked with the sonnes of Heth sayinge: I am a straunger and a forpner amonge you, geue me a possession to burie in w<sup>ch</sup> you, that I may burie my dead out of my syght. And the children of Heth answered Abraham sayinge vnto hym: Heare vs lord, thou arte a pryncce of God amonge vs. In the chefest of oure sepulchres burie thy deade: None of vs shall forbyd the his sepulchre, that thou shouldest not bury thy dead ther: in. Abraham stode vp, and bowed him selfe before the people of the lande the children of Heth. And he comonde with them sayinge: If it be youre myndes that I shall bury my deade oute of my syght, heare me, & speake for me to Ephron the sonne of zoar: and let him geue me the dubbyll caue whiche he hath in the ende of his felde, for as moche money as it is worthe, let hym geue it me in the presence of you, for a possession to burie in. For Ephron dwelled amonge the children of Heth.

Chan Ephron the Hethite answered Abraham, in the audyence of the chyldren of Heth, and of all that went in at the gates of his cpte, sayinge: Not so my lord, but heare me: The felde geue I the, and the caue that therein is geue I the also: and euen in the presence of y<sup>e</sup> sonnes of my people geue I it the to bury thy deade in. Chan Abraham bowed him selfe before the people of y<sup>e</sup> lād, and spake vnto Ephron, in the audyence of the people of the contre, sayinge: * I praye the heare me, I wyll geue syluer for the felde, take it of me, and so wil I bury my dead there. Ephron answered Abraham, sayinge vnto him: My lord, harken vnto me. The lande is worthe iiii. hundred cycles of syluer: but what is that betwyxte the and me: bury thy deade. And Abraham harkened vnto Ephron and weyed him the syluer which he had said, in y<sup>e</sup> audyence of y<sup>e</sup> sonnes of Heth. Euen. iiii. hundred syluer cycles of currāt money amonge marchautes. Thus was the felde of Ephron (where D<sup>o</sup> in the dubbyll caue is) before Hamte: eue the felde and the caue that is ther: in and all the trees of the felde whiche growe in all the borders rōde about, made sure vnto Abraham for a possessio, in the sight of the children of Heth, and

cye. And then Abraham buryed Sara his wyfe in the double caue of the felde that lyeth before Mamre ( otherwylse called Ebron ) in the lande of Canaan.
And so both the felde and the caue that

Then sayde the seruaunte vnto him: what and yf the woman wyll not agree to come with me vnto this lande: shall I brynge thy sonne againe vnto y<sup>e</sup> lāde whiche thou camest out of? And Abrahā sayde vnto him; beware of  $\hat{\epsilon}$ , that thou bryng not my sonne thither. The Lorde God of heauen, whiche toke me from my fathers house, and from the lande where I was bozne, and whiche spake vnto me and sware vnto me, say- ing: vnto thy \* seed wyll I geue this lande, he shall sende hys angell before the, that thou mayst take a wyfe vnto my sonne from thence. Neuerthelesse yf the woman wyll not agree to come wth the, than shalte thou be with out daun- ger of this ooth. But aboue all thyng bryng not my sonne thither agayne. And the seruaunt put his hande vnder the thye of Abraham, and sware to him as concernynge that matter. And the seruaunte toke .x. camels of the camels of his master, and departed, and had of al maner goodes of his master wth him, and stode vp, & went to Mesopotamia, unto þe cytie of Nahor. And made hys camels to lye doune without þe cytie, by a welles syde of water, at euen: aboute the time that womē come out to drawe it came to passe yet he had left speakig, that Rebecca came out, the daughter of Bethuell sonne to Milca the wyfe of Nahor Abrahams brother, and hye pytcher vpon hir shoulder: The dam-sell was very fayre to loke vpon, and yet a mayde and vnknownen of mā. And she wente downe to the well, and felled hyr pytcher, and came vp agayne. The the seruaunt ranne vnto her, and said:

 let me suppe a lytle water of thy pyt-

And she hasted and lette downe her pytcher vpon hir arme, and gaue hym hys pitcher in to y<sup>e</sup> trough hastely, and ranne agayne vnto the well, to fet water: & drewe for all his camels. And the felowe wondred at her. But helde hys peace, to wete whether the Lorde had made his iourney prosperous or not.

And as the camels had lest drinckynge, he toke a<sup>b</sup> golden earring of halfe a sy-

And the damsell raime and tolde them of her mothers house these thinges. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And Laban raime out vnto y<sup>e</sup> man, to the well: for as soone as he had sene the carnyges and the bracelettes vpon his sisters handes, & hearde y<sup>e</sup> wordes of Rebecca his sister, saying: thus said the mā vnto me, than he wente out vnto the man. And than the man came into the house: and he vnbrydeled the camels: and brought lytter and provander for the camels, and water to wash his fete, and theyr fete that were with him, and there was meate set before him to eate. But he sayde: * I wil not eate, but y<sup>e</sup> I haue sayde myne earande. And he sayde: saye on. And he sayde: I am Abrahams seruaunt, and the Lorde hath blessed my master out of measure, that he is become great, & hath geuen him shepe, oxen, syluer and golde, menseruauntes, maydeseruauntes, camels and asses. And Sara my masters wyfe bare him a sonne, when he was olde: & vnto him hath he geue all that he hath. And my master made me swere, saying: thou shalt not take a wyfe to my sonne among y<sup>e</sup> daughters of y<sup>e</sup> Cananytes in whose lāde I dwel. But y<sup>e</sup> shalt go vnto my fathers house & to my kynred, & there take a wife vnto my sone. And I sayde vnto my master: what yf y<sup>e</sup> wife wil not folowe me? And he sayde vnto me: The Lorde (before who I walke) wil sende his angel with the, & prosper thy iourney, y<sup>e</sup> thou shalt take a wyfe for my sonne, of my kynred and of my fathers house. But and yf (when thou comest vnto my kynred) they wil not geue the one, thā shalt thou beare no parell of myne oothe.

And I came this daye vnto y<sup>e</sup> well, & sayde: O Lorde, the God of my master

Abraham, yf it be so y<sup>e</sup> thou makest my iourney whiche I go, prosperous: behold, I stande by this well of water, & when a virgin cometh forth to drawe water, & I saye to her: geue me a lytle water of thy picher to drinke, and she saye againe to me: drinke thou, and I wyll also drawe water for thy camels: that same is the wyfe whome the LORDE hath prepared for my masters sonne. Prospered the Journey

And before I had made an ende of speakinge in myne harte: beholde, Rebecca came forth, & hyr pytcher on hyr shoulde, & she wet doune vnto y<sup>e</sup> well & drew. And I sayde vnto her: geue me drinke. And she made hast, & toke doune hyr picher fro of hyr shoulde, & sayd: drinke, and I wyll geue thy camels drinke also. And I dranke, & she gaue y<sup>e</sup> camels drinke also. And I asked her, saying: whose doughter art thou? And she answered: the doughter of Bathuel Nahors sonne, whom Myca bare vnto him. And I put the earng vpon hyr face and the bracelettes vpon hyr handes. And I bowed my selfe, and worshipped the Lorde, and blessed y<sup>e</sup> Lord God of my master Abraham, which had brought me the right waye, to take my masters brothers doughter vnto hyr sonne. Nowe therfore yf ye wyll deale mercifully and truly with my master, tell me: and yf not, tell me also: that I maye comen me to the ryghte hande or to the lefte. Now Tell me if you will

Then answered Laban and Bathuel, saying: The thing is proceded euem out of y<sup>e</sup> Lorde, we can not therfore say vnto the, ether good or bad: beholde Rebecca before thy face, take her and goo, and let her be thy masters sonnes wyfe, euen as the Lorde hath said. And when Abrahams seruaunt hearde theyr wordes, he bowed hym selfe vnto the Lorde, flatte vpon the erth. And the seruaunte toke forthe iewelless of syluer and iewelless of golde and raimente, and gaue them to Rebecca: but vnto hyr brother, and to hyr mother, he gaue spyces. And he lyfte vp his eyes and loked, and beholde the camels were coming. And Rebecca lyft vp hys eyes, and whē she sawe Isaac, she lighted of the camel, and sayd vnto the seruant: what man is this that cometh agaynst vs in the felde? And the seruant sayde: it is my master. And thē she toke hys mantell, and put it about her. And the seruant tolde Isaac al that he had done. # Isaac, Jacob Got Genesis, the Blessing Fol. xliii.

Had to catche venyson, and to brynge it, the spake vnto Jacob her sonne, sayinge: Beholde, I haue herde thy father talking with Esau thy brother, & sayinge: bring me venison & make me meate, & I may eate & blesse the before the Lorde yet I dye. Nowe therefore my sonne heare my voyce, in that which I commaunde the: get the to the flocke, and bring me thence two good kyddes, & I wil make meate of them for thy father, such as he loueth. And thou shalt bryge it to thy father, and he shall eate, that he maye blesse the before hys death.

Then sayde Jacob to Rebecca hys mother: beholde, Esau my brother is toughe, and I am smooth. My father shal perauenture fele me, & I shal seme vnto hym as though I went about to begyle hym, & so shal he bryng a curse vpon me, & not a blessinge: & his mother sayd vnto hym: vpon me be thy curse my sonne, onely heare my voyce, & go & fetche me the. And Jacob went and fet them, & broughte them to hys mother.
And hys mother made meate of the, ac-cordinge as his father loued. And she wet & fet goodly rayment of her eldest sone Esau, which she had in y<sup>e</sup> house w her, & put the vpon Jacob her yongest son, & she put y<sup>e</sup> skynnes vpon his handes, & vpon the smothe of hys necke. And she put the meate & breade whiche she had made in the hande of her sonne Jacob.

And he went in to hys father, sayinge: my father. And he answered: here am I: who art thou my sonne? And Jacob sayde vnto hys father: I am Esau thy eldest sonne, I haue done accordinge as thou baddest me: bp & spt, & eate of my venyson, that thy soule may blesse me.
But Isaac sayde vnto his sonne: how cometh it y<sup>e</sup> thou hast founde it so quicly my sonne? He answered: The Lorde thy God brought it to my hande. Then said Isaac vnto Jacob: come nere & let me fele the my sonne, whether thou be my sonne Esau or not. Then went Jacob to Isaac his father, & he felte him, and sayd: the voyce is Jacobs voyce, but the handes are the handes of Esau.
And he knewe hym not, bycause hys handes were rough as hys brother Essaus handes: and so he blessed hym.

And he axed him: art thou my sonne

Esau: And he sayde: that I am. Then sayde he: brynge me & let me eate of my sonnes venison, & my soule maye blesse the. And he brought hym, & he ate. And he brought him wine also, & he dranke.
And hys father Isaac sayd vnto hym: come nere, & kysse me my sonne. And he wet vnto him & kysed hi. And he smelled the sauoure of hys raymente, and *blessed hym, and sayde: See, the smell of my sonne is as the smell of a felde

As sone as Isaac had made an ende of blessing, Jacob was scarce gone out from the presence of Isaac his father: then came Esau hys brother from his hunting, & had made also meate, and brought it vnto hys father, and sayde vnto him: arise my father, & eate of thy sonnes venyson, & thy soule may blesse me. Then hys father Isaac sayde vnto hym: who art thou? he answered: I am thy eldest sonne Esau. And Isaac was greatly astonied out of mesure, & sayde: Where is he then y<sup>e</sup> hath hunted venyson and broughte it me, & I haue eate of al before thou camest, and haue

When Esau herde the wordes of hys father, he cried out greatly and bitterlye aboue measure, and sayd vnto hys father: blesse me also my father. And he sayd: thy brother came with subtilte, &

The Notes.

Blesse. a. To blesse here, is to wysh good, or to pray to God for hym.
Curse. b. There be two maner of curses vsed in scripture. The one is in the soule that pertaineth to the soule, as sinne & wickednes. And that other to the body, as all temporal miseries & wretchednes. As in ge. iii. c. Deu. xxi. a.
Dewe. c. By this worde dewe, is vnderstand of the Bezels, al that is in the firmament & comforteth the erth, as the sunne, the moone, rayne, & temperatnes of weether. As by the fatnes of the earth they vnderstande all that is brought forth beneth in the earth. As Exod. xvi. d and. Num. xi. b.
By come and wine, is vnderstande abundance of all temporal thynges.

Jacob stode by erly in the mornynge, & toke the stone that he had layde vnder his head, & pitched it vp an ende, and poured oyle on the toppe of it. And he called the name of the place Bethell, for in dede þe name of þe cite was called Lus before tyme. And Jacob bowed a bowe, saying: If God wil be w me, & wyl kepe me in this iourne which I

Jacob. Genesis. Fol. xvi.

Jacob. of the sheep
 He sayde to Laban: Sende me away & I may go vnto myne owne place & cōtte.
 By y<sup>e</sup> geue me my wyues & my children (for whom I haue serued the) & let me goo: for thou knowest what seruyce I haue done the. Chan sayd Laban vnto him:
 If I haue founde fauour in thy syght (for I suppose that the Lorde hathe blessed me for thy sake) appoynt what thy reward shalbe, & I wyl geue it the.
 But he sayde vnto hym: thou knowest what seruice I haue done & in what takynge thy cattell haue bene vnder me: for it was but litel that thou haddest before I came, and nowe it is en-creased into a multitude, and the Lorde hath blessed the for my sake. But nowe when shal I make prouisyō for myne own house also. And he sayd: what shal I then geue the: and Jacob answered: thou shalt geue me nothyng at al, yf I wylt do this one thyng for me: & then wyl I turne agayne, & fede thy shepe and kepe them.

I wyl go aboute all thy shepe thys daye, & seperat from them all the shepe that are spotted & of dyuerse coloures, & al the blacke shepe among the lambes, and the partye, and the spotted among the kyddes: & the same shal be my rewards. So shal my b<sup>r</sup>ight wyues an-swere for me: when the tyme cometh that I shal receaue my reward of the:
 so & what so euer is not speckeled and partie amōge & goot, & blacke among the lambes, let that be theite with me.
 Chan sayde Laban: Loo, I am contēt, that it be according as thou hast said.
 And he toke oute that same daye & he gootes that were partie and of diuerse coloures & al the she gootes that were spotted, & partie coloured, & al that had whyte in the, & al the blacke amonge & lambes: and put them in the keepynge of hys sonnes, and set thre dayes iourney betwyxte him selfe and Jacob. And so Jacob kept the rest of Labans shepe.

Jacob toke rodde of grene popular, hase & of chestnottreces, & pylled whyte strakes in the, & made the white apere in the staues: And he put the staues whiche he had pylled, euen before & shepe, in the gutters & watering troughes, when the shepe came to drynke: that they shoulde conceaue when they came to drynke. And the shepe conceaued before the staues, & brought forth strak-ked, spotted and partye. Chan Jacob parted the lambes and turned the faces of the shepe toward & spotted things, & toward al maner of blacke thing: thorow out the flockes of Laban. And he made him flockes of his own by the selfe which he put not vnto the flockes of Laban. And alway the first bucking tyme of the shepe, Jacob put the staues before the shepe in the gutters, that they myghte conceaue before the staues: But in the latter buckynge tyme, put them not there: So the laste brode was Labans, and the firste Jacobs.

 And the man became exceedinge ryche, and had manye shepe, maydeseruauntes, menseruauntes, camels and asses.

The xxxi. Chapter.

At the commaundement of God, Jacob departed fro Laban, & toke his goibes with him. Rahel stealeth hys fathers ymagis. Laban followeth Jacob. The con-ueniant betwene Laban and Jacob.

And Jacob hearde the wordes of Labans sonnes howe they sayde: & Jacob hathe taken awaye al that was oure fathers, and of oure fathers goodes hathe he gotten all thys ho-noure. And Jacob behelde the countenaunce of Laban, that it was not to-warde hym as it was in tymes past.
 And & Lorde sayd vnto Jacob: turne agayne into the lande of thy fathers and to thy kynred, and I wyl be with thee. Chan Jacob sente and called Rahel & Lea to the felde vnto hys shepe, and sayd vnto them: I se your fathers countenaunce, that it is not toward me as in tymes past. More ouer the God of my father hath bene with me. And ye know how that I haue serued your father with all my myght. And youre father hath disceaue me, & chaunged

For in buckyng tyme I lyfted vp myne eyes and sawe in a dreame, & beholde, the rāmes þ bucked the shepe were straked, spotted & partie. And the angell of God spake vnto me in a dreame, sayinge: Jacob. And I answered: here am I. And he sayd: lyfte vp thyne eyes, & se, howe al the rāmes that leape vpon the shepe are straked, spotted and partye: for I haue sene all that Laban doth vnto the. I am þ God of Bethel where thou anoyntest the stone, & wher thou bowedst a bowe vnto me. Nowe arys & get the out of this couēte, and retorne vnto þ lād wher þ wast borne.*

*Chan answered Rahell and Lea, & sayde vnto hym: we haue no parte nor inheritaunce in oure fathers house, he counteth vs euen as straungers, for he hath solde vs, & hath euen eaten vp the price of vs. Moreouer all the ryches which God hath takē frō our father, þ is ours & our childres. Nowe therfore what soener God hath sayde vnto the, þ do. Chan Jacob rose vp, and set his stones & wyues vp vpo camels, & caried away all his catell and all hys substance which he had gottē in Mesopotamia, for to goo to Isaac his father vnto þ lande of Canaan. Laban was gone to there his shepe, & Rahell had stolē her fathers & ymages. And Jacob stole awaye the hert of Laban þ Siritan, in þ he tolde hym not þ he fled. Chan went Laban in to Jacobs tente, & into Leas tente, & into. ii. maydens tentes: but founde them not. Then wēt he out of Leas tente, & entred into Rahels tente. And Rahel toke the ymages & put the in the camels strawe, and sate downe vpo them. And Laban serched all the tēte: but founde them not. Thus haue I bene. xx. yere in thy house, and serued the * xliii. yeres for thy. ii. doughters, and vi. yere for thy shepe, & thou hast chaged my rewarde x. tymes. And except the God of my father, the God of Abraham, and y God whose Isaac a feareth had bene w me: surely y haddest sent me awaye now al emptie. But God behelde my tribulation, and y laboure of my handes: and rebuked the yesterdape.

Laban answered and sayde vnto Jacob: the doughters are my doughters, & the children are my childre, & the shepe are my shepe, & all that thou seist is myne. And what can I do this daye vnto these my doughters, or vnto their children which they haue bozner. Now therfore come on, let vs make a boðe, I and thou together, & let it be a wytnesse betwene the and me. Then toke Jacob a stone, and set it by an ende, & sayde vnto his bzethre, gather stones. And they toke stones, & made an heape, and they ate there vpo the heape. And Laban called it Jegar Sahadutha, but Jacob called it Gilead.

Then sayde Laban: this heape be wytnesse betwene the & me this date (therfore is it called Gilead) and this totehyll which the Lord seeth (sayd he) be wytnesse betwene me and the when we are departed one fro another: that thou shalte not bere my doughters, ne ther shalt take other wyues vnto the. Here is no man with vs: beholde, God is wytnesse betwyte the and me. And Laban sayde more ouer to Jacob: beholde, this heape & this marke whiche I haue set here, betwixte me & the: this heape be wytnesse and also this marke that I wil not come ouer this heape to the, & y shalt not coe ouer this heape & this marke to do any harme. The god of Abraham, y God of Nahor, & the God of their fathers be iudge betwixte vs. And Jacob sware by him that hys father Isaac feared. Then Jacob dyd sacrifice vpon the mounte, and called his bzethzen to eate bread. And they ate bread and taried all nyghte in the hyll. And early in y mornynge Laban rose vp & kyssed his children and hys doughters, & blessed the & departed, & went vnto his place againe. But Jacob went forth on his iourney. And the angels of God came and met him. And when Jacob sawe them, he sayde: this is goddes hooft: and called y name of that same place, Mahanaim.

The notes. From y Jacobs saw that a feare is taken for honour. As afore in Genesis. xx. c.

The xxxii. Chapter.

The vision of the Angelles. Jacob sendeth presents vnto his brother Esau, howe he wrestled with the angell whiche chaunged his name and called him Israel.

Jacob sente messengers before him to Esau his brother, vnto the lande * of Scir and y felde of Edom. And he commaunded them, saying: se y ye speake after this maner to my lorde Esau: thy seruauit Jacob saith thus. I haue sojourned and ben a straunger with Laban vnto this time and haue gottē oxen, asses & shepe, mē seruantes and women seruantes, and haue sente to thewe it my lorde, that I maye synde grace in thy syghte. And y messengers came agayne to Jacob, sayinge: we came vnto thy brother Esau, and he commeth agaynst the and iiii. hūdrēd men w him. Thā was Jacob greatly afrayde, & wist not which waye to turne him selfe, and deuyded the people that was with him, and the shepe, oxen and camels, into. ii. compaynes, and saide: If Esau come to the one parte and smyte it, the other maye saue it selfe. I haue ben a sojournor a straunger.

And Jacob sayde: O god of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isaac: Lorde whiche saydest vnto me, * retorne vnto thy coultre, & to thy kinred, and I wil do all well with the. I am not worthy of y leaste of all y mercies & trueth whiche thou hast shewed vnto thy seruante. For w my staffe came I ouer this Iordane, and nowe haue I gotten. ii. droues. Delyuer me from the handes of my brother Esau: for I feare him: lest he wyll come and smyte, the mother w the childre. Thou saydest that thou wouldest surely do me good, and wouldest make my seed as y soude of the sea, whiche can not be nombred for multitude.

And he taried there that same nyght, & toke of that whiche came to hande, a presente vnto Esau hys brother.

Esau. Gilead

Laban called it Jegar Sahadutha, But Jacob called it Gilead. Laban this heap be wytnes betwene the and me. Laban sayd he be wytnes, thou shalt not bere me.

And he sayde: what meanest thou w

Let my lord therfore goo before his seruaunte, and I wyll dryue fayre and softly, accordynge as the cattell that goth before me and the children, be able to endure: vntyll I come to my lorde vnto Seir.

And Elau said: let me yet leaue some of my folke w the. And he sayde: what needeth it: let me fynde grace in the syghte of my lorde. So Elau went his waye agayne that same day vnto Seir. And Jacob toke his iourney towardes Sucoth, and bylt him an house, and made bootheres for his cattell: wherof y name of y place is called Sucoth. * And Jacob came peasably into the cytie of Sichem, in the lade of Canaan, after that he was come from Mesopotamia, and pitched before the cytie, * & bought a parcell of grounde where he pytched hys tent, of the children of Hemor Sichems father, for an hundred labes. And he made there an aulter, and there called vpon the myghtye GOD of Israell.

The. xxxiii. Chapter.

The ransomyng of Dina Jacobs doughter by the men of Sichem. And of the great bloude sheddynge done by the sonnes of Jacob.

Dina the doughter of Lea * whiche she bare vnto Jacob, went out to see y doughters of the lade. And Sichem the sonne of Hemor the Heuite lord of y countre, sawe her, and toke her, & a laye vnto her, & forced * her: & his harte lay on Dina the doughter of Jacob. And he loued that damsell and spake kyndlye vnto her, & spake vnto his father Hemor, sayinge: get me this mayden vnto my wyfe. And Jacob herde y he had defyled Dina hys doughter, but hys sonnes were with the cattell in y felde, and therfore he helde his peace, vntyll they were come. Then Hemor y father of Sichem went oute vnto Jacob, to comen w him. And y sonnes of Jacob came out of the felde as soone as they herde it, for it greued the, & they were not a lytle wroothe, because he had wrought folye in Israell, in y he had liuen w Jacobs doughter, whiche thinge oughte not to be done. And Hemor commelieth with them, saying: y soule of my sonne Sichem logeth for youre doughter: geue her him to wife, & make mariages w vs: geue your doughters vnto vs, and take out doughters vnto you, & dwel w vs, & the lande shall be at youre pleasure, dwell & do youre busynes, & haue your possessions there in. And Sichem said vnto hys father & hys brethre: let me fynde grace in your eyes, and what soeuer ye apoynte me, that wyl I geue. Are frely of me bothe the dowry and gyftes, & I wil geue accordynge as ye saye vnto me, and geue me the Damsel to wyfe. Such folly in hem.

Then the sonnes of Jacob answered to Sichem & Hemor his father decepter: fullpe, because he had defyled Dina their syster. And they sayde vnto them: we can not do this thinge y we shoulde geue out syster to one that is vncircumcysed, for that were a shame vnto vs. Onely in this wil we consent vnto you: If ye wyl be as we be, that all the men children amonge you be circumcysed, than wil we geue out doughter to you and take youres to vs, and wyl dwell with you, and be one people. But & yf ye wil not harken vnto vs to be circumcysed, than wyl we take out doughter and goo our wayes. And their wordes pleased Hemor: and Sichem his sonne. And the yonge man deferde not for to do the thinge, because he had a lust to Jacobs doughter: he was also moste set by of al that were in his fathers house. Than Hemor and Sichem went vnto the gate of their cytie, and commened with the men of their cytie, saying: these men are peasable with vs, & wyl dwell in the lande, & do their occupacio therin. And in the lande is rowme ynough for the, let vs take their doughters to wyues & geue them oures: onely herin wil they consente vnto vs for to dwell with vs, and to be one people: yf all the men children that are among vs be circumcysed as they are. Their goodes & their substance, and al their cattell are oures, onely let vs consent vnto them, that they maye dwell with vs. Jacob herde that they maye dwell with vs. Jacob for the sonne harkened al that went out at the gate of his cytie. and the sheper: and byng me worde agayne. And sent him out of the vale of Hebron, for to go to Sichem. And a certayne man founde hym, wandryng out of his waye in the felde, and axed him what he sought: And he answered: I seke my brethren, tell me I praye the where they kepe shepe. And the man sayde, they are departed hence, for I herde the say: let vs goo vnto Dothan. Thus went Joseph after his brethren, and founde them in Dothan.

And when they sawe him a farre of before he came at them, they toke counsel against him, for to sleigh him, and sayde one to another: Beholde, this dreame cometh: come now and let vs sleigh him, and cast him in to some pyte, and let vs say that some wycked beast hath deuoured hym, and let vs see what hys dreames wyll come to.

When Ruben herde that, he wente aboute to ryd hym out of their handes and sayde, let vs not kyll him. And Ruben sayde mozeouer vnto the, shede not his bloude, but cast him in to this pyte that is in the wyldernes, and laye no handes vpon him: for he woulde haue rydde hym out of their handes, and deliuered him to his father agayne.

And as soone as Joseph was come vnto his brethren, they stripte him out of his gay coote, that was vpon hym, and they toke him, and cast him in to a pyte: But the pyte was emptye and had no water therein. And they sat them downe to eate breade. And as they lifte vp theyr eyes and looked aboute, there came a compaignie of Ismaelites from Gilead, and their camels laden with spicery, bauline, and myrr, were goinge downe in to Egypte.

Chan sayde Juda to his brethren: what auayleth it that we sleigh our brother, and kepe his bloude secret: come on, let vs sell him to the Ismaelytes, and let not oure handes be deyled vpon him: for he is oure brother, and our fleshe. And his brethren were contente. Chan as the Madianites marchaunt men passed by, they drew Joseph oute of the pyte and solde him vnto the Ismaelytes for xx peces of syluer. And they brought him into Egypte.

to ppyt and founde not Joseph there, he rent his clothes and went agayne vnto his brethren, saying: ppyt is not ppyder: whether shal I goo? And they toke Josephs coote and kyled a goote, and dypped the coote in ppyt bloude. And they sent the gay coote and caused it to be broughte vnto their father, and said: This haue we founde: se, whether it be thy sonnes coote or no. And he knewe it, saying: it is my sonnes coote, a wycked beast hath deuoured him, and Joseph is rente in peces. And Jacob rent his cloother, and put sacke clothe aboute his loynes, and sorowed for his sonne a longe season. Chan came all his sonnes and all his doughters to comforte him. And he woulde not be comforted, but sayde: I wyll go doune in to the graue vnto my sonne, mournyng. And thus his father wepte for him. And the Madianytes solde him in Egypte vnto Putiphar a lord of Pharaos: and his chiefe marshal.

The notes. And his father Jacob moued a rentyng of clothes was specially vied among the Hebrewes, when the glorie of God was continued. As here, where they feared God so litle, as to kyll their owne brother.

The xxxviii. Chapter. Wil Go Downe

The maryage of Iuda. The trespass of Er & Onan, and the vengeance of god that came there vpon. Iuda laye with his daughter Chamarr. The byrthe of Phares and Zarah.

And it fortuneth at that time, that Judas wente from hys brethren, and gat him to a man called Hira of Modolam, and there he sawe ppyt doughter of a man called Sua a Canaanite. And he toke her and went in vnto her. And she conceived and bare a sonne and called his name Er. And she conceived agayne, and bare a sonne and called him Onan. And she conceived the thyrde tyme, and bare a sonne, whome she called Sela: and he was at Cheslyb when she bare him.

And Judas gaue Er hys eldest sonne a wyfe whose name was Chamarr. But this Er Judas eldest sonne was a wicked in ppyt syghte of the Lorde, wherefore the Lorde slewe him. Chan sayd Judas vnto Onan: goo in to thy brothers wyfe, and marie her: and styrt by seed vnto thy brother. And when Onan perceaued that the seed shoulde not be hys, therfore when he wente in to hys brothers wyfe, he spylled it on the ground, because he would not geue seed vnto his brother. And this whiche he did, displeased the LORD, wherfore he slew him also. Then sayde Juda to Thamar hys doughter in lawe: remaine a widowe at thy fathers house, tyll Sela my sonne be growne: for he feared, lest he shuld haue died alto, as his brethren did. Thus wet Tha-mar and dwelte in hys fathers house.

And in procelle of tyme, the dought-ter of Sela Judas wife, died. Then Judas when he had leste moynynge, wente vnto hys shepe shepers to Thymnath, with his frende Hira of Odollam. And one tolde Thamar, sayig: beholde, thy father in lawe goeth vp to Thymnath, to * there his shepe. And she put hir wi-dowes garmentes of from her, and co-uered her with a clooke, and dysgyfled trynge of Enaim whiche is by the hye wayes syde to Thymnath, for because she sawe that Sela was growne, and she was not geuen vnto him to wyfe.

When Juda sawe her, he thoughte it had bene an whoore, because she had couered hir face. And turned to her vnto the waye and sayd: come I pray the, let me lye with the, for he knewe not that it was his doughter in lawe. And she sayd: what wylte thou gyue me, for to lye with me? Then sayde he, I wyl sende the a kydd from the flocke. She answered: Than geue me a pledge tyll thou sende it. Then sayde he, what pledge shall I geue the? And she said: thy sygnet, thy bracelet, and thy staf-fe that is in thy hande. And he gaue it her, and laye by her, and she was with childe by him. And she gate her vp and wente and put her mantell from her, & put on hys wydowes rayment agayne.
And Judas sent the kydd by hys neighbour of Odollam, for to fetch out hys pledge agayne from the wyfes hande.
But he founde her not. Then asked he the men of the same place, sayinge: where is the whoore that sat at Enaim in the waye? And they sayde: there was no whoore here. And he came to Juda agayne, sayinge: I can not fynde her, and also the men of the place sayde: that there was no whoore there. And Juda sayde: let her take it to her, lest we be shamed: for I sente the kydd and thou couldest not fynde her.

And it came to passe that after .iii. monethes, one tolde Juda sayig: Tha-mar thy doughter in lawe hath played the whoore, and with playinge she whoore is become great with chylde. And Juda sayde: brynge her forth, and let her be brente. And when they broughte her forth, she sente to her father in lawe sayinge: by the man vnto whome these thinges pertaine, am I with chylde.
And sayde also: loke whole are this seall, bracelet, a this stafte. And Juda knewe the, sayig: she is more righteous than I, because I gaue her not to Sela my sonne. But he laye to her nomore.

When tyme was come she shoulde be deliuered, beholde, there was .ii. twynnes in hys wombe. And as she trauced, the one put oute hys hande, and the mydwife toke and bounde a reed threde aboute it, sayinge: this wyl come out fyrste. But he plucked hys hande backe agayne, and his brother came oute. And she sayd: wherfore hast thou brent a rent vpon the? and called him Pharez. And afterwarde came out his brother she had she reade threde about his hande, whiche was called zarah.

The. xxxix. Chapter. Monethes One

God prospereth Joseph. Pharaos wyfe tempteth him. Thamar he is accused & cast in prison. God hath mercy vpon him. Pray for

Joseph was broughte vnto Egypte, and Putiphar a lord of Pharaos: and his chefe marshall an Egyptian, boughte him of the Ismaelites, whiche brought him thither. And the Lord was with Joseph, and he was a luckye felowe and continued in the house of hys master the Egyptian. And his * master sawe that the Lord was with him, and that the Lord made all that he dyd prosper in hys hande: wherfore he founde grace in hys masters syghte, and serued hym. And hys master made him ruler of hys house, and put all that he had in hys hande.

And Thamar dysgyfled her self and the man seld, for she saw that Sela was growne, and she had not geuen to him

And he had, & the Lord blessed this Egyptias house for Josephs sake; and the blessing of the Lord was upon all that he had: bothe in the house and also in the feldes. And therfore he lefte all that he had in Josephs hand, & looked vpon nothyng that was with him, saue only on the breade whiche he ate. And Joseph was a goodly person & a wel fauored. And it fortunied after thys, & hys maisters wife cast her eyes vpon Joseph, & sayde: come lye with me. But he denyed & sayd to her: Beholde, my mayster woteth not what he hathe in the house w me, but hathe comytted all that he hath to my hāde. He him selfe is not greater in the house than I, and hath kept nothyng from me, but onely the, bycause thou art hys wyfe. How than can I do thys greate wyckenes, for to sinne agaynst God: and after this manner spake he to Joseph daye by daye: But he harkened not vnto her, to slepe nere her, or to be in her companye.

And it fortunied aboute the same season, & Joseph entred in to the house, to do hys busynes: & there was none of the household by, in the house. And she caughte him by the garment, sayinge: come slepe with me. And he lefte hys garment in her hande, & fled, and gotte him out. Whē he saw that he had left hys garment in her hande, & was fled out, he called vnto 5 men of the house, and tolde them, sayinge: Se, he hathe brought in an hebrewe vnto vs to do vs shame: for he came in to me, for to haue slepte with me. But I cryed with a lowde voyce. And when he hearde, & I lyfte vp my voyce & cryed, he left his garment with me, & fled away, and gotte hym out.

And she layed vp his garment by her, vntyl her lord came home. And she told hym accordyng to these wordes sayinge: Thys hebrewe seruante whiche thou haste brought vnto vs, came in to me, to do me shame. But as soone as I lyft vp my voyce and cried, he left his garment with me, and fled out. When hys master hearde 5 woordes of hys wyfe which she tolde him, sayinge: after this maner dyd thy seruante to me, he waxed wroothe.

And he toke Joseph and put hym in * prison: Such in the place where the kinges prisoners lay boūde. And there contynued he in pylsone, but the Lord was with Joseph, & shewed hym mercy, and gotte hym sauour in the sight of the keper of the pylson, whiche committed to Josephs hande, al the prisoners & were in the pylsone house. And what soeuer was doone there, that dyd he. And the keper of the prison looked vnto nothyng that was vnder his hande, bycause the Lord was with hym, and bycause that what so euer he dyd, the Lord made it come luckely to passe.

The. xl. Chapter. How then can I do?

Joseph expoundeth the dreames of the two prisoners.

And it chaunced after thys, that the chiefe butlar of the kynge of Egypte and hys chiefe baker had offēded their lord the kynge of Egypte. And Pharaos was angrye wyth them and putte them in warde in hys chiefe marshalls house: euen in the pylson where Joseph was boūde. And the chiefe marshall gaue Joseph a charge with them, and he serued them. And they contynued a season in warde. But he falsly accusyd them.

And they dreamed ether of them in olnyght: both the butlar and the baker of the kynge of Egypte, which were boūde in the pylson house, ether of the hys dreame, and eche mannes dreame of a sondrye interpretacion. When Joseph came in vnto them in the morninge, and looked vpon them: beholde, they were sadde. And he asked the sayinge: wherfore loke ye so sadly to daye?

They answered hym: we haue dreamed a dreame, and haue no man to declare it. And Joseph sayd vnto them. Interpretynge belongeth to God, but tell me yet. And the chiefe butlar told his dreame to Joseph, and sayd vnto him: In my dreame me thoughte there stode a byne before me, & in the byne were thre braunches, and it was as thoughe it budded, and her blossoms shotte forth: & the grapes thereof waxed ripe. And I had Pharaos cuppe in my hande, and toke of the grapes, and wrong the in to Pharaos cuppe, & deliuered Pharaos cup in to hys hande. And Joseph said vnto him, thys is y interpretacion of it.

And he had Pharaos cuppe in my hande, and toke of the grapes, and wrong the in to Pharaos cuppe, & deliuered Pharaos cup in to hys hande. And Joseph said vnto him, thys is y interpretacion of it.

How But Joseph was a lucky fellow and continued to find grace in the eyes of his master.

And he ouertoke them, and sayd the same wordes vnto them. And they answered hym: wherfore sayeth my lord such wordes? God forbyd, that thy seruantes shoulde doo so. Beholde, the money which we founde in our sackes mouthes, we broughte agayne vnto the, oute of the lande of Canaan: howe then shulde we steale out of my lordes house, ether syluer or golde: with whosoener of thy seruantes it be founde, let hym dye, and let vs also be my lordes bondemen. And Joseph bought al the lande of Egypte for Pharaos. For the Egyptians solde euery man his land, because y derth was soze vpon them: & so y land became Pharaos. And he appoynted the people vnto the cyties, from one syde of Egypte vnto the other: only the lande of the Priestes boughte he not. For there was on ordinaunce made by Pharaos for the prestes, y they should eate y whiche was appointed vnto the: whiche Pharaos had geuen them, where fore they solde not theyr landes. Joseph ly. th sick. He despyeth Ephraim and Manasses for hys sonnes and blesseth them.

After these dedes, tydynges were brought vnto Joseph, & hys father was sycke. And he toke with him his .ii. sonnes, Manasses and Ephraim. Then was it sayde vnto Jacob: beholde, thy sonne Joseph cometh vnto thee. And Israell toke hys strengthe vnto hym, and layde hy on the bedde, and sayde vnto Joseph: God almyghtye appeared vnto me at Lus in the lande of Canaan, & blessed me, and sayd vnto me: behold, I wyl make the growe and wyl multiply the, and wyl make a great number of people of the, and wil geue this lande vnto the and vnto thy seed after the vnto an everlastyng possession. Now therefore thy .ii. sonnes Manasses & Ephraim whiche were borne vnto thee before I came to thee, in to Egypte, shal bee myne: euen as Ruben & Symeon shall they be vnto me. And the chylde whiche thou gettest after them, shal bee thyn owne: but shal be called with the names of theyr brethre in theyr enheritaunces. And after I cam from Mesopotamia, Rachel dyed vpon my hand in the land of Canaan, by the way: when I had but a feld brede to go vnto Ephrat. And I buried her there i the waye to Ephrat which is now called Bethlehem.

And Israel behelde Josephs sonnes, and sayde: what are these? And Joseph sayde vnto his father: they are my sonnes, which god hath geue me here. And he sayd: bring them to me, and lette me blesse them. And the eyes of Israel were dimme for age, so that he could not wel see. And he broughte them to hym, and he kist them and embraced them. And Israell sayde vnto Joseph: I had not thoughte to haue sene thy face, and yet loo, God hath shewed it me and also thy seed. And Joseph toke them away from his lappe, and they fel on y ground before hym. Two sons that be mine

Then toke Joseph the booth: Ephraim in his right hande, towarde Israells leit hand, & Manasses in his leit hand, toward Israells right hande, & broughte them vnto him. And Israell stretched out his ryghte hande, and layde it vpon Ephraims head which was the yonger, and hys lyft hande vpon Manasses head, crossing his handes, for Manasses was the elder. And he blessed Joseph, sayng: God before whome my fathers Abraham and Isaac dyd walke, and the God which hath fedde me all my lyfe longe vnto thys daye. And the aungell whiche hath deliuered me fro all euell, blesse these laddes: that they maye be called after my name, and after my father Abraham and Isaac, and that they maye growe and multiplye vpon the earthe. *And. They dyd therfore a commaundment vnto Joseph, sayinge: thy father charged vs before his death, sayinge: This wyse say vnto Joseph, for geue (I pray the) þe trespass of thy brethren, & they synne: for they rewarded the euell. And note euery thyng earnestly, as thynges pertaining vnto thyne owne hert and soule.

For as God vsed him selfe vnto them of the olde testament: euen so shall he vnto the worldes ende vse him selfe vnto vs, which haue receyued his holyscripture, and the testymony of his sonne Iesus. As God doeth all thynges here for them that beleue his promyses, and herken vnto his commaundmentes, & with pacyence cleaue vnto hym, and walke wyth hym: euen so shall he do for vs, if we receyue the wytnesse of Christ with a stronge fayth, and endure paciently folowing his steppes. And on the other syde, as they that fell from the promise of God thoroyn vbeliefe, and from his lawe and ordinaunces, thoroyn impacyence of their owne lustes, were forsaken of God, and so perished: euen so shall we as many as do lyke wyse, and as many as moche wyth doctrine of Christ, and make a cloke of it to liue actly and to folowe our lustes, which haue receyued his

Note thereto how God is founde trewe at the last, and how when all is past remedy & brought into desperation: he then fulfylleth his promyses, and that by an abicte and a caste awaye, a despyed and a refused person, yea, and by a waye impossible to beleue. Strong faith In Iesus Christ &

The cause of all captiuitie of Goddes people is this. The world euer hateth them for their fayth and truste whiche they haue in God: but in bayne, tyll they fall from the fayth of the promyses, and loue of the lawe and ordinaunces of God, and put their trust in holy dedes of their owne fyndyng, and lyue altogether at their owne luste and pleasure wythout regarde of God, or respecte of their neyghbour. Then God forsaketh vs, and sendeth vs into captiuitie, for oure dishonouryng of his name, & despyse of our neyghboure. But the worlde persecuteth vs for oure fayth in Christe onely (as the people nowe doeth) and not for our wycked lpyng. For in his kyngdome thou maiest quietly and with patience, and vnder a protection: do whatsoeuer abominacyon thyne hert lusteth: but God persecuteth vs, by cause we abuse his holy testament, and by cause when we knowe the trueth we folowe it not.

Note also the myghty hande of the Lord, howe he plageth with his aduersaries, and prouoketh them, and spyrith them vp a lytle and a lytle, and deliuereth not his people in an houre that bothe the patience of hys electe, and also the worldly wit and wply policie of the wicked, toherby they do fight agaynst God, might appeare. Marke the longe sufferynge and softe patience of Moyses, and howe he loueth the people, and is euer betwene the wrath of God and the, and is redy to lyue and dye wryth them, and to be put out of the boke that God had wrytten for theyr sakes (as Paule for his brethren. Roma. ix.) and howe he taketh hys owne wronges patiently, and neuer auengerth him self. And make not Moyses a fygure of Christ wryth Rochester: but an ensample vnto all prynces, and to al that are in authoritie, how to rule vnto Goddes pleasure, and vnto theyr owne profyte. For there is not a perfecter lyfe in thys worlde, bothe to the honoure of God, and profit of hys neyghboure, nor yet a greater crosse, then to rule christiauly. And of Aaron also, se that thou make no fygure of Christ, vntyll he come vnto hys sacrifice: but an example vnto all preachers of Gods worde, that they adde nothyng vnto goddes worde, or take ought therefro. Mark also, howe God sendeth hys promise to the people, and Moyses confirmeth it with miracles, and the people beleue. But when temptation cometh, they fall into vnbeliefe and fewe byde standynge. When thou seest that al be not chriden that wyll be so called, and that p crosse repeth the true from the fapned, for yf the crosse weren not, Christ should haue dyscyples pnone. Whereof also thou seest, what an excellent gyfte of God true faith is, and impossyble to be hadde wrythout the spirite of God. For it is aboute all naturall power that a man in tyme of temptation when God scourgeth hym, shoulde beleue the goodlye, how that God loueth him, and careth for him, and hath prepared all good thynges for hym, & that, that scourginge is an earnest that God hath electe and chosen him.

Mark howe ofte Moyses styred them vp to beleue and truste in God, puttynge them in remembrance alwaye in tyme of temptation, of the miracles & wōdres that God hath wrought before tyme in theyr eyesight. Howedyligently also forbyddeth he all that myghte wrythdrawe theyr hertes from God: to put ought to Goddes worde, to take ought from it, commaundyng to do that onely that is right in the syghte of the Lorde, that they shoulde make no maner ymage, to knele downe before it: yea, that they shoulde make none aultare of hewed stone, for feare of ymagines, toster the heathen Idolatryes vnterly, & to destroy theyr Idollies, and cutte downe theyr groues where they worshipped, and that they shoulde nor take the daughters of them vnto theyr sonnes, nor gyue theyr daughters to the sonnes of the, and that whosocuer moued any of theym to worshyppe false Goddes, howesocuer yf he of hymne he were, they muste accuse hym, & bringe him to death, yea, and wher soeuer they heard of man, woman, or cytie, that worshipped false Goddes, they shoulde slea them, and destroy the cytie for euer, and not buyde it agayne, and all because they shoulde worshyp nothyng but God, nor putte confidence in any thyng, save in his worde.

Yea, and how warneth he to beware of witchcraft, sorcery, enchaunement, uiccomanye, & all craftes of the Dewyll, and of dreamers, soothsayers, & of miracle doers to destroye the worde, and that they shoulde suffer none suche to lyue.

Thou wylte hapely sape, they tell a man the truth. What then? God wyll that we care not to knowe what shall come. He wyll haue vs to care onely to kepe his commandementes, and to comytte all chaunces vnto him. He hath promysed to care for vs, and to kepe vs from all yll. All thynges are in his hande, he can remedye all thynges, and wyll for his truely sake, if we praye hym. In hys promyses onely wyll he haue vs trust, and there rest and to seke no farther.

Howe also doeth he prouoke theym to loue, euer rehercyng the benefites of God done to the already, and the godly promyses p were to come. And howe goodlye lawes of loue geueth he, to helpe one another, and that a man shoulde not hate his neyghbour in his hert, but loue hym as hymselfe, Leviticus. xix. And what a charge geueth he in euery place, ouer the pore and nedye, ouer the straunger, frendlesse and widowes? And when he despyeth to shewe mercey, he reherceth with all, the benefites of God done to them at their nede, that they might se a cause at the least way in God to shewe mercey of verie loue vnto their neyghbours at their nede.

Also there is no law so symple in appaunce thowout the fyue bookes of Moyses, but that there is a great reason of the making thereof, yf a man seache dyligently. As that a man is forbydd to seeth a kynde in hys mothers mylke, moueth vs vnto compassion, and to be pitifull. As doeth also that a man shoulde not offer the fyre of damme and the yong both in one day, Leviticus. xxi. For it myghte seme a cruell thyng, in as muche as his mothers mylke is as it were hys bloude, wherefore God wyll not haue hym sodde therin: but wyll haue a man shewe curtesy, vpon the very beastes. As in another place he commaundeth that we mofell not the ore that treadeth out the corne (whiche maner of threthyng is vled in the hote countreys) and that because we shoulde muche rather to be liberall & kynde vnto men that do vs seruice. Or happye God woulde haue none suche wanton meate vled amonge hys people. For the kynde of it selfe is nouryng, and the geotes mylke is restura-tyue, and bothe toggyther myghte be to rancke, & therefore forbydden, or some other lyke cause ther was.

Of the ceremonies, sacrifices, and tabernacle, wryth al his glorie and pompe, vnderstande that they were not permitted onely but also commaunded of God, to lead the people in the shadowe of Moyses and yfght of the olde testament, vntyll the lycht of Christe and daye of the newe testament were come. As children are ledde in the phantasies of youth vntyll the discretion of manlye age become vpon them. And all was done to kepe them from Idolatry. The tabernacle was ordeigned to the intent they myght haue a place appoynted theym to do their sacrifices openly in the syght of the people, and namelpe the priestes whiche waited thereon: that it myghte be seene that they byd all thynges accordynge to Goddes worde, and not after the ydolatre of their owne Imagination. And the costelynesse of the Tabernacle, and the beautye also pertayning therunto, that they shoulde sende thyng among the heathen, but that they shoulde se thynges more beautifull at home, because they shoulde not be moued to folowe them.

And in lyke maner, the dyuersitee of thynges of sacrifice and ceremonies was to occupy theyr sacrefices and ceremonies was to occupy theyr lastly Note also the Myghty hande of the Lord, D. iiii. How God Rayes wth his Arrowes and prouoketh them by sithers and Cords Not his People In an Honor that Both the Patience of his Elect, & the Rage of the wicked whorowith they fight against him.

The prologe.

Myndes, that they should haue no lust to folowe the heathen: And the multiplyd of thein was, that they should haue so much to do in keepyng them, that they should haue no leasure to ymagyn or ther of their owne: yea, and that Goddes worde myght be by in al that they dyd, that they might haue their fapth and trust in God, whiche he can not haue that foloweth eyther hys owne inuencions, or tradicions of mennes makynge withoute Goddes worde.

And the olde testament was buyde altogether upon the keepinge of the lawe and ceremonies, and was the rewarde of keepyng them in this lyfe onely, and reached no farther then thys lyfe and this world. As thou readest Leuiticus. xxi. A man that doeth them shall lyue therein, whiche reuerse Paule rehearseth. Roma. x. and Galathians. iii. That is, he that keepeth them, shall haue his lyfe glorious, accordyng to all the promyses and blessinges of the lawe, and shall auoyde both all temporall punishmentes of the lawe, and all the threatenynge and cursynge also. For neyther the lawe euen of the ten commaundmentes, nor yet the ceremonies, iustified in the herte before God, or purified vnto the lyfe to come. In so muche that Moses at his deathe, euen fourty yeres after the lawe and ceremonies were geuen complayneth, saying. God hath not geuen you an hert to vnderstande, no eyes to see, no eares to heare vnto this day. As who should haue sayd. God hath geuen you ceremonies, but ye knowe not the vse of them, and hath geuen you a lawe, but God hath not wyrtren it in your hertes.

Wherfore scrueyth the lawe then, yf it geue vs no power to do the lawe? Paule answereth the, that it was geuen to vtter synne onely, and to make it appeare. As a corosie is layed vnto an olde soze, not to heale it, but to spere it vp, and make the disease alpye, that a man myghte seele in what teoperdepe he is, and howe myghte dearely and not auare, and to make a waye vnto a healyng plaster.

Euen so, sayeth Paule. Gala. iii. The lawe was geuen by cause of transgression, (that is to make the synne alpye, that it myght be felte and sene) vntill the seele came vnto whome it was promysed, that is to saye, vntill the chyldren of fapth came, or vntill Christ that seele in whom God promysed Abraham, that al nacions of the worlde should be blessed, came.

That is, the lawe was geuen to vtter synne, deathe, damnacion, and curse, and to dryue vnto Christ, in whome forgiveness, lyfe, iustifyinge, & blessinges were promysed, that we myghte se to great loue of God to vs warde in Christ that we henceforthe ouercome wyth hyndnesse, myghte loue a gayne, and of loue kepe the commaundmentes.

Now be that goeth aboute to quier hys conscience, And to see to a trygher sight Thro them to Christ and panyng the Lawe, And the Tabernacle was to shew the place of Gods dwellinge; and not Affor the Idolatrous ymagination of men.

science, and to iustifie him selfe with the lawe, doeth but heale his woundes wyth treapynge crofets. And he goeth aboute to purchase grace wyth ceremonies: doeth but sucke the ale poole to quench his thyrst, in as muche as the ceremonies were not geuen to iustifie the herte, but to signifie the iustifyinge, and forgiveness that is in Christs bloude. Destroy al mon women.

Of the ceremonies that they iustifye not, thou readest Hebrues. x. It is impossible that synne should be done awaye with the bloude of open, and gotes. And of the lawe thou readest Gala. iii. If there had bene a lawe geuen that could haue quickned or geue lyfe: then had eyghtuousnes or iustifyinge come by the lawe in dede. Now the lawe not onely quickneth not the hert, but also wounderth it with conscience of sinne, and ministereth deathe and damnacion vnto hys. ii. Corinthians. iii. so that the must neades dye and be dampned, excepte they fynde other remedye. So farre it is of þe is iustified or holpen by þe lawe.

The new testament is those euerylastyng promyses whiche are made vs in Christe the lawe thorothe oute all the scripture. And that Testament is buyde on fapth, and not on workes.

For it is not sayd of that Testament. He that worketh shall lyue: but he that beleueth shall lyue. As thou readest. John. iii. God so loued the worlde, that he gaue hys onely begotten sonne, that none that beleue in hym should perishe, but haue lyfe euerylastyng.

And when thys Testament is preached and beleued, the spirite entereth the herte, and quickeneth it, and geueh it lyfe, and iustifieth hys. The spirite also maketh the lawe a lyuely thing in the herte, so that a man bypnygeth for the good workes of hys owne accord withoute compulsion of the lawe, without feare of threatenynge, or cursynge: yea, and without all maner respect or loue vnto any temporall pleasure, but of þe ryte power of the spirite, receiued thorothe fapth, as thou readest. John. i. He gaue them power to be the sons of god, in þe they beleued on his name.

And of that power they worke, so that he whyche hath the spirite of Christe, is now no more a chyld: he neyther learneth nor worketh anye longer for payne of the rodde, or for feare of bugges or pleasure of apples, but doeth all thynges of hys owne courage. As Christ sayth. John. vii. He that beleueth on me shall haue ryuers of lyuynge waters flowyng out of his bealy. That is all good workes, and al gyftes of grace springe oute of hym, naturallpe, and by therynne accorde. Thou needest not to wryet good workes out of hym, as a man would wryng veruure oute of crabbes. Nay they flow naturally out of him, as springes out of rockes. And I should haue boasted.

The newe Testament was euer euen frome the begynnyng of the world. For there were alwayes promyses of Christe to come, by fapth in whiche promyses, the electe were then iustified inwardely before God, as outwardly before the worlde, by keepyng of the lawe and ceremonies.

And in conclusion, as thou seest blessinges or cursynge foloweth the breakinge or keepyng of the lawe of Moses: euen so naturally do the blessinges or cursynge foloweth the breakinge or keepyng of the lawe of nature, out of whiche springe all out temporall lawes. So that when the people kepe the temporall lawes of therynne, temporall prosperitie, and all maner of such temporall blessinges as thou readest of in Moses, do neede.

Th. 4. Ho is Perswaded will come upon him But on the contrary that frogges shall come vpon the, and on thy people, and vpon all thy seruantes. *And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saye vnto Aaron: stretche forth the thyne hande with thy rodde ouer the streames, riuers and pondes. And bring vp frogges vpon the lande of Egypte. And Aaron stretched his hande ouer the water of Egypt, and the frogges came vp and couered the lande of Egypte. And y sorcerers did lykewyse wyth their sorcery, and the frogges came vp vpon y lande of Egypte. Then Pharaos called for Moses and Aaron, and sayde: * praye ye vnto the Lorde that he may take away the frogges from me and from my people, and I wyll let the people go, that they maye do sacrifice vnto the Lorde. And Moses sayd vnto Pharaos: Appoynte thou the tyme vnto me, when I shall praye for thee, and thy seruantes, and thy people, to dryue away the frogges from thee and thy house, so that they shall remaine but in the ryuer onelye. And he sayde: to morowe. And he sayde: euen as thou hast sayde, that thou maiest knowe that there is none lyke vnto the Lorde our God. And the frogges shall departe from thee, and from thyne houses, and frome thy seruantes, and frome thy people, and shall remayne in the ryuer onelye. And Intercossion Ascribing It to the Lorde. And Moses and Aaron went out fro Pharaos, and Moses cryed vnto y Lorde vpo the appoyntmet of frogges which he made vnto Pharaos. And the Lorde dyd accordynge to the sayinge of Moses. And the frogges dyed oute of the houses, courtes and fyeldes. And they gathered theym together vpon heapes: so that the lande stanke of them. But when Pharaos sawe that he had rest gyuen hym, he hardened hys herte and herkened not vnto them, as y Lorde had sayde. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: saye vnto Aaron stretche oute thy rodde and smyte the dust of the land that it may turne to luse in al the lande of Egypte. And they dyd so. And Aaron stretched oute hys hande wyth hys rodde, and smote the duste of the earth, and it tourned to luse bothe in man and beaste, so that all the duste of the lande tourned to luse, thozow out al the lande. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses: Go vnto Pharaos & tell hym, thus sayeth the Lorde: * let my people go, that they maye serue me. If thou wylte not let theym go: beholde, I wyll smyte all thy lande wyth frogges. Then said the enchaunters vnto Pharao: it is the a fygure of God. Neuer the later Pharaos hert was hardened and he * regarded them not, as the Lorde had sayde.

And the lorde sayde vnto Moses: rise vp early in the mornynge, & stande before Pharao, for he wil come vnto the water: and saye vnto him, thus sayeth the Lorde: let my people go, that they maye serue me. If thou wylte not let my people goo, beholde, I wyl sende all maner fyes both vpon the and thy seruauntes, and thy people, and into thy houses. And the houses of the Egypciens shall be full of fyes, and the grounde where on they are. But I wyl seperate the same daye the lande of Gosan where my people are, so that there shall no fyes be there: that thou mayest knowe that I am the Lord vpon the erth. And I wyl put a deuision betwene my people and thyne. And euē to morowe shall this myracle be done.

And the Lorde dyd euen so: and there came noysome fyes into the house of Pharao, and into his seruauntes houses and in to all the lande of Egypt: so that the lande was marred with fyes. Then Pharao sent for Moses & Aaron, and said: Go and do sacrifice vnto your God in the lade. And Moses answered: it is not mete so to do. For we must offer vnto the Lorde oure God, & whiche is an abominaciō vnto the Egipcians: beholde, shall we sacrifice that whiche is an abomination vnto the Egipcians before their eyes, & shall they not stone vs? we wyl therfore goo. iiii. dayes iournay into the deserte and sacrifice vnto the Lorde oure * God as he hath commaunded vs.

thou hast in the felde. For vpon all the men and beastes whiche are founde in the felde, and not broughte home, shal the hayle fall, and they shall dye. And as many as feared the word of y<sup>e</sup> Lord tes of his seruantes, that I myghte shewe these my signes amongst them, and that thou tell in the audience of thy sonne and of thy sonnes sonne, the pageantes which I haue played in Egypte, and the miracles whiche I haue done amonge the: that ye maye knowe howe that I am the Lorde. Then Moses and Aaron wente in vnto Pharao, and sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth the Lorde God of the Hebrewes: how longe shal it be or thou wilt submit thy selfe vnto me? * Let my people goo, y they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let my people goo: beholde, to morowe wyl I brynge grethoppers into thy lande, & they shal couer the face of the erth, that it can not be sene, and they shal eate the resydewe whiche remaineth vnto you & is escaped the hayle: and they shal eate all youre grene trees vpo the felde, and they shal fyl thy houses, and all thy seruantes houses, and the houses of all the Egipcians after such a maner: as nether thy fathers, nor thy fathers fathers haue sene, sence y tyme they were vpo the erth vnto this day.

And he turned him selfe aboute, and wente out from Pharao.

And Pharaos seruantes said vnto him: Howe longe shall we be thus euel intreated? Let the men goo, that they maye serue the Lorde their God: wylte thou not yet knowe that Egypte is destroyed? And than Moses and Aaro were brought again vnto Pharao, and he sayde vnto them: Goo and serue the Lorde youre God, but who are they that shall go? And Moses answered: we wyll go with yonge & olde: ye and with oure sonnes and with our doughters, and with oure shepe & oxen must we go. For we must holde a feast vnto the Lorde.

And he sayde vnto them: let it be so.
The Lorde be with you, shoulde I let you goo, and your children also: Take heede, for ye haue some myschiese in hande. Nay, not so: but goo ye that are men and serue the Lorde: for that was youre desyre. And they thruste them out of Pharaos presence.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Stretche out thynne hande ouer y lande of Egypte for grethoppers, that they come vpon the lande of Egypte and eate al the herbes of the lande, and al that the hayle leste vntouched. And Moses stretched forth his rod ouer y lande of Egypt: and the Lorde brought an east wynde vpon the lande, all that daye, and all y nyghte. * And in the mornynge, y east wynde broughte the grethoppers, and the grethoppers wet vp ouer all the lande of Egypte: and lyghted in all quarters of Egypte be-rye greuoulye: so that before them were there no suche grethoppers, nether after them shal be. And they co-uered all the face of the earth, so that the lande was darke therwith. And they ate al the herbes of the lande, and all the frutes of the trees, whyche the hayle had leste: so that there was no grene thing leste in the trees and her-bes of the felde thoroowe all the lande of Egypte. While the Lorde destroyed them all.

Then Pharao called for Moses and Aaron in haste, and sayde: I haue synned agaynst the Lorde youre God and agaynst you. Forgeue me yet my synne onely this once, * and praye vnto the Lorde your God, y he maye take awaye from me this death onely. And he went out fro Pharao, and prayed vnto the Lorde: & y Lorde turned the wynde into a myghtye stronge west wynde, and it toke awaye y grethoppers and cast the into y read sea: so y there was not one grethopper in all the collics of Egypte.
But the Lorde * hardened Pharaos harte, so that he would not let the children of Israel go. Hardned Pharaos

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Stretche out thy hade vnto heauen, & let there be darcknesse vpon the lade of Egypte: cuen that they maye seale the darcknesse. And Moses stretched forth his hande vnto heauen, and there was a thicke darcknesse vpon all y lande of Egyt. .iii. dayes longe, so that no man salwe another, nether rose vp from the place where he was by the space of .iii. dayes: but all y children of Israel had lyghte where they dwelled. Oh This Is a Dismapleague.

Then Pharao called for Moses, & sayde: goo and serue the Lorde, onely let your shepe, and youre oxen abyde, and let your childre go w you. And Moses answered: thou muste geue vs also

But the Lorde hardened Pharaos herte, so that he would not let them go. And Pharao sayde vnto him: get the from me, and take heade to thy selfe, & thou see my face nomore. For whensoever thou comest in my syght, & I shalthe die. And Moses said: Let it be as thou hast said, I will see thy face no more.

The Israelites come in to Raphidim. They grudge. Water is geuen them out of the Rocke. Moyses holdeth vp his handes, and they overcome the Amelechites.

And al y<sup>e</sup> company of the children of Israel went on their iourneys fro the wyldernesse of Sin, at the commaundement of the Lorde, and pytched in Raphidim: * Where was no water for the people to dryncke. And the people chode with Moyses, and sayde: geue vs water to dryncke. And Moyses sayde vnto them: Why chide you with me: and wherefore doo ye tempte the Lorde? There the people thyrsted for water, and murmured agaynst Moyses, and sayd: * wherefore hast thou brought vs out of Egypte, to kyll vs and our children and our cattel with thyrste. Wherfore

And Moyses cryed vnto the Lorde, Thou Brought saying: what shall I do vnto thys people? They be almoste redie to stone me. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: goe before the people, and take with thee of the elders of Israel: & thy rod wherewith thou smotest the riuier, take in thyne hande, and go: * Beholde, I wyl stonde there before the vpō a rocke in Horeb: And thou shalte smyte the rocke, and there shal come water out therof, y<sup>e</sup> the people maye dryncke. What shall I Doe Vnto

And Moyses dyd euen so before the elders of Israel. * And he called the name of the place: Massa and Meribah: bycause of the chydynge of the children of Israel, and because they tempted the Lorde, sayinge: Is the Lorde amonge vs or not? Stone the Builders

Then came Amelech, & fought with Israel in Raphidim. And Moyses said vnto Josua: chose out men, and fighte wyth Amelech. To moorowe I wyl stonde on the toppe of the hyll, and the rodde of God in my hande. And Josua dyd as Moyses badde hym, and fought wyth the Amelechites. And Moyses, Aaron and Hur, wente vp to the toppe of the hyll. And when Moyses helde vp his hande, Israel had the better. And when he lette his hande downe, Amelech had the better. Out came water & Blood

When Moyses handes were weery, they toke a stone and put it vnder him, and he satte downe there on. And Aaron and Hur staved vp his handes, the one on the one syde, & the other on the other syde. And his handes were stedie vntyll the Sunne was downe. * And Josua discomfeyted Amelech and his people with the edge of his swerde. With Israel all and

Methro the priest of Madia, Moses father in law, herd of al y God had done unto Moses, & to Israel his people, howe that the Lorde had broughte Israel out of Egypte. * And he toke ziphora Moses wyfe, after she was sent backe, and hir. ii. sonnes, of which the one was called Gerson, for he sayd: I haue bene an alvente in a sitaunge lande. And the other was called Eliazar: for the God of my father was myne helpe, and deliuered me from the swerde of Pharao. And Jethro Moses father in lawe came w his two sonnes & his wyfe unto Moses in the wylder: nes: where he had pitched histete by y mounte of God. And he sente worde to Moses: I thy father in law Jethro am come to the, & thy wyfe also, and her. ii. sonnes wyth her. And Moses wente out to mete his father in lawe and dyd obeysaunce and kyssed hym, and they saluted eche other and came into the tente. And Moses tolde hys father in law al y the Lord had done unto Pharao & to the Egyprians for Israels sake, and al the trauayle that had happened them by the waye, and howe the Lorde had deliuered the. And Jethro reioysed ouer all the good whiche the Lord had done to Israel, and bycause he had deliuered them out of the hand of the Egyprians. And Jethro sayde: blessed be y Lord whych hath deliuered you out of the hande of the Egyprians, and out of the hande of Pharao, whiche hath deliuered hys people frome vnder the power of the Egyprians. Now I know, that the Lorde is greater then al goddes, for because y they dealt proudly w the. And Jethro Moses father in lawe offred burnt offrynges & sacrifices vn to God. And Aaron & all the elders of Israel came to eate breade with Moses father in lawe before God. And it chaunced on the morowe, y Moses satte to iudge the people, and the people stode aboute Moses frome mornynge vnto euen. When his father in lawe sawe all that he dyd vnto the people, he sayde: What is thys, that thou doest vnto the people: why sittest thou thy self alone, & letttest al y people stonde aboute the from mornynge vnto euen: And Moses sayde vnto hys father in lawe: bycause y people came vnto me to seke counsell of God. For whē they haue a mater, they come vnto me, and I muste iudge betwene euey man and hys neyghboure, and must shewe them the ordynaunces of God, and hys lawes.

And his father in lawe sayde vnto hym: It is not well y thou doest. Thou doest vntwysely and also thys people y is with the: bycause y thing is to greuous for the * and thou art not able to doo it thy selfe alone. The children of Israel come to the mounte Sinai: the people of God are holy and a royal priesthode. He that toucheth the hyl dyeth. God appeareth vnto Moses vpon the mounte in thonder and lyghtnyng.

And the thyrde moneth, after the chylde of Israel were gone out of Egypt: the same daye they came into the wilderness of Sinai. * For they were departed fro Raphidim and were come in the desert of Sinay, and had pyched their tentes in the wylternesse. And there Israell pitched before the mounte. * And Moses wente vp vnto God. And the Lord called tohim out of y mountayne, sayig: thus say vnto y house of Jacob, & tell y chylde of Israel: Ye haue sene what I dyd vnto the Egyptians, and howe I toke you vp vpon Egles wynges, & haue brought you vnto my selfe. Nowe therfore * yf ye wyl heate my voyce, & kepe myne apoyntment: ye shalbe myne owne aboute all nacions for al the erth is myne. Ye shal be vnto me * a kyngdome of priestes, & an holye people: These are the woordes whiche thou shalte saye vnto the chylde of Israel. Thus say to the House of Jacob And Moses came and called for the elders of Israel, & layde before them al these wordes, whiche the Lorde hadde commaunded hym. And the people answered al together, and sayd: * Al that the Lorde hath sayde, we wyl doe. And Moses broughte the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde. And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: Lo, I wyl come vnto the in a thycke clowde, that the people maye heare whan I talke wyth thee, & also beleue the for euer. And Moses shewed the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Goe vnto the people & sanctifie the to day & to morow, & let them washe their clothes: That they maye be redye agaynst the thyrde day. For the thyrde daye the Lorde wyl come doune in the syghte of all the people vpon mounte Sinai. And set markes rounde about the people and say: beware, yf ye go not vp in to the mounte, and that ye touch not the borders of it * for whosoever toucheth the mounte, shall surely dye. There shall not an hande touche it, but that he shal either be stoned or els

And Moses wente doune from the mount vnto the people, and sanctified them, & they washed their clothes: And he sayde vnto the people: Be redye agaynst y thyrde day, & se that ye come not at youre wyues. And the thyrde daye in the mornynge there was thonder, & lyghtnyng, and a thicke clowde vpon the mount, & the voyce of y horne waxed exceedynge lowde, & al the people that was in the hoste was afrayed. * And Moses brought the people oute of the tentes to mete with God, & they stode vnder the hyl. Your wyues

And mount Sinai was all together on a smoke: bycause the Lorde descended down vpon it in fyre. And y smoke thereof ascended vp, as it had bene the smoke of a kille, and all the mounte was exceedynge fearfull. And y voyce of the horne blewe & waxed lowder & lowder. Moses spake, & God answered hym & that with a voyce. And y Lorde came doune vpon mounte Sinai, euen in the toppe of the hyl, and called Moses vp in the toppe of the hyl. And Moses went vp. One Eagles wings

And y Lord sayde vnto Moses: go doune, & charge the people that they prease not vp vnto the Lorde for to see hym, & so many of them perethe. And let y priestes also whiche come to the Lordes presence sanctifie the selues: lest y Lorde smite them. Then Moses sayd vnto the Lord: the people can not come vp in to the mounte Sinai, for thou chargedest vs, sayinge: set markes aboute y hyl, and sanctifie it. And the Lord sayd vnto him: awayne, & get the down: & come vp both y & Aaron with the. But let not y priestes and the people presume for to come vp vnto the Lorde: lest he smyte them. And Moses wente doune vnto the people, and tolde them. of God and his

Suche lyke laws as are in the chapter above.

Yf a man steale * an oxe or shepe, & kyl it or sel it, he shall restore .v. oxen for an oxe, & .iii. shepe for a shepe. If a there be founde breakinge vp, and be smitten that he dye, there shall no bloud be shed for hym: except the sunne be vp when he is founde, then there shall be bloude shed for hym.

A these shall make restitution: If he haue not wherewith, he shall be solde for hys theste. If the theste be founde in hys hande alpyue (whether it be oxe, asse or shepe) he shall restore double. If a mā do hurte felde or vyneyarde, so h he put in hys beast to fede in another mans felde: of the best of his own felde, and of the best of his owne vyneyarde, shall he make restitution.

If fyre breake oute & catche in the thornes, so that the stakes of corne or the standynge corne or felde be consumed therewith: he that kyndled the fyre shall make restitution.

If a man delyuer hys neyghbour money or stufte to kepe, & it be stolē out of his house: If the theste be founde, he shall paye double. If the theste be not founde, the y goodmā of the house shall be brought to the * goddes and swere; whether he haue putte hys hande vnto hys neyghbours good.

And thou shalt make an habitacio w ten curtaynes of twined bysse, a Jacyncte scarlet and purpull, & shalt make them with cherubyns of brodered worke. The lengthe of a curtayne shall be. xxviii. cubytes, and the bredth. iiii. and they shall be all of one measure: fyue curtaynes shall be coupled together one to another: and the other fyue lykewyse shall be coupled together one to another.

Then shalt thou make loupes of Jacyncte coloure, alonge by the edge of y one curtayne euen in the seluege of the coupling courtaine. And lykewise shalt thou make in the edge of y vtmost curtayne that is coupled therewith on y other syde. fyfity loupes shalt thou make in the one curtayne, and fyfity in the edge of the other that is coupled therewith on the other syde: so that the loupes be one ouer agaynste a nother. And thou shalt make fyfity buttons of golde, and couple the curtaynes together with the buttons: that it maye be an habitacion.

And thou shalt make. xi. curtaynes of gootes heare, to be a tete to couer y habitacio. The lengthe of a curtayne shall be. xxx. cubites, & the bredeth iiii. and they shall be all. xi. of one measure. And thou shalt couple. v. by the selues, and the other fyve by them selues, and shalt double the sixte in y fore fronte of y tabernacle. And thou shalt make fyfity loupes in the edge of y vtmost curtayne on the one syde: euen in y couplynge courtayne: and as manye in the edge of the couplynge curtayne on the other syde. And thou shalt make fyfity buttones of brasse and put them on the loupes, and couple the tent together with all, that there maye be one couerynge.

And the remnaunte that resteth in the curtaynes of the tente: euen the bredeth of halfe a curtayne y resteth, shall be leste on the backe sydes of y habitacion: a cubyte on the one syde and a cubite on the other syde, or that that remaineth in the lengthe of the curtaynes of the tabernacle, which shall remayne of ether syde of the habitacion to couer it with all.

And thou shalt make another couerynge for the tente of rams skynnes. dyed red: and yet another aboue all of taxus skynnes.

And thou shalt make bordes for the habitacion of sethim wod to stande by tyghte: ten cubytes longe shall euery borde be, & a cubyte & an halfe brode. Two tete shall one borde haue to couple them together with all, and so thou shalt make vnto all the bordes of the habitacion.

* And thou shalt make. xx. bordes for the habitacion on the south syde, and thou shalt make. xl. sockettes of siluer and put them vnder the. xx. bordes. ii. sockettes vnder euery borde, for theyz ii. tete. In lyke maner in y northe syde of the habitacion there shall be. xx. bordes and. xl. sockettes of syluer: two sockettes vnder euery borde.

And for the west ende of y habitacion, shalt thou make fyve bordes & two bordes mo for the two west corners of the habitacio: so y these two bordes be coupled together beneth and lykewyse aboue with clampes. And so shall it be in both the corners. And so there shall be. viii. bordes in al & xvi. sockettes of siluer. ii. sockettes vnder euery borde.

And thou shalt make barres of sethimwod, fyue for the bordes of the one syde of the tabernacle, and fyue for y other syde, and fyue for the bordes of the west ende. And the mydle barre shall go alonge thorow the middes of y bordes and barre them together from the one ende vnto the other. And thou shalt couer the bordes with golde and make golden ringes for them to put the barres thorowe, and shalt couer y barres with golde also. The consecration of Aaron and his sonnes.

This is the thing that thou shalt doo vnto the when þy halowest them to be my preastes. Take one ox & two rammes that are withoute blemyshe, and vbleuened breade & cakes of swete breade tempered with oyle & wafers of swete breade anointed with oyle (of wheten floure shalt thou make them) and put them in a maunde and bryng them in the maunde w the ox and the. ii. rammes.

And bryng Aaron and his sonnes vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witnesse, and washe them with water, and take the garmentes, and put vpon Aaron: the strayte cote, and the tuncle of the Ephod, and the Ephod and þy brestlappe: and girde the to him w the bordered gyrdell of the Ephod. And put þy mytre vpon his heed, and put the holye crowne vpon the mytre. Then take the anoynting oyle and poure it vpon his heed and anoynte him. And bryng his sonnes and put albes vpon them, and gyrd them with gyrdels: as wel Aarō as his sonnes. And put the bonettes on them that the preastes offyce maye be theirs for a perpetuall lawe.

And fyll the handes of Aarō and of his sonnes, and bryng the ox before the tabernacle of wytnesse. * And let Aaron and his sonnes put theyr handes

That aron beare the synne of handes vpon his head and kyl him before the Lorde in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse . And take of the bloude of the ore and put it vpon the hornes of the alter with thy finger and powre all the bloude vpon the botome of the alter, * and take all the fat y<sup>e</sup> couereth the inwarde, & y<sup>e</sup> cal that is on the lyuer and the. ii. kydneyes with the sprinkle their handes therin. And that sonne that is pceest in hys stede after hym, shall put them on seuen dayes: that he goe in to the tabernacle of wytnesse, to minister in the holy place.

* Then take the rāme that is y full the Ark of The altar of burnt offrynges. The brasen lauer. The summe of that y<sup>e</sup> people offered to the buyldyng of y<sup>e</sup> habitacion of the Loide.

38 And he made the burnt offryng alt<sup>r</sup> of * Sethim wodge fyue cubites longe and .v. cubites brode: euen foure square, & .iii. cubites hye. And he made hornes in the foure corners of it procedyng oute of it, and ouerlayde it with brasle. And he made all the vessels of the altar: the cauldrons, shouels, basyns, fleshhooks and colepannes all of brasle.

hazn And he made a brasen greddyren of net worke vnto the alter rounde aboute as lowe beneth vnder the compasse of the alter: so that it reached vnto halfe the altar, & cast foure rynge of brasle for the .iiij. endes of the greddyre to put staues in. And he made staues of Sethim wodge and couered them with brasle, & put the staues in the rynge a longe by the altar syde to bere it withall, & made the alter holowe with bordes. And he made the lauer of brasle and the fote of it also of brasle in the syght of thein that did watch befoze the doze of the tabernacle of wytnes.

all And he made the court with hangynges of twyned bysse of an hundred cubytes long vpon the south syde, and .xx. pylles with .xx. sockettes of brasle: but the knoppes of the pylles and the whopes were syluer. And on y<sup>e</sup> north syde the hangynges were an hundred cubytes longe with .xx. pylles and .xx. sockettes of brasle, but the knoppes and the whopes of the pylles were of syluer. And on the west syde, were hangynges of fyfte cubytes longe, and .x. pylles with their ten sockettes, and y<sup>e</sup> knoppes and the whopes of the pylles were syluer. And on the east syde towarde the sonne rysyng, were hangynges of fyfte cubytes: the hangynges of the one syde of the gate were tyftene cubites long, and their pylles .iiij. wth their .iiij. sockettes. And of the other syde of the court gate were hangynges also of .xv. cubytes lōg and their pylles .iiij. with .iiij. sockettes.

Nowe all the hangynges of the court rounde aboute, were of twyned bysse, & the sockettes of the pylles were brasle: but the knoppes and the whopes of the pylles were syluer, and y<sup>e</sup> heades were ouerlayde with syluer, and all the pylles of the court were whoped aboute wth syluer. And the hangynge of the gate of the court was nedle worke, of iacynthe, scarlet, purple, & twyned bysse .xx. cubytes long and fyue in the bredth, accordyng to y<sup>e</sup> hangynges of y<sup>e</sup> court. This is the summe of the habitacion of wytnesse, whiche was counted at the commaundemente of Moyses: and was the offyce of the Leuites by the hand of Jthamar sonne to Aaron the priest. And of v iacyncte, scarlet, purple & twyned bysle, they made the bestymentes of mynistracion to do seruite in that holy place, and made the holye garmentes that pertayned to Aaron, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And they made the Ephod of golde, iacinete, scarlet, purple, & twyned bysse.
And they dyd beate the gold into thynne plates, and cut it into wyres: to worke it in the iacinete, scarlet, purple and the byssse, wyth broderd worke. And they made the sydes come together, and closed them vp by the two edges. And the brodyngge of the gyrdell that was vp-on it, was of the same stuffe and after the same worke of golde, iacinete, scarlet, purple & twyned bysse, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And they brought Onix stones closed in ouches of golde and graued as of þ childrē of Israell, and put them on

And they made the brestlappe of con-nynge worke, after the worke of the Ephod: euen of gold, iacinete, scarlet, purple and twyned bysse. And they made it iiii. square & double, an hande breadth longe, and an hande breadth brode.
And they fylled it with foure rowes of stones (the first rowe Sardios, a To-pas and * Smaragdus: the seconde rowe, a * Rubye, a Saphir and a Dia-monde: the .iii. rowe, Ligutios and Achat nes were grauen as sygnettes with the names of the chyl dren of Isracc: euery stone wyth hys name, accordynge to the twelue trybes. Long and a hande Broad.

And they made vpon the brestlappe, two fastenyng cheynes of wrethen worcke and pure golde. And they made two hokes of gold, and two golde rynges, and put the two rynges vpon the two corners of þe brestlappe. And they put the two chaines of gold in the two rynges, in the corners of the brestlappe. And the .ij. endes of the .ij. chaines they fastened in the .ii. hokes, & put them on the shoulders of the Ephod vpon the forefront of it. The Second Row. Rubia la

And they made two other rynges of golde and put the on the two other corners of the brestlappe a long upon the edge of it, towarde the inlyde of the Ephod that is ouer agaynste it. And they made yet two other golde rynges, and put the on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneth on the foresyde of it: euen where the sydes go togyther, aboue vpon the brodyng of the Ephod, & they strayned the brestlappe by hys rynges vnto the rynges of the Ephod, wyth laces of iacincte, that it myghte lye faste vpon the brodyng of the Ephod, & shulde not be lolted from of the Ephod: as y<sup>e</sup> Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And he made the tunicle vnto the E:

the coler, that it shoulde not rente. And they made beneth vpon the hem of the tuncle: pomgranates of iacincte, scarlet, purple and twyned bysse. And they made lytle belles of pure gold, and put them among the pomgranates rounde aboute vpon the edge of the tuncle, a bell and a pomgranate, a bell and a pomgranate, a bell & a pomgranate rounde aboute y hemmes of the tuncle to minister in, as the LORD commaunded Moses.

And they made coates of bysse of wouen worke for Aaron and his sonnes, & a mytre of bysse, and goodlye bonettes of bysse, & linen breeches of twined bysse, and a gyrdel of twyned bysse, iacincte, scarlet and purple: euen of needleworke, as the LORD commaunded Moses.

And they made the plate of the holpe crowne of fyne gold, and wrote vpon it with grauen worke, the holynesse of the LORD: and tyed it to a lace of iacincte to fasten it an hie vpo the mytre, as the LORD commaunded Moses.

Thus was al the worke of the habytacyon of the tabernacle of wytnesse finished. And the children of Israel dyd accordynge to all that the LORD had comaunded Moses. And they brought the habytacyon vnto Moses: the tente & all hys apparell thereof: the buttones, boordes, barres, pillers and sockettes: and the couering of rams skynnes red, and the coueryng of taxus skynnes, & the hangyng baile, and the arke of wytnesse with the slaues therof, & the mercyseate: the table and al the ordinaunce therof, and the shewbred, and the pure candellstycke, and the lampes prepared thereunto wyth all the vessels thereof, and the oyle for lyghtes, and the golden altare, & the anoyntynge oyle, & the swete cens, and the hangynge of the tabernacle doore, and the bralen alter, and the greddyzen of brasse, longynge thereunto wyth hys barres & al hys vesselles, and the lauer wyth hys foote, and the hangynges of the courte wyth hys pylers and sockettes, and the hangynge to the courte gate, hys boordes and pinnes, and all the ordynaunce that serueth to the habytacyon of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the mynystryng bestymentes to serue in the holpe place, and the holy bestymentes of Aaron the pypste and hys sonnes raymentes to mynystrye in: accordynge to all that the LORD commaunded Moses: euen so the children of Israell made all the worke. And Moses behelde all the worke: and see, they had done it euen as the LORD commaunded: and then Moses & blessed them.

AND the LORD spake vnto Moses, saying: In the fyrste daye of the fyrst moneth shalt thou set vp the habytacyon of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and put therein the arcke of wytnesse, and couer the arcke wyth the bayle, and byrnyng in the table and apparel it, & byrnyng in the candellstycke, and put on his lapes, and set the cens alter of golde before the arcke of wytnesse, and put the hangyng of the doore vnto the habytacyon. And sette the burnt offryng alter before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, & set the lauer betwene the tabernacle of wytnesse & the alter, & put water therein, and make the courte round about, and set vp the hangyng of the courte gate.

* And take the anoyntynge oyle and anoynt the habytacyon and al y is therein, and halow it and al y belongeth thereto: that it may be holy. And anoynt y altar of the burnt offrynges & all hys vesselles, and sanctifye the altar that it may be mooste holy. And anoynt also the lauer and his foote, and sanctifie it.

* Than bring Aaron and hys sonnes vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and washe theym wyth water. And put vpon Aaron the holy bestymentes, and anoynt him and sanctifie hym that he may minister vnto me, that their anoyntynge maye be an euerlastynge priesthode vnto them thorow out their generacions. * And Moses dyd accordynge to all that the LORD commaunded him.

* Thus was the tabernacle reared vp by the first daye in the fyrste moneth in the seconde yere. And Moses reared vp the tabernacle & fastened his sockettes, and set vp y boordes & put in their barres and reared vp the pylers, & spred abode the tente ouer the habytacyon, and put the couerpyng of the tent on hie aboute it: as the LORD commaunded Moses.

And he toke and put the testymonye in the Arcke, and sette the staues to the arcke, and put the merciscate an hie vp on the arcke, and brought the arcke into the habitacyon and hanged vp y bayle and couered the arcke of witness, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he put the table in the tabernacle of witness in the north syde of the ha-bitacion without the bayle, and set the bread in ordre before the Lorde, euen as the Lorde had commaunded Moses.

* And he put the candellstycke in the tabernacle of witness ouer against the table in the south syde of the habitacion, and set vp the lampes before y lord: as the Lord commaunded Moses. And he put the golden alter in the tabernacle of witness before y bayle, and brent sweete cens thereon as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And sette vp the han-gynge in the dore of the habitacion, & set the burntofferynge alter before the dore of the tabernacle of witness, and offred burntofferynges & meatoffrynges theron as the Lord commaunded Moses.

* And he set the lauer betwene the tabernacle of witness and the alter, and powred water therein to washe withall.
And both Moses, Aaron and his sonnes washed their handes & their feete there at: both when they went into the tabernacle of witness, or when they went to the alter, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And he reared vp the courte rounde aboute the habytacyon and the alter, and set vp y hanging of the court gate: and so Moses finished the worke.

* And the clowde couered the tabernacle of witness, and the glorie of the LORD fylled the habytacyon: so that Moses could not enter into the tabernacle of witness, because the clowde abode therein, and the glorie of y Lorde fylled the habytacyon.

When y clowde was taken vp fro of These ceremonies which are described in y boke folowing, were chieflie orderyng of God, (as I sayd in y ende of the Prologe vpon Exodus) to occupie the myndes of y people yf Israell res, and to kepe the scripture of God after the ymaginacion of their blynd seale and good intente: that their coscyences myghte be stabyllyshed and they sure that they pleased GOD therein, whiche were impossible yf a manne dyd of hys owne heade that which was not commaunded of GOD nor depended of anye appoyntment made betwene hym and God.

Suche ceremonies were vnto them as an A.
B. C. to learne to spell and reade, and as a nurce to feede them with milke and papper, & to speake vnto theym after their owne capacite and to yspe the wordes vnto theym accordynge as the babes and chyldren of that age myghte sounde theym agayn. For all that were before Christe were in the infancie and chyldhode of the world and sawe that Sunne whiche we see openlye, but thowoe a clowde and had but feble & weake imaginacions of Christe, as chyldren haue of incubes dedes, a fewe prophetes excepte which yet described hym vnto other in Sacrifices and ceremonies, likenesses, riddles, proverbes, & darke and straunge speaking vntill the full age were come that God woulde shewe hym openly vnto the whole worlde and deliuer theym from theyr shadowes and cloudyght and the heathen oute of theyr dead sleape of darke blynde ygnorance.
And as the shadowe bayeth away at the comming of the lycht, euen so do the ceremonies and sacrifices at the comming of Christ, and are henceforth no more necessarie then a token lesse in remembraunce of a bargayne is necessarie whē the bargaine is fulfilled. And though they seme playne chyldish, yet they be not altogethe feutle: as yf popes & fr. maner of trilles which mothers permit vnto their yong chyldren be not all in vaine. For albeit yf such phantasies be permitted to satisfie yf childers lustes, yet in yf they are the mothers gylt, & be don in place & tyme at hīr commaundmēt, they kepe yf chylde in awe and make thē know the mother and also make them more appeagaynt a more strounger age, to obey in thynges of a greater earnest.

And moreover though sacrifices and ceremonies can be no good or fydacyon to buyld vpon:
that is, though we can proue nought with them:

The Prologe.

yet when we haue once found out Christ and his miseries, then we maye borrowe figures, that is to say, allegories, similitudes or ensamples to open Christ and the secretres of God hyd in Christ euen vnto the quicke, and to declare theym more lyuely and sensibly wpth them then with al the wordes of the worlde.

For similitudes haue more vertue and potuer wpth them then bare wordes, and leade a mans wyttes further into the prythe and mary and spirittuall vnderstandyng of the thyng, then all the wordes that canne be imagyned. And thoughe also that all the ceremonies and sacrifices haue as it were a starrelyght of Christe, yet some there be that haue as it were the light of the brode day a lytle before the sunne risyn, and expresse him, and the circumstaunces and vertue of his deathe so playnly as yf we shoulde playe his passion on a scaffolde or in a stage playe openly before the eyes of the people. As the scape goate, the brasen serpent, the oxe burnt without the host, the passe ouer lambe, &c. In so muche that I am fully persuaded, and can not but beleue that God hath the welwed Moses the secretres of Christ and the verye manner of his deathe before hande, and commaunded hym to ordayne them for the confirmation of our fathers which are nowe in the cleare daye lyght. And I beleue also, that the prophetes which folowed Moses to confirme his propheties and to mayntayne hys doctryne vnto Christes commynge were moued by suche thynges to searche further of Christes secretres. And thoughe God woulde not haue the secretres of Christe generally knowen, saue vnto a fewe famplier frendes whiche in that infancie he made of mannes witte to helpe the other habes: yet as they had a generall promyse that one of the seede of Abraham shoulde come and blesse them, eue so they had a general faith, that God woulde by the same ma saue the, though they wist not by what meanes as the very apostles whē it was oft told them yet they could neuer comprehend it, tll it was fulfilled in dede.

And beyonde al this there Sacrifices and ceremonies as farforth as the promyses annexed vnto the extende, so farforth they saued them and iustified them, and stode them in the same steade as oure sacramentes do vs: not by the potuer of the sacrifice or dede it selfe, but by the vertue in the faith in the promyse whiche the sacrifice or ceremonies preached and wherof it was a token or sygne. For the ceremonies and sacrifices were left with them, and commaunded them to kepe promise in remembraunce and to wake vp their faith. As it is not ynough to sende many on errandes, and to tell them what they shall do: but they must haue a remembraunce with them, and it be but a ring of a rushe about one of their fingers. And as it is not ynough to make a bargain with wordes onely, but we must put thereto an othe and geue earnest to confirme the faith of the person with whom it is made. And in like maner if a man promise, whatsoeuer trifull it be, it is not beleued except he holde vp his synger also, suche is the weaknesse of the world. And therefore Christ him selfe vfed oft tymes diuerse ceremonies in carrynge the sycke to cure vp their faith with al. As for an ensample it was not the blood of the lambe that saued them in Egypte, when the Angel smote the Egipcians: but the mercy of God & his truth wherof the blood was a token & remembraunce to cure vp their faithes wal-

For though God make a promyse, yet it saucth none finally but them that longe for it, & praye God with a strong faith to fulfyll it for his mercye & truth onely and knowledg their vnnorthines. And euen so our sacramentes (yf they be truly ministred) preach Christe vnto vs & leade our faithes vnto Christ, by which faith our sins are done awaye and not by the dede or worke of the sacrament. For as it was impossible that the blood of calues shuld put away synne: euen so is it impossible that the water of the ryuer shuld wash our hertes. Neuertheles the sacramentes cleanse vs and absolue vs of oure synnes as the priestes do, in preachynge of repentance and say the, for which cause eyther other of them were ordered, but yf they preach not, whether it be the priest or the sacrament, so prokpe they not.

And yf a man allege Christe Johan in the iii. chapter, sayng: Excepte a man be borne agayne of water and the holy gost he can not se the kingdome of God, & wyl therefore that the holy gost is present in the water & therefore the verye dede or worke doth put away synne: then I wil sende him vnto Isaule whiche apery hys Galathians whether they receyued the holy gost by the dede of the lawe or by preachynge of faith, and there concludeth that the holy gost accompanieth the preaching of faith, & with the word of faith, encreth the hert & purgeth it which thou mayst also vnderstande by S. Isaule, sayng: ye are borne a new out of the water thorow the word. So now yf baptysme preache me the washyng in Christes blod, so doth the holy gost accompany it, and that dede of preaching thorow faith doth put awaye my synnes. For the holpe goste is no dome God nor no god that goeth a mumynge. If a mā say of the sacrament of Christes body & blod, that it is a sacrifice, as well for the dead as for y quicke, and therefore the very dede it selfe iustificth and putteth away synne. I answer that a sacrifice is the slepyng of the body of a beast or a man: wherefore if it be a sacrifice, the is Christes body there slayne & his blond there shed: but that is not so. And therefore it is properly no sacrifice but a sacramente & a memorie of the euergastynge sacrifice once for all whiche he offered vpon the crosse nowe vpon. xv. hundred yeres ago, & preacheth only vnto the that are alpye. And as for the that be dead, it is as profytable vnto the as is a candell in a lantern without lyght vnto them that walke by the waye in a darke nyght, and as the gospell souge in later is vnto them that vnderstand none at al, and as a sermo preached to hym that is dead and heareth it not. It preacheth vnto them that are alpye onely, for they be dead, yf they dye in the faith whiche that sacramente preacheth, they be asse and are past all ieopardye. For whē they were alpye their hertes loued the lawe of God, and therefore they synned not, & were sorpy that their members synned & euer moued to synne, & therefore thorow faith it was forgiven the. And now their synful membres be dead, so that they can now synne no more, wherefore it is vnto them that be dead nether sacrament nor sacrifice: But vnder the pience of their soule health, it is a scruaunte vnto oure spiritualties holy countournesse and an exortacion and a blyder of Abbayes, Colleges, Chauntries and cathedral churches with false gotten good, a pypurse, a pollax, and a bottomlesse bagge.

Some man woulde happely saye, that the prayers of the masse helpe myche: not the leuyng the alter, and let the bloude runne out vpon the sides of the alter, and plucke away his croppe & his fethers, & caste them beside the alter on the east parte vpon the heape of ashes, and breake his wynges, but plucke them not asunder. And then let the priest burne it vpon the alter, euen vpon the wood that lyeth vpon the fyre, a burnt sacrifice & an offering of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

The notes.

a. Take in Genes. xlviii. c

b. This swete odour, is the sacrifice of faythe & pure affection, in whiche God is delected, as a man is delected in the good sauour of meates, as it is sayde of Mo. Gene. viii. d

The. ii. Chapter

The order of meatofferings, of swete cakes, of fyne floure, of franchencens &c. without leuen, and without hony, but not without salte.

If any soul wil offer a meat offring vnto the Lorde, hys offring shalbe fyne floure, & he shall poure thereto oyle, & put franchencens thereon, & shall bring it vnto Aarons sonnes the priestes. And one of the shall take thereout his handfull of the floure, and of the oyle w<sup>al</sup> the franchyncence, & burne it for a memorial vpon the alter: an offering of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde. * And the remmaunt of the meat offring shalbe Aarons & his sonnes, as a thinge mooste holly of the sacrifices of the Lorde. If a ny man bring a meat offering & is bake in the oven, let him bring swete cakes of fyne floure mingled with oyle, & vnle-uened waters anointed w<sup>oyle</sup>. If thy meatoffring be baked in the fryeg pan, then it shalbe of swete floure myngled with oyle. And thou shalt mince it small, and poure oyle thereon: and so it is a meatoffring.

If thy meatoffring be a thinge broyled vpon the gredye, of floure myngled w<sup>oyle</sup> it shalbe. And thou shalt bring the meatoffring that is made of these thinges vnto the Lorde, & shalt deliver it vnto the prieste, and he shall bring it vnto the alter, and shall heue vpon parte of the meatoffring for a me-moriall, and shall burne it vpon the alter: an offering of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde. And that whiche is lefte of the meatoffring shall be Aarons & hys sonnes, as a thinge that is moost holly of the offerings of the lorde.

All the meat offerings which ye shall bring vnto the Lorde, shalbe made w<sup>o</sup> out leuen. For ye shall nether burne le-uen nor honye in anye offering of the Lorde: notwithstanding ye shall bring the fyrstlings of them vnto the Lorde:
but they shall not come vpon the alter to make a swete sauour. And All thy meatofferings thou shalt salt with salt: nether shalt thou suffre the salt of the couenaunte of thy God to be lacking from thy meatoffring: but vpon all thyne offerings thou shalt bring salte.

If thou offre a meatoffring of the fyrst ripe frutes vnto the Lorde, then take that whiche is yet greene, & drye it by the fyre & beat it small, & so offre the meatoffring of thy fyrste rype frutes.
And than poure oyle thereto, and put franchencens thereon: & so it is a meatof-fringe. And the priest shall burne parte of the beaten corne & parte of that oyle wth all the franchencens, for a remembrance. That is an offering vnto the Lorde.

a. This swete sauour signifieth the praier of the meke and faythful, as it is interpreted in Apoca. viii. a. The which prayes down with and the surp of the Lorde.
b. All offerings must be salted w<sup>salt</sup>, which sig-nifieth that al our good workes must be direc-

Then when he hath sinned in one of these thynges, he shall confesse & wherein he hath sinned, and shall bring his trespass offering vnto the Lorde for his synne whiche he hath sinned. A female frome the flocke whether it be a lambe or a she goote, for a synne offering. And the preeft shall make an attonement for hym for his synne. * But yf he be not able to bringe a shepe, then let hym bringe for his trespass whiche he hath sinned two turtill doves, or two young pygeons vnto the LORD, one for a synneoffring and another for a burnt offering. And he shall bringe them vnto the preeft whiche shall offer the synne offering fyrste, and wryng the necke a sunder of it, but plucke it not cleue of. And let hym sprinkle of the bloude of the synneoffring vpon the syde of the alter, and let the reste of the bloude blede vpon the botome of the alter, and then it is a synneoffring. And let hym offer the seconde for a burnt offering as the maner is: and so shall the preeft make an attonement for hym for the synne whiche he hath sinned, and it shall be forgiven hym. And yet if he be not able to bringe two turtill doves or two young pygeons, then lette hym bringe his offering for his synne: * the tenth parte of an Epha of fyne flour for a synneoffring, but put none oyle thereto neyther put any frankincense thereon, for it is a synne offering. And the Lord spake vnto Moyses and Aaron sayinge: speake vnto y<sup>e</sup> children of Israel and saye * these are the beastes whiche ye shall eate amonge al the beastes y<sup>e</sup> are on the erth: what soeuer hath hooft, and deuydeth it into two clawes and cheweth cud among the beastes that shal ye eate. Nevertheless, these shall ye not eate of the that chewe cud and haue hooftes. The camel, for he cheweth cud but he deuydeth not y<sup>e</sup> hooft in to two clawes, therefore he shal be vncleane vnto you. And the conye for he cheweth y<sup>e</sup> cud but deuydeth not the hooft in to two clawes, therefore he is vncleane to you. And the hare, for he lykewyse cheweth the cud, but deuydeth not the hooft in to two clawes, he is therefore vncleane to you. And the swyne, for though he deuyde y<sup>e</sup> hooft in to .ii. clawes, yet he cheweth not the cud, and therefore is vncleane to you. Of their flesh se y<sup>e</sup> ye eate not, and their carkasses se that ye touche not, for they are vncleane to you.

These shal ye eate of al that are in y<sup>e</sup> waters: what soeuer hath finnes & scales in the waters, seas and ryuers, that shal ye eate. And al that haue not finnes and scales in the seas and ryuers of al that moue and lyue in the waters shal

But and yf that brightnesse abyde styl in one place & go not further in y skynne & be blackyshe, then it is but a rysing in y place of y burnynge, & the preast shal make him cleane: for it is but the print of the burnynge onely.

When ether man or woman hath a breakyng out vpon y heed or y beerde, let the preast se it. And yf it appere lower than the other skynne, and there be therein golden heeres and thynne, let the preast iudge him vncleane, for it is a breakynge out of leprosy vpon y head or bearde. If (whē the preast loketh on the breakynge oute) he se that it is no lower then the other skynne and y there are blacke heeres therein, let hym shut hym vp. vii. dayes. And let the preaste loke on the disease the. vii. daye: and yf the breakynge out be gone no further nether be any golden heeres therein nether the scabbe be lower then the other skynne, then let hym be shauen, but let hym not shawe y scabbe: & let the preast shut hym vp. vii. daies moo. And let the preast loke on the breakynge out y. vii. daye agayne: If the breakynge out be gone no further in the skynne nor more lower then the other skynne, then let the preast iudge hym cleane, and let hym washe hys clothes, and thē he is cleane. If the breakynge out grow in y skynne after that he is once iudged cleane, let the preast see hym. If it be growne a brode in dede in the skynne, let y preast seke no further for any golden heeres, for he is vncleane. But & yf he se that the scabbe stāde styl, & y there is blacke heere growne vp therein, thē the scabbe is healed and he is cleane: and y preast shal iudge hym cleane. If there be founde in the skynne of the fleshe of man or woman a glysterynge whyte, let the preast se it. If there appeare in the y fleshe a glysterynge whyte some what blackyshe, then it is but frekels growen vp in the skynne: and he is cleane.

If a mans heere fall of his head, thē he is headbaulde and cleane. If hys heere fal before in his foreheade, thē he is foreheade balde and cleane. If there be in the baulde heade or baulde foreheade a redyshe white scabbe, thē there is leprosy spronge vp in hys baulde heade or baulde foreheade. And let the preast se it: and yf the rysing of the sore be redyshe white in his baulde heade or foreheade after the maner of a leprosy in y skynne of the fleshe, thē he is a leper & vncleane: & the preast shal iudge him vncleane, for y plage of his heade. And y leper in whome the plage is, shal haue his clothes rēt and his head bare and his mouth mosseld, and shalbe called vncleane. And as lōg as the disease lasteth vpon him, he shalbe vncleane: for he is vncleane, & shal therfore dwell alone, and euen without the host shal his habitation be.

When the plage of leprosy is in a clothe: whether it be lynē or wollen, yea and whether it be in the warpe or wolfe of the linnen or of the wollen: ether in a skynne or any thing made of skynne, yf the dysease be pale or somewhat redyshe in the cloth or skynne: whether it be in the warpe or wolfe or any thinge that is made of skynne, then it is a very leprosy, & must be shewed vnto y preast. And when the preast seyth the plage, let him shut it vp. vii. dayes, and let hym loke on the plage the. vii. daye. If it be increased in the cloth: whether it be in y warpe or wolfe or in a skynne or in any thing that is made of skynne, then the plage is a fretynge leprosy, & it is vncleane: & that cloth shalbe burnt, ether warpe or wolfe, whether it be wollen or linnen or any thyng that is made of skynne where in the plage is, for it is a fretynge leprosy, and shalbe burnt in y fyre. If the preast se y the plage hath createn no further in the cloth: ether in the warpe or wolfe or in whatsoener thing of skynne it be, then let the preast commaunde them to washe the thyngs wherein the plage is, & let him shut it vp vii. dayes moo. And let the priest loke on it agayne after y the plage is washed. If the plage haue not chaunged his facio though it be spred no further abrode, it is yet vncleane. And se y ye burne it in y fire, for it is creat inward: whether in parte or in al together. Make the children of Israell to kepe them selues frome their vncleaneesse, that they dye not in their vncleane: when they haue defyled my habitacion that is amonge them.

This is the law of hym that hath a runnyng soze, & of hym whose seed runneth from hym in his slepe & is defyled therewith, and of her that hath an yssue of bloude as long as she is put a parte, and of whosoeuer hathe a runnyng soze whether it be man or womā, and of hym that slepeth with her that is vncleane. Soe all are guilty of vncleane.

The xvi. Chapter. Vncleane.

What Aarō must do or he enter in to the holy place. The cleansyng of the sanctuary or holpe place. Of the feast of cleansyng. Aarō consecrath the synnes of the children of Israell ouer the lye goote and putteth the vpon hys heade.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses after the death of y two sonnes of Aarō, when they had offered before the Lorde and dyed: And he sayde vnto Moyses: Speake vnto Aarō thy brother that he goo not at all tymes in to the holpe place, that is within the bayle that hangeth before the mercyseate which is vpon the arcke that he dye not. * For I wyll appeare in a cloude vpon the mercyseate.

But of this maner shall Aarō goo in to the holpe place: with a bullocke for a synne offryng, & a ram for a burnt offryng. And he shall put y holpe lynnen albe vpon hym, and shall haue a lynnen breeche vpon hys fleshe, and shall gyrd hym with a lynnen gyrdell, and put the lynnen mytte vpon hys heade: for they are holpe raymentes. And he shall washe hys fleshe with water, and put them on. And he shall take of the multitude of the childre of Israell two he gootes for a synne offryng and a ram for a burnt offryng.

And Aarō shall offer the bullocke for his synne offryng & make an attonement for hym and for his house. And he shall take the two gootes & presente them before the Lorde in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aarō shall cast lottis ouer the ii. gootes: one lotte for the Lorde, & another for a scapegoote. And Aarō shall brynge the goote vpon whiche the Lordes lotte fell, and offer hym for a synne offryng. But the goote on whiche the lot fell to scape, he shall be set aliue before y Lorde to reconcyle with, & to let him goo fre in to the wyldernesse. And Aarō shall brynge the bullocke of his synne offryng, and reconcyle for hym selfe & for hys house, and kyll hym. As the Lott for his Raymentes.

And then he shall take a censer full of burninge coles oute of the aulter that is before the Lorde, and hys handfull of swete cens beten smal and bring the within the bayle and put the cens vpon the lyze before the Lorde: that the cloude of the cēs may couer the mercyseate that is vpon the wytnesse, that he dye not. * And he shall take of the bloude of the bullocke and sprynkle it with his fonger before the mercyseate eastwarde: euen. vii. tymes.

Then shall he kyll the goote that is the peoples sinne offryng, and brynge his bloude within the bayle, and do w hys bloude as he dyd with the bloude of the bullocke, and lette him sprynkle it towarde the mercyseate, and before the mercyseate: And reconcyle the holpe place frome the vncleaneesse of the children of Israell, and from their trespasses and all their synnes. And so let him do also vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse that dwelleth with them, euen amonge their vncleaneesse. vpon a smect.

* And there shall be nobody in the tabernacle of wytnesse, when he goeth in to make an attonement in y holy place, vntyll he come out agayne. And he shall make an attonement for him selfe, and for his house, and for all the synnes of the children of Israell.

And the Lorde and Dyed and was buried in the Holy Place.

and for his houtholde, and for all the multitude of Israel. Then he shal goo out vnto the aulter that standeth before the Lord, and reconcile it, and shal take of the bloude of the bullocke & of the bloude of the goote, & put it vpon y<sup>e</sup> hornes of the aulter rounde about, and sprynkle of the bloude vpon it with his finger seuen tymes, and clense it, & halowe it frome the vnclemesse of the children of Israell.

And when he hathe made an ende of reconciling the holy place & the tabernacle of wytnes and the aulter, let him bringe the lyue goote, and lette Aaron put both his handes vpon the heed of the lyue goote, & confesse ouer hym al y<sup>e</sup> misdedes of the chyldren of Israell, and their trespasses, & all their synnes: and let hym put them vpon the heed of the goote, and sende hym away (by the handes of one that is couenient) in the wyldernesse. And the goote shal beare vpon him all their misdedes vnto the wyldernesse, and he shal let the goote goo fre in the wyldernesse.

And let Aaron goe in to the tabernacle of wytnesse & put of the linnen clothes whiche he put on when he went in to the holpe place, & leaue them there. And lette hym washe his flethe with water in the holpe place, & put on his owne rayment, & then come out & offer his burntoffryng & the burntoffryng of y<sup>e</sup> people, & make an attonement for hym selfe and for the people, and the fatte of the synneoffryng lette hym burne vpon the aulter. And let him that carryed forth the scape goote, wash his clothes and bath his flethe in water, & then come in to the holte agayne.

And the bullocke of y<sup>e</sup> sinneoffring & the goote of y<sup>e</sup> sinoffring (whose bloude was brought in to make an attonement in the holpe place) lette one carpe oute without the holte and burne with fire: bothe their skynnes, their flethe and their donge. And let him that burneth them, washe his clothes and bathe his flethe in water, and then come in to the holte agayne. And this shalbe an ordinance for euermore vnto you. And this shalbe in the .v. daye of the seventh moneth, ye shall humble your soules and shall do no worke at all: whether it be one of your selues or a stranger that sojourneyth amonge you, for that daye shal an attonement be made for you to clense you from al your synnes before y<sup>e</sup> Lord, and ye shalbe cleane. It shalbe a Sabbath of rest vnto you, and ye shal humble youre soules, and it shalbe an ordinance for euer.

And the priest that is anoynted and whose hande was fylled to minstre in his fathers steade, shal make an attonement and shal put on the holpe linnen clothes and holy vestimentes, & reconcile the holy sanctuarie and y<sup>e</sup> tabernacle of witnesse & the aulter, & shal make an attonement also for the priestes and for all the people of the congregacion. And this shalbe an euerlastyng ordinance vnto you to make an attonement for the chyldren of Israell for all their synnes once a yere: & it was done euen as the Lord comaunded Moses.

The .xvii. Chapter.

All sacrifice muste be brought to the doore of the tabernacle. To dwell may they not offer. Bloude and all haren is forbydden them.

And y<sup>e</sup> Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake vnto Aaron, & vnto his sonnes, and vnto all the children of Israel and saye vnto them, this is the thyng whiche the Lorde charged sayinge: whatsoeuer he bee of the house of Israell that kyleth an ore, lambe or goote in the holte or out of the holte and bringeth them not vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, to offer an offryng vnto the Lorde before the dwelling place of the Lorde, bloude shalbe imputed vnto that man, as though he had shedde bloude, and that man shall perishe from amonge his people.

Wherefore let the children of Israel bringe their offrynges y<sup>e</sup> they offer in the wyde felde, vnto y<sup>e</sup> Lorde: euen vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse and vnto the priest, and offer them for the peaceoffrynges vnto the Lorde. And the priest shal sprynkle the bloude vpon the aulter of the Lorde in y<sup>e</sup> doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, & burne the fatte to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And lette them no more offer their offrynges vnto deuylles, after whome they goo an whoorynge. And

These are the feastes of the Lord which ye shall proclayme holys in theyr ceasings. The xiii. dape of the fyrste moneth at euen is, y<sup>e</sup> Lordes + Pascheouer. And the xv. dape of the same moneth is the feaste of swete breade vnto the Lord vii. dayes ye muste eate vnlouended breade. The fyrste dape shalbe an holpe feast vnto you, so that ye may do no laborious worke therin. But ye shall offer sacrifices vnto the Lord. vii. dayes, and the seuenth day also shalbe an holy feaste, so that ye maye do no laborious worke therein.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and say vnto them: * when ye be come in to the land which I geue vnto you: & repe doune youre harvest ye shall bring a shefe of the 3<sup>e</sup> fyrste frutes of your harvest vnto the preeste, and he shall waue the shefe before the Lord to be accepted for you: and euen the morowe after the Sabboth the preeft shal waue it. And ye shall offer that dape whē he waueyth the shefe, a lambe without blemyshe of a yere olde for a burntoffryng vnto the Lord: and the meatoffering thereof two tenth deales of fine floure mengled with oyle to be a sacrifice vnto y<sup>e</sup> Lord of a swete sauoure: the drinkeoffringe therto, y<sup>e</sup> fourth deale of an hyn of wine. * And ye shall eate nether bread, nor parched corne, nor furmenty of newe corne: vntyll the ielfe same dape that ye haue broughte an offering vnto youre God. And this shalbe a lawe for euer vnto youre chyldren after you, wheresoeuer ye dwell.

And ye shall offer an he goote for sinnes offering: and two lambes of one yere olde for peaceofferings. And the preeft shall waue thein with the breade of the fyrste frutes before the Lord, and with the two lambes. And they shalbe holpe vnto the Lord and be the preeftes. And ye shall make a proclamacion the same dape that it be an holy feaste vnto you, and ye shall do no laborious worke therein: And it shalbe a lawe for euer thowout al your habitacions vnto your chyldren after you. 2 Rams: for a Burnt of

* When ye repe doune your harvest, thou shalt not make cleane ryddaunce of thy felde, nether shalt thou make any after gatherig of thy harvest: but shalt leue them vnto the poore and the straunger. I am the Lord your God.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye. * The fyrste dape of the seuenth moneth shalbe a reaste of remembrance vnto you, to blowe hornes in an holpe feaste it shalbe, and ye shall do no laborious worke therin, and ye shall offer sacrifice vnto the Lord.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses saying: * also the tenth dape of the selfe seuenth moneth, is a dape of an attouemente, and shalbe an holpe feaste vnto you, and ye shall humble youre soules and offer sacrifice vnto the Lord. Moreover ye shall do no worke the same dape, for it is a dape of attouemente, to make an attouement for you before the Lord your God. For whatsoeuer soule it bee that humblyeth not hym selfe that dape, he shalbe destroyed frome amonge hys people. And whatsoeuer soule do anye maner worke that dape, the same I wyll destroy from amonge hys people. Se ye do no maner worke therefore.

And it shalbe a lawe for euer vnto your generacions after you in all your dwellinges. A Sabboth of rest it shalbe vnto you, and ye shall humble your soules. The ix. dape of the monethe at euen and so forth from euen to euen agayne ye shall kepe youre Sabboth.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses sayyng: And that shalbe a lawe for euer vnto your generacions after you.

And so youre labour shalbe spent in bayne. For your lande shal not geue her encrease, nether the trees of the land shal geue their frutes.

And yf ye walke contrarpe vnto me, and wyll not herken vnto me, I wyll byynge seuen tymes moo plagis vpon you accordng to youre synnes. I wyll sende in wilde bestes vpon you, which shall robbe you of youre chyldren, and destrope youre cattell, and make you so fewe in number that youre hye wayes shall grow vnto a wilder nesse.

And if ye wyll not be lerned yet for all this but shall walke contrarpe vnto me, then wyl I also walke contrarpe vnto you and wyl punysh you yet seuen tymes for youre synnes. I wyll sende a swerde vpon you, that shall auenge my testamente with you. And when ye are fled vnto youre ctytes, I wyll send the pestilence amouge you, ye shall be deluyered into the handes of your enemies. And when I haue broken the staffe of youre bread: that .x. wyues shall bake youre bread in one oven, and men shall delyuer you youre breade agayne by weyghte: then shall ye eate and shall not be satisfied.

10000
And if ye wil not yet for all this herken vnto me, but shall walke contrarpe vnto me, the I wil walke contrarpe vnto you also wraathfullpe and wyll also chastice you seuen tymes for your synnes: * so that ye shall eate the fleshe of your sonnes and the fleshe of your daughters. And I wyll destrope youre alters bylt vpon hye hylles, and ouerthrowe your ymages, and cast youre carcasses vpon the boddies of youre ydolles, and my soule shall abhorre you. And I wyll make your ctytes desolate, and byynge your sanctuaries vnto noughte, and wyll not smell the sauoures of youre swete odoures.

And
And I wyll byynge the lande vnto a wilder nesse: so y your enemies whiche dwell therein shall wondre at it. And I wyll strawe you amouge the heathen, and wyl draw oute a swerde after you,

and
and your lande shalbe waste, and your ctytes desolate. Then the lande shal reioyce in her Sabbothes, as long as it lyeth voyde, and ye in youre enemies lande: euen then shall the lande kepe ho-lye daye, and reioyce in her Sabbothes. And as long as it lyeth voyde it shall reste, for that it coulde not reste in your Sabbothes, when ye dwelt therin.

And
And vpon them that are leste alyue of you I wyll sende a fayntnesse in to theyr hartes in the lande of theyr enemies: so that the sounde of a lease that falleth, shall chase them, and they shall flee as though they fled a swerde, and shall fall no man folowinge them. And they shall fall one vpon another, as it wer before a sworde euen no man folow- ing them, and ye shall haue no power to stande before youre enemies: And ye shall perishe amouge the heathen, and the lande of youre enemies shall eate you vp.

And
And they that are leste of you, shall pyne awaye in theyr buryghteousnes, euen in their enemies lande, and also in the mysdedes of theyr fathers shal they consume. And they shall confesse theyr mysdedes, and the mysdedes of theyr fathers in theyr trespasses, whyche they haue trespassed agaynst me, and for that also that they haue walked contrarpe vnto me. Therefore I also wyll walke contrarpe vnto them, and wyll byynge them into the lande of theyr enemies. And then at the leste waye theyr vncircumcysed hertes shal be tamed, and they shall make an attonement for their mysdedes.

\ And*
* And I wyll remember my bonde wth Jacob and my testamente with Isaac, & my testament wyth Abraham, and wil thynke on the lande. For the lande shal be leste of them and shal haue pleasure in her sabbothes, whyle she lyeth waste without them, and they shall make an attonemente for theyr mysdedes, because they despyled my lawes and their soules refused mine ordinaunces. And yet for all that when they be in the lande of theyr enemye, * I wyll not so caste them awaye nor my soule shall not so abhorre them, that I wyll utterly destrope them and breake myne appoyntemente wyth them: for

a. To feare the sanctuary, is diligently to perfourme the true worshyppe and seruyce of God, to leaue of nortypnge, to obserue and kepe the purities both of body and mynde, verily and not hypocritically to beleue that he knoweth, beholdeth, doeth and ruleth all thinges: to beware of offending him, and wyth all feare and dily-gence to walke in the pathes of his lawes.

b. When mennese that God punisheth them for theyr iniquitie, and yet wyl not repente and seke hys mercy, but be as menne fully against God & his fatherly chastismentes: the wil God encrease his plagies, and at the lengthe destroye them vt-

The xxvii. Chapter.

Of dyuerse vowes and the redempcyon of the same. De uter. xxi.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayunge: speake vnto the Children of Israel & saye vnto them: If any man wyl geue a singuler vow vnto the Lord according to the value of hys soule, then shal the male frome .xx. yere vnto .lx. be set at fyfthe * cycles of syluer, after the cycle of the sanctuary, and the female at xxx cycles. And from .v. yeres to .xx. the male shal be set at .xx. cycles, and the female at .x. cycles. And frome a moneth vnto .v. yere, the male shal be set at .v. cycles of syluer, and the female at thre.
And the man that is .lx. and aboue, shal be valued at .xv cycles, and the womā at .x. If he be to poore so to be set, then let him come before the preest: and let p preest value him, according as p hand of him that bowed is able to get.

If it be of the beastes of which menne brynge an offryng vnto the Lorde: all that any man geueth of such vnto the Lorde, shal be holy. He maye not alter it nor chaunge it: a good for a bad or a bad for a good. If he chaunge beest for beest, then boothe the same beaste and it also wherwith it was chaunged shal be holpe.

If it be any maner of vncleane beest of which men may not offer vnto p Lord, let him bring the beest before the preest and lette the preeste value it. And whether it be good or bad as the preest sette it, so shal it be. And yf he wyl bie it againe, let hym geue the fyfte parte more to that it was set at. Tostam.

If any man dedicat his house, it shal be holpe vnto the Lord. And the preeste shal set it, whether it be good or bad, & as the preest hath set it, so it shal be. If he that sanctified it wyl redeme hys house, let hym geue the fyfte parte of p moneye that it was iudged at thereto, and it shal be hys. Howd Oromas my

If a man halowe a pece of his en-heretede lande vnto the Lorde, it shal be set according to p it beareth. If it beare an homer of barley, it shal be set at fyftye cycles of syluer. If he halowe hys felde immediatly frome that yere of iubely, it shal be worth accordinge as it is esteimed. But and if he halowe his felde after the trumpet yere, the preest shal re-ken the pryce with him according to the yeres that remaine vnto the trompet yere, and there after it shal be lower sette with them for yam.

If he that sanctified the felde wyl redeme it againe, let him put p fyft parte of the pryce that it was set at there vnto to, and it shal be hys, yf he wyl not, it shal be redemed no more. But when the felde goeth out in the yere of iubelye, it shal be holy vnto the Lorde: euen as a thing dedycated, and it shal be the priestes possession. Thom out of f. Redempt.

If a man sanctifye vnto the Lord a felde, whiche he hath boughte and is not of his enheritaunce, then the preest shall reken wyth him what it is worthe vnto the yere of iubely, and he shal geue the pryce that it is set at the same daye, holy and it shal be holy vnto the Lord. But in the yere of iubelye, the felde shal returne vnto him of whom he bought it, whose enheritaunce of land it was.

And all settinge shal be accordinge to the holpe cycle. One cycle maketh

Prologe.

*But the fyrst booke of þe beastes that pertayne vnto the Lord, maye no man sanctifye: whether it be oxe or shepe, for they are the Lordes alredey. If it be an vnclane beast, then let him redeme it as it is set at, and geue the fyfte parte more therto. If it be not redeemed, then let it be solde as it is rated.

Notwithstanding no dedicated thing that a man dedycateth vnto the Lord, of all his good, whether it be manne or beast or land of his enheritaunce, shalbe solde or redeemed: for all dedicate thynges are most holpe vnto the Lord. No dedicate thyng therefore that is dedicate of mā, may be redeemed, *but must nedes dye.

All these tythes of the land, whether it be of the corne, of the felde, or frute of the trees, shalbe holy vnto the Lord. If any man wyll redeme ought of hys tythes, let him adde the fyfte parte more therto. And the tythes of oxen & shepe, & of al that goeth vnder the herdemans keepynge, shalbe holpe tythes vnto the Lord. Men shal not loke yf it bee good or bad, nor shal chaunge it. If any man chaunge it then both it, and that it was chaunged wyth al, shalbe holy and may not be redeemed.

These are the commaundementes which the Lord gaue Moyses in charge to geue vnto the chyldren of Israell in mount Synai.

Nature of les called Ruinety. Vnboolef in Paragraffe of the Prologe

In the seconde & thyrde booke they receyued the lawe. And in thys. iiii. they begynne to worke and to practyse. Of whiche practysinge yf se many good examples of vnbelef and what fre wil doeth, when the taketh in hande to kepe the law of his owne power without helpe of faith in the promyses of god: howe he leueth her matters carthasses by the way in the wyldernes, and byngeth them not into the Lande of rest. Why coulde they not enter in? Because of theyr vnbeleffe. Debr. iii. For had they beleued, so had they bene under grace, and theyr olde synnes had bene forgiven them, & power shoulde haue bene geuen them to haueful filled the law thenceforth: & they shoulde haue bene kepte from al temptacions that had bene to strong for them. For it is wyrtten. John. i. He gaue them power to be the Sonnes of God, thorothe belcuyng in hys name.

*Some to be the Sonne of God is to loue God, and his commaundementes and to walke in hys way after the ensample of his Sone Christ. But these people toke vpon them to worke without faith as thou seest in the. xiii. of this boke, wher they woulde fight & also dyd wythout the worde of promyse: euen when they were warned that they shoulde not. The Prologe Trecute the lyghte. Thomases out of the Holy Bible And the more cleare and euidentelye their dedes he rebuked the furiouslye and maliciouslye blind are they buttill they breake out into open blasphemye and synnyng agaynst y<sup>e</sup> holy govt, which is the malicious persecutyng of y<sup>e</sup> cleare trowth so manifestlye proued y<sup>e</sup> they can not once hitte agaynst it. As the pharisees persecuted Christ because he rebuked they<sup>e</sup> holy dedes. And when he proued hys doctryne with the scriptures and miracles, yet thoughte they coude not improve hym nor reason agaynst hym they thoughte that the scripture muste haue some other meanynge because his interpretation vndermined their fudacyon and plucked vp by the rootes the sectes which they had planted, & they ascribed also his miracles to y<sup>e</sup> Deuyll. And in like maner though our Hypocrites canne not deipe but thys is the scripture, yet because there canne be none other sence gathered thereof, but that ouerthroweth their buydnynges, therefore they euer thinke that it hath some other meanynge then as the wordes sounde and that no man vnderstandeth it: or did vnderstande it sence the tyme of the Apostles. Or yf they thinke that some that wrote vpon it see the Apostles vnderstode it: they yet thinke that we in lyke maner as we vnderstande not the terte it selfe, so we vnderstande not the meanynge of the wordes of thair doctoure. For when thou layest y<sup>e</sup> iustifyinge of holy workes, and deniest the iustifyinge of fayth, howe canst thou vnderstande S.

 Paule, Peter, John, and y<sup>e</sup> Actes of the Apostles, or any scripture at all, saynge the iustifyinge of fayth is almost al that they entende to proue.
 Finallye, concernynge bowes whereof thou readest Chapiter. xxx. there may be many questions, wherunto I answer shorly that we oughe to put salte to al our offerynges: that is, we oughe to minister knowledge in all our workes, & to do nothyng whereof we coulde not geue a reason out of Gods wordes. Ray Calles by some We be now in the daye of lyghte, and all the secretes of God, and all his counsaile and wyll is opened vnto vs, and he that was promysed shuld come and blesse vs, is come alreadye & hath shed hys bloude for vs, and hath blessed vs wyth all maner blessinges and hath obtayned al grace for vs, and in hym we haue al. Wherefore God henceforth wyll receyue no more sacrifice of beastes or vs, as thou readest. Hebr. x. If thou burne vnto God the blod or fatte of beastes, to obtayne forgeuenes of synnes thereby, or y<sup>e</sup> god shuld the better heare thy request, then y<sup>e</sup> dost wrong vnto the blud of Christ, & Christ vnto y<sup>e</sup> deade in vayne.
 For in hym God hath promysed not forge-uenesse of synnes onely, but also whatsoeuer we aske to kepe vs from syn and retemptacyon with-all. And what yf thou burne frankincense vnto

The Old and new Testament

The Prologe.

Thou wylt aske me, what I bowe nothing at al-yes, Goddes commaundement whiche thou hast bowed in thy baptisme. For what entente? verely for the loue of Christe whiche hath bought thee with his blood, and made thee sonne and heire of God with him, that thou shouldest wayte on hys wyl and commaundementes, and purfye thy membres accordyng to the same doctrine that hath purifed thyne herte, for if the knowledge of Goddes worde haue not purifed thyne herte, so that thou consentest vnto the lawe of God that it is rightuous, and good, & sorowefull, that thy membres moue þ vnto the contrarie, so hast thou no part with Christ.

For if thou repent not of thy synne, so it is impossible that thou shouldest beleue that Christe hadde deliuered thee from the daunger therof. If thou beleue not that Christe hath deliuered thee, so is it impossible that thou shouldest loue God-des commaundementes.

If thou loue not the commaundementes, so is Christes spirite not in thee, whiche is the earnest of forgiuenes of synne and of Saluation.

For scripture teacheth, first repentance, the faith in Christ, that for his sake synne is forgiuen to them þ repent: then good workes, which are nothyng save the commaundement of God onely. And the commaundementes are nothyng els save the heaping of our neyghbours at their nede and the tamping of our membres that they myght be pure also as the hert is pure thorow hate of vyce and loue of vertue, as Gods worde teacheth vs, whiche workes must procede out of faith: that is, I must do this for the loue whiche I haue to God for that greete mercye whiche he hath shewed me in Christ, or else I do them not in the sight of God. And that I saynt not in the payne of the fleaynge of the synne that is in my nesse, myne helpe is the promyse of the assy-sistence of the power of God, and the comforte of þ rewarde to come, whiche rewarde I ascribe vnto the goodnes, mercye, & truth of the promysse that hath chose me, called me, taughte me, and geuen me the earnest therof, and not vnto the merites of my doynges or sufferynge. For all that I do and suffer is but the way to the rewarde and not the deseruyng therof. As yf the kynge grace should promyse me to defend me at home in myn owne roialme, yet the waye thither is thorow the sea, wherin I myght happely suffer no lytle trouble. And yet for all that, yf I myghte lye in rest wher I come thither, I woulde thynke and so would other say, that my paynes were wel rewarded whiche rewarde and benefyte I woulde not proudly ascribe vnto þ merites of my paynes, taking by þ way: but vnto þ goodnes, merciful-nes, & constant trerth of the kynge grace whose gyfte it is, and to whom the prayse, and thanke therof belongeth of dutye and right. So now a rewarde is a gyfte geuen frely of the goodnes of the gener, and not of the deseruynges of the receyuer. Thus it appeareth, that if I do what soeuer it be, for anye other purpose then to tame my membres and to be an ensample of vertue and edifying vnto myne neyghbours, my sacrifice is vnsauety and cleane without salte, & my lampe without oyle, and I one of the folysse virgyns, and shal be shut out of the feast of þ bydegrome when I thynke my selfe most sure to enter in.

If I bowe voluntary pouertie, this must be my purpose, that I wyl be content with a comperent luyng whiche cometh vnto me either by successyon of myne elders or whiche I get truly with my labour in ministringe and doyng scrupce vnto the commune wealthe in one offece or in an other, or in one occupacyon or other, because that riches and honoure shal not corrupte my mynde and drawe myne hert from God, and to geue an ensample of vertue and edifying vnto other and that my neyghbour may haue a ly-uing by me as wel as I. If I make a cloke of dissymulation of my bowe, lapinge a nette of fay-ned beggery to catche superfluous abundance of riches and hye degrees and authoritye, and thorowe the estimation of false holynesse to fede and mayntayne my stouthfull ydolensse with the sweate, labour, landes, and rentes of other men (after the ensample of our spiritualty) robbing the of their fathers faithes & god of hys honoure turnyng vnto myne hypocryse that confidence whiche shoulde be gyuen vnto the promyses of God only, am I not a wylly feke, and a rayening wolfe in a lammes chynne and a paynted sepulchre, fapre without and fylthy within? In like maner though I seke no worldly promociõ ther-by, yet yf I do it to be iustified therewith and to get an hyer place in heauen, thynkyng that I do of myne owne naturall strengthe and of the naturall power of my freewyll and that euery man hath myghteuen so to do and that they do it not is their faulte and neglygence and so with the proude pharalse in comparyson of my selfe, despise the synful publicans: what other thynge do I, then cate the blood and fat of my sacrifice deuourynge that my selfe whiche shoulde be offered vnto God alone and his Christe. And shortly what so euer a manne doeth of his naturall gyf-tes, or of his naturall wytte, wysedome, vnderstandynge, reason, wyl, and good entente before he be otherwyse and cleane contrary taughte of Gods spirite, & haue receyued other wit vnderstandynge, reason, and wyl, is fleshe, worldly, and brought in abominable byndenes, with which a man can but seke hym selfe, hys owne profyte gloze, and honoure, euen in very spirituall matters. As yf I were alone in a world wher no man were to seke profyt or prayse of, yet yf I woulde seke heauen of God there, I coulde of myne owne naturall gyftes seeke it none other wayes then for the merites and deseruynges of my good workes and to enter therein by an other way than by the doore Christe, whiche were verely thesse, for Christe is Lorde ouer all and whatsoeuer any man wyl haue of God, he must haue it geuen him frely for Christes sake. Rest of.

Howe to haue heauen for myne owne deseruyng, is myne owne prayse, and not Christes.
For I can not haue it by fauour & grace i Christ and by myne owne merites also: for free geuing and deseruyng can not stande togyther.

If I wylt bowe of thy goods vnto God thou must put salt vnto this sacrifice: þ is thou must minister knowledge in this dede as Peter teacheth. ii. pe. i. Thou must put oyle of gods word in thy lampe, & do it according to knowledge, yf thou wayte for the comyng of the bydegrome to enter in to him into his rest. Thou wylt hange it about the Image to moue men to deuociõ.
Deuociõ is a fetter loue vnto Gods comaundeme-tes & a desyre to be to God and with his euertlas-sing promyses. Nowe shal þ sight of such riches

These are the nombzes whiche Moses and Aaro nombred with the twelue prices of Israel: of euery house of their fathers a man. And all the nombzes of the children of Israel, in the houses of their fathers, from twenty yere and above, what so euer was mete for the warre in Israel, drewe vnto the sume of. syxe hundred and thre thousande, syxe hundred and fyftie. But the Leuites in the trybe of their fathers were not nombred amonge them.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: onely se that thou nombze not the trybe of Leui, nether take the sume of them amonge the children of Israel. But thou shalt appoynte the Leuites vnto the habitation of witnesse, and to all the apparel therof, and vnto al that longeth therto. * for they shall beare the tabernacle and al the ordinaunce thereof, and they shall mynyster it and shall pytche their tentes rounde aboute it. And when the tabernacle goeth forth the Leuites shall take it downe: & when the tabernacle is pytched, they shall set it vp: for if any straunger come nere, he shall dye. And the children of Israel shall pytche theyr tentes, euery man in his owne company, and euery man by his owne standert thorowe out al their hostes. But the Leuites shall pytche rounde aboute the habytacyon of wytnes, that there fall no wrath vpon the congregacyon of the children of Israel, and the Leuites shall wayte vpon the habytacyon.

The. iij. Chapter.

The Leuites are not nombred to go to battell, out to minister to the holy place of sanctuary. They must also pitch theyr tentes next to the habytacion.

These are the generacyons of Aarō & Moyses, when þ Lord spake vnto Moyses in mount Sinai, * and these are the names of the sonnes of Aarō: Nadab the eldest sonne, and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. These are the names of the sonnes of Aaron, * whiche were priestes anoynted and theyr handes fylled to mynister, but * Nadab and Abihu dyed before the Lord, as they brought straunge fyre before the Lord in the wylbernes of Sinai, and had no chyl dren. And Eleazar and Ithamar my nystred in þ syght of Aarō their father.

The. xii. daye, Ahira the sonne of Enan, chefe lord amonge the chyliden of Nephtali offered. And his gyfte was: a siluer charger of an hundred and. xxx. cycles weyght: a syluer boule of. lxx. cycles of the holye cycle, both ful of fine floure myngled with oyle for a meate offering: & a golden spone of twenty cy- cles, ful of cens. And a bullocke, a raine and a lambe of one yere olde for burnt offerynges and an he goote for a synne offering: and for peace offerynges, two oxen. v. rammes. v. he gootes &. v. lam- bes of one yere olde. And this was the offerynge of Ahira, the sonne of Enan.

* Of this maner was the dedicacyon of the alter, when it was anoynted: vn- to the which was broughte of the prin- ces of Israel. xii. chargers of siluer. xii. syluer boules and. xii. spones of golde: euery charger contaynyng an hundred and. xxx. cycles of syluer, & euery boule lxx. so that all the syluer of all the bes- sels, was two thousande and. liii. hun- dred cycles of the holy cycle. And the. xii. goldē spones whiche were ful of cens, contayned ten cycles a pece of the holy cycle: so that al the golde of the spones, was an hundred and. xx. cycles.

All the oxen that were broughte for the burnt offerynges were. xii. & the rammes. xii. and the lambes. xii. of a yere olde a pece, with the meate offeryn- ges: with he gootes for sinne offeriges. And all the oxen of the peace offeryn- ges were. xliiii. the rammes. lx. the gootes. lx. and lambes of a yere olde a pece. lx. and this was the dedicacion of the alter, after that it was anoynted.

And when Moses was gone into the tabernacle of witness to speake wth him, he heard a voyce of one speaking vnto him from of the mercyseate that was vpon the arcke of witness: euen from betwene the two cherubyns he spake vnto him.

The. viii. Chapter.

The disposition and order of the lampes The forme of the candelsticke. The cleansynge and offryng of the Leuytes. The age of the same.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto Aaron and saye vnto him: * whe<sup>n</sup> thou putttest on the lampes se that they lyghte all seuen vpon y<sup>e</sup> forefronte of the candelsticke. And Aaron dyd euen so, and put the lampes vpon the forefronte of the candelsticke, as y<sup>e</sup> Lorde commaunded Moses, and the worke of the candelsticke was of stiffe golde: bothe the shafte and the floutes therof. And accordynge vnto the visio<sup>n</sup> whiche the Lorde had shewed Moses euen so he made the candelsticke.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: take the Leuytes from amonge the children of Israel, and cleanse the. And this do vnto the when thou cleansest them, sprynkle water of purifyenge vpon them and make a rasure to runne alonge vpon all the fleshe of them, and let them washe theyr clothes, and then they shall be cleane. And let them take a bullocke and his meatoffrynge, fyne floure myngled wth oyle: and another bullocke halte thou take to be a synne offrynge.

Then bryng the Leuytes before the tabernacle of witness and gather the hole multitude of the children of Israel together. And bryng the Leuytes before the Lorde, and let the children of Israel put their handes vpon the Leuytes. And let Aaron heue the Leuytes before the Lorde, for an heue offrynge geuen of the children of Israel, and the let them be appointed to wayte vpon the seruyce of the Lorde.

And let the Leuytes put theyr handes vpon the heedes of y<sup>e</sup> bullockes, and then offer them: the one for a synne offrynge and the other for a burnt offrynge vnto the Lorde, to make an attone<sup>m</sup>ente for the Leuytes. And make the Leuytes stande before Aaron & his sonnes, and heue the to be an heue offering vnto the Lorde. And thou shalt separate the Leuytes from amonge the chyldren of Israel, that they be myne: and after that let the go and do y<sup>e</sup> seruyce of y<sup>e</sup> tabernacle of witness. Cleanse them and waue them, for they are geuen vnto me from amonge the chyldren of Israel. For * I haue taken them vnto me for all the fyrste borne that open any matryce amonge the chyldren of Israel.

* For all the fyrste borne among the chyldren of Israel are myne both man and beest: because the same tyme that I smote the fyrste borne in the lande of Egypte, I sanctified them for my selfe: and I haue taken the Leuytes for all y<sup>e</sup> fyrste borne amonge the chyldren of Israel, and haue geuen them vnto Aaron and hys sonnes from amonge the chyldren of Israel to do the seruyce of the chyldren of Israel in the tabernacle of witness and to make an attone<sup>m</sup>ent for the chyldren of Israel, that there be no plage amonge the chyldren of Israel, if they come nye vnto the sanctuarie.

And Moses and Aaron and all the congregacion of the chyldren of Israel, dyd vnto the Leuytes accordynge vnto all that the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the Leuytes purifyed the selues, and washed theyr clothes. And Aaron waued them before the Lorde, and made an attone<sup>m</sup>ente for them, to cleanse them. And after that they went in to do theyr seruyce in the tabernacle of witness, before Aaron and hys sonnes. And accordynge as the Lorde had commaunded Moses as concernynge the Leuytes, euen so they dyd vnto them.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: this shalbe the maner of the Leuytes: * from. xxv. yere vwarde they shall goe in to wayte vpon the seruyce in the tabernacle of witness, and at fyfthe they shall cease waytynge vpon the seruyce therof, and shall laboure no more: but shall minister vnto theyr brethren in the tabernacle of witness, and there wayte, but shal do no more seruyce. And se that thou do after this maner vnto y<sup>e</sup> Leuytes in theyr waytynge tymes.

The. ix. Chapter.

The Offer of Pascheour offynge of the cleane and vncleane. A cloude couerunge the tabernacle leadeth the hoste.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the first moneth of the seconde yere after they were come out of the lande of Egypt sayinge: let the chylde of Israell offer Pascheour in his season: euen the. xiiii. daye of this moneth at euen they shall kepe it in his season, accordynge to all the ordinaunces and maners therof. And Moyses bad the children of Israell they shoulde offer Pascheour, and they offered Pascheour the. xiiii. daye of the first moneth at euen in the wilderness of Sinai: and did accordige to all that the Lord commaunded Moyses.

And it chaunced that certayne men whiche were defyled with a deade corse that they myght not offer Pascheour the same daye, came before Moyses and Aaron the same tyme, and sayde: We are defyled vpon a deade corse, wherfore are we kepte backe that we maye not offer an offerynge vnto the Lord in the due season, amonge the children of Israell: And Moyses sayde vnto the: tary, that I maye heare what the Lord wyl commaunde you. And the Lord spake vnto Moyses sayinge: speake vnto the chylde of Israell and saye: If anye man amonge you or youre chylde after you be vncleane by the reason of a corse or is in the waye ferre of, then let him offer Pascheour vnto the Lord: the. xiiii. daye of the seconde moneth at euen, and eate it with swete breade and soute herbes, and let them leaue none of it vnto the moynynge nor breake any bone of it. And accordynge to all the ordynance of the Pascheour let them offer it.

Children After you be vncleane. But yf a man be cleane and not let in a iourney, and yet was negligent to offer a Pascheour the same soule shall perishe fro his people, because he brought not an offerynge vnto the Lord in his due season: and he shal beare his synne.

And when a straunger dwelleth among you and wyl offer Pascheour vnto the Lord accordynge to the ordynance of Pascheour and maner therof shall he offer it. And ye shall haue one lawe both for the straunger and for him that was borne at home in the lande. A cloude

And the same daye that the habitacion was reered by, a cloude couered it an hye vpon the tabernacle of wytnesse: and at euen there was vpon the habitacio, as it were the similitude of fire vntyl the moynynge. And so it was alwaye, that the cloude couered it by daye, and the similitude of fyre by nyghte. And when the cloude was taken by from of the tabernacle, the children of Israell iourneyed: and where the cloude abode there the children of Israell pyched theyr tentes. At the mouth of the Lord the children of Israell iourneyed, and at the mouth of the Lord they pitched. And as long as the cloude abode vpon the habitacion, they laye still, and when the cloude taried still vpon the habitacion longe tyme, the children of Israell wayted vpon the Lord and iourneyed not.

It it chaunced that the cloude abode any space of tyme vpon the habitacio, then they kepte their tentes at the mouth of the Lord: and they iourneyed also at the commaundement of the Lord. And yf it happened that the cloude was vpon the habitacion from euen vnto moynynge and was taken by in the moynynge then they iourneyed. Whether it was by day or by night that the cloude was taken by, they iourneyed. But when the cloude taried two dayes or a moneth or a longe reason vpon the habitacion, as long as it taried thereon, the children of Israell kept theyr tentes and iourneyed not. And as soone as the cloude was taken by, they iourneyed. At the mouth of the Lord they reasted, and at the commaundement of the Lord they iourneyed. And thus they kept the watche of the Lord, at the commaundement of the Lord by the hande of Moyses.

The notes. For the comfort of the a. As it was with the Jewes for their Ester labe whiche was this Pascheour: so is it with vs in our spiritual ester or Pascheour. Who soeuer doeth not reuerently beleue the redemption of mankynde, whiche was thorowlye fynished in offerynge of the true lambe Christ, and amerceth not his lyfe, nor turneth from vice to vertue in the time of this mortal lyfe: shal not belonge to the glorie of the resurrection, whiche shal be geuen to the true worshippers of Christ, but shal be rored out from the compaignie of the sainctes.

And vnto a ram, thou shalt offer a meateofferynge of. ii. tenth deales of floure, mingled with the thyrde parte of an hin of oyle, & to a drynckofferyng, thou shalt offer the thyrde part of an hin of wyne, to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

Whē thou offerest an ore to a burnt offerynge, or in anye speciall bowe or peaceofferynge vnto the Lorde, thou shalt bynge vnto an ore, a meateofferynge of. iii. tenth deales of floure mingled with halfe an hin of oyle. And thou shalt bring for a drynckofferyng halfe an hin of wyne, that is an offering of a swete sauour vnto the Lord.

This is the maner that shall be done vnto an ore, one ram, a lambe, or a kid. And accordynge to the numbze of such offerynges, thou shalt encrease y meates offerynges & the drynckofferynges.

All that are of your selues shall doe these thynges after this maner, when he offereth an offerynge of swete sauour vnto the Lorde. And yf there be a straunger with you or be amonge you in your generacions, and wyl offer an offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto the Lord: euen as ye do, so shall he do a one ordinaunce shall serue bothe for you of the congregacion, and also for the straunger. And it shall be an ordinaunce for euer amonge youre chyldren after you, that the straunger and ye shall be lyke before the Lorde. One lawe and one maner shall serue, both for you and for the straunger y dwelleth with you.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the children of Israell, & say vnto them: * when ye be come in to y land whether I wyl bring you, then whē ye wyl eate of the breade of the lande, ye shall geue an heueofferynge vnto the Lorde. And that soule shall be dystroyed from amonge his people, because he hath dyspleased the worde of the Lord, and hath broken his commaundementes: that soule therfore shall peyre, & his synne shalbe vpon him.

And whyle the chyldren of Israel were in the wyldernes, they founde a man y gatherynge styckes vpon the Saboth daye. * And they that founde hym gatherynge sticke, brought him vnto Moyses and Aaron, and vnto all the congregaciō: * and they put him in warde, for it was not declared what shoulde be done vnto him. And y Lord sayde vnto Moyses: the man shall dye: let all the multitude stone hym with stones withoute the holte. And all the multitude broughte hym without the holte & stoned him w stones, & he dyed as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and bid the, y they make the gardes vpon the quarters of their garments thozowe oute their generaciōs, and let them make the gardes of rybandes of Iacincte. And the garde shalbe vnto you to loke vpon it, that ye remembre all the commaundementes of Lorde, and do them: that ye seke not a waye after youre owne heartes, and after youre owne eyes, for to goo a whoorynge after them: but that ye remembre & doe all my commaundementes and bee holpe vnto youre God: for I am the Lorde youre God, whiche

The rebellyon & resistance of Chorah Dathā & Abiram. The earth opened and swallowed them vp.

AD* Chorah the sonne of Jezehar, the sonne of Cahath, the sonne of Leui, and Dathan, and Abiram the sonne of Euab, and On the sone of Peleth, y sonne of Rubē: stode vp before Moyses, with other of the chyldren of Israel. ii. hundred and fiftie heedes of y congregaciō, and councelers, & men of fame, and they gathered them selues together agaynste Moyses and Aaron, and sayde vnto the: Ye haue done ynough. * For all the multitude are holy euery one of them, and the Lorde is amonge the. Why therfore heue ye your selues vp aboue the congregaciō of the Lord.

When Moyses hearde it, he fel vpon hys face and spake vnto Chorah and vnto all his company, sayinge: to morowe the Lorde wyl shewe who is his, and who is holpe, and wyl take them vnto hym, and whome so euer he hath chosen, he wyl cause to come to him. This doo: take fyze pannes, thou Chorah and al thy companye, and doe fyze therein and put cens thereto before the Lord to morow. And the whom soeuer the Lorde doeth chose, the same is holpe. Ye make ynoughe to doe, ye chyldren of Leui.

And Eleazar the priest toke the brazen censers which they that were burnt had offered, and beate theym and fastened them vpon the altar, to be a remein braunce vnto the chyldren of Israell, that no straunger whiche is not of the seed of Aaron, come nere to offer cens before the Lorde, that he be not made lyke vnto Corah and his companye: as the Lorde sayd vnto hym by the hande of Moses.

And on the morowe al the multitude of the children of Israell murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron, sayinge: Ye haue kylled the people of the LORD. And when the multitude was gathered agaynst Moses and Aaron, they looked towarde the tabernacle of wytnesse. And beholde, the cloude had couered it and the gloyre of the Lorde appeared. And Moses and Aaron went before the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Get you from this congregacyon, that I maye consume them quickely. And they fell vpon theyr faces.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: take a censer and put fyre therin oute of the alter, and powre on cens, & go quickly vnto the congregacyon, and make an attonement for theym. For there is wrath gone out from the LORD, and there is a plague begon. And Aarō toke as Moses commaunded hym, and ran vnto the congregacyon: and beholde, the plague was begon amonge the people, and he put on cens, and made an attonement for the people. And he stode betwene the dead, and them that were alpyue, and the plague ceased. And the nombre of them that dyed in the plague, were fourtene thousande and. vii. hundred: besyde them that dyed aboute the busynesse of Corah. And Aaron went agayne vnto Moses vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the plague ceased.

* Then they departed from mounte Hor toward the red see: to compassse the land of Edom. And the soules of the people faynted by the way. And the people spake agaynst God and agaynst Moses: * wherfore hast thou broughte vs out of Egypte, for to dye in the wyldernes: for here is nether bread nor water, & our soules lotheth this * lyght bread.

* Then the Lorde sent fyerie serpentes among the people, which stong the: so that muche people dyed in Israell. And the people came to Moses, & sayd: we haue sinned, for we haue spoken agaynst the Lord, & agaynst the: * make intercessyon to the Lorde, that he take away the serpentes from vs. And Moses made intercessio for the people. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: make the a serpent and hange it vp for a sygne, and let as many as are bitten, loke vpon it and they shall lyue.

* And Moses made a serpent of brasse, & set it vp for a sygne. And whē the serpents had byttē any mā, he wēt & beheld the serpent of brasse and recouered.

* And the chyldre of Israel remoued, and pytched in Oboth. And they departed from Oboth, and laye at Egebarim in the wyldernesse which is before Moab on the east syde. And they remoued thence, and pytched vpon the ryuer of zared. And they departed thence, and pytched on the other syde of Arnon, whych ryuer is in the wyldernesse, and cometh out of the coastes of the Amorites: for Arnon is the border of Moab, betwene Moab and the Amorites. Wherefore it is spoken in the boke of y warre of the Lord: go with a violence, both on the ryuer of Arnon and on the ryuers heed, whiche shotheth downe to dwell at Ar, and leaneth vpon the coastes of Moab. Glans And they Destroyed their City whiche is the well whereof the Lorde spake vnto Moses: gather þe people together, that I may geue theym water. Then Israell sange this songe: Arise vp well, synge therto: The well whiche the rulers dygged and the captaynes of the people wyth the helpe of þe lawe: geuer and wyth their staues.

And from this wyldernes they went to Matana, and from Matana to Rahiel, and from Rahiel to Bamoth, and from Bamoth to the valey that is in the feld of Moab in þe top of Phalgah whiche boweth towarde Jeshimo. And Israell sent messengers vnto Sehon, kyng of the Amozites, saying: *let vs go thoro we thy lande: we wyll not tourne into thy feldes nor into thy vineyardes, neyther drynke of the water of the welles: but we wyll go along by the commen waye, vntyll we be paste thy countrey. * And Sehon woulde geue Israell no licence to passe thoro we hys countrey, but gathered all hys people together and went out agaynst Israell into the wyldernes. * And Israel smote him with the edge of the swearde, and conquered his lād, from Arnon vnto Jaboek: euen vnto the children of Ammon. For the borders of þe childre of Ammon, * are ströge. And Israell toke all these cytyes and dwelt in all the cyties of the Amozites: in Hesbon & in al the townes that long therto. For Hesbon was the citie of Sehon the kyng of the Amozites, whiche Sehon had fought before with þe kyng of the Moabites, and had taken al hys lande out of hys hande, euen vnto Arnon. Wherefore it is a prouerbe, go to Hesbon and let the citie of Sehon be bylte and made ready, for there is a fire gone out of Hesbon and a flame frome the citie of Sehon, and hath consumed Ar of the Moabites, and the men of the hylles of Arnon. * And then they tourned and went by towarde Basan. And Og the kyng of Basan came out against them, both he and all his people, to warre at Adzei. And the Lorde saide vnto Moses: feare him not, for I haue deliuered him into thy handes with all hys people and hys land. And I shalte do with him as thou dydest with Sehon þe kyng of the Amozites which dwelt at Hesbon. And they smote hym, and hys sonnes, and all hys people, vntyll there was nothyng left hym. And they conquered hys lande, and the chyldren of Israell remoued and pytched in the feldes of Moab, on the other syde of Iordane, by Jericho.

The. xlii. Chapter. Why standest thou? Balac the sonne of Ziphor saw all þe Israell had done to þe Amozites, & the Moabites were sore afrated of the people, because they were many, & abhorred þe childre of Israell: And Moab said vnto the elders of Moab, now shal this company lycke by all that are rounde about vs, as an oxe licketh by the grasse of the felde. And Balac the sonne of Ziphor was kyng of the Moabites at that tyme. Ziphor saw all that Israel had done to the Moabites, & the elders of Moab went with him to Balac the sonne of Beor, þe interpreter whiche dwelte vpon the riuer of the land of the childre of hys folke, to call hym, saying: behold, there is a people come out of Egipte, whiche couereth the face of the erth, and lyeth euen harde by me. C And God came vnto Balam, & said: what men are these which are with thee? And Balam sayd vnto God: Balac the sonne of ziphor, kynge of Moab, hath sent vnto me, sayinge: beholde, there is a people come out of Egypt, and couereth the face of the earthe: come nowe therfore, and curse me the, & so peraduenture I may be able to ouercome the in batell, and to dyue theym oute. And God sayde vnto Balam: thou shalt not go with them, neyther curse the people, for they are blessed.

And Balam rose vp in the morning, and sayd vnto the lordes of Balac: get you vnto your lande, for the Lord will not suffre me to go with you. And the lordes of Moab rose vp, and went vnto Balac and sayd: Balā wolde not come with vs. And Balac set agayne a greater compaignie of lordes, and more honorable then they. And they came to Balam and tolde hym: Thus saith Balac the sonne of zephor: oh, let nothyng let the, to come vnto me, for I wil greatly promote the vnto great honour, and wyl do what so euer thou sayest vnto me, come therfore I praye the, curse me thys people.

D And Balam answered, and sayd vnto the seruauntes of Balac: * If Balac wolde geue me his house full of syluer and golde, I can go no further then the worde of the Lord my God, to do lesse or more. Neuethelesse tarpe ye here all nyght: that I maye wete, what the Lord wyl saye vnto me once more. And God came vnto Balam by nyght, and sayde vnto hym: If the men come to fet thee, ryle vp, and go with theim: but what I saye vnto thee, that onelpe thou shalt do.

And Balam rose vp early and sabeld his asse, & went to the lordes of Moab. But God was angry because he went. And the angel of the Lord stode in the waye agaynst hym. And he rpd upon his asse and two seruauntes with hym. And when the asse sawe the aungell of the Lord stande in the waye and hys

And the angel of the Lord went forther & stode in a narrow place, where was no way to turne, eyther to the right hande or to the lyfte. And when the asse sawe the aungell of the Lord, he fell downe vnder Balam: and Balam was wryth, and smote the asse wyth a staffe. And the LORD opened the mouth of the asse, and she sayde vnto Balā: what haue I done vnto the, that thou smitest me thus thre tymes? And Balam sayde vnto the asse: because thou haste mocked me: I would that I had a swerde in myne hande, that I myght nowe kill the. ### The. xxiii. Chapter.

Balam propheseth of the kingdome of Israell and of the comynge of Christe. Balac is angry with Balam. The destruction of the Amaleckites and of the Messegers.

When Balam saw that it pleased the Lorde, that he shoulde blesse Israell, he wente not as he dyd twyse before to set soth sayinge, but set hys face toward the wyldernesse, and lyfte vp his eyes, and looked vpon Israell, *as he laye with his trybes, and the spirite of God came vpon hym. * And he toke vp hys parable and sayde: Balam the sonne of Beor hathe sayde, and the man whose eye is open hathe sayde: he hathe sayde, which heareth the wordes of God and seeth the visions of the almyghty, whyche falleth doune and hys eyes are opened.

How goodly are the tentes of Jacob, and thynne habitacion a Israell, euē as the brode valeyes, and as gardens by the ryuers syde, as the tentes which the Lorde hath pytched, and as cypers and trees vpon the water.

The water shall flowe out of hys bouket and hys seed shall be many waters, and *his king shall be hyer then Agag. And his kingdome shall be exalted *God that brought hym oute of Egypte hys strength is as the strengthe of an unicorne, & he shall eat the nacions that are hys enemies, and breake their bones, and perce them thorowe with hys arrowes. He couched hym selfe, and laye doune as a lyon, and as a lyonesse, who shall steepe hym vp: blessed is he that blesseth the, and cursed is he that curseth the.

And Balac was wroth wyth Balam, and smote hys handes together, & sayde vnto him: I sent for the to curse myne enemies: and beholde, thou haste blesseth them this thre tymes, and nowe get the quickly vnto thy place. I thoughte that I woulde promote the vnto honoure, but the Lorde hath kept the backe frome worshype. And Balam sayde vnto Balac: tolde I not thy messengers whiche thou sentest vnto me, sayinge: *If Balac woulde geue me hys house ful of siluer & golde, I can not passe the mouth of the Lorde, to do ether good or bad of myne owne mynde. *What the Lorde sayeth, I must I speake. And now beholde, I go vnto my people: come let me shewe the, what this people shall do to thy folke in later daies: And he began his parable and sayde: Balam the sonne of Beor hathe sayde and the man that hathe hys eye open hathe sayde, and he hath sayd that heareth thee wordes of God, and hath the knowledge of the moste hye, and beholdeth the bysion of the almyghty, and when he falleth doune hath hys eyes opened, I se hym but not nowe, I beholde him but not nye. *There shall come a starre of Jacob, and rise a scepter of Israell, whiche shall limite the costes of Moab and binder myne al the children of Seth. *And Edom shall be hys possession, and the possession of Seir shall be their enemies, and Israell shall do manfully. And out of Jacob shall come he that shall destroy the remnaunte of the cyties. Shew the what

And he looked an Amaleck, and began his parable, and sayd: *Amaleck is the fyrst of the nacions, *but his later ende shall perishe utterly. And he looked on the Kenites, and toke his parable and sayd: stronge is thy dwellynge place, and put thy nest vpon a rocke, neuerthelasse thou shalt bee a burnynge to kane, vntyll Assur take the presoner: And he toke hys parable, and sayde: Alas, who shall lyue when God doeth this: The

Israel. Saying Our father. Numeri. Lyd in Moab.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses saying: The daughters of Zelaphead speake ryghte: Thou shalt geue them a possession to inheret amonge their frathers brethren, and shalt tourne the enheritaunce of theyr father vnto them. And speake vnto the chyldren of Israel saying: If a man dye and haue no sonne ye shal tourne his enheritaunce vnto his doughter. If he haue no doughter, ye shall geue hys enheritaunce vnto hys brethren. If he haue no brethren, ye shall geue hys enheritaunce vnto hys fathers brethren. If he haue no fathers brethren, ye shal geue his enheritaunce vnto him that is nexte to him of his kinred, and let him possesse it. And this shal be vnto the chyldren of Israel an ordinance, and a lawe, as the Lord hath commaunded Moyses. Brother in of our Father

C And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses: get the vp in to thys mount Abarim, & beholde, the lande whiche I haue geue vnto the chyldren of Israel. And when thou shalt seene it, thou shalt be gathered vnto thy people also, as Aarō thy brother was gathered vnto hys people. For ye were disobedient vnto my mouthe in the desert of Sin in the strepe of the congregacion, that ye sanctified me not in the water before theyr eyes. That is y<sup>e</sup> water of strepe in Cades in the wyldernes of zin. And Moyses spake vnto the Lord saying: let the Lord God of the spirites of all fleshe, set a manne ouer the congregacion, whiche maye go in and out before the, and to leade them in and oute that the congregacion of the Lord be not as a flocke of shepe withoute a sheparde. And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses: take Iosua the sone of Nun in whome there is a spirite, and put thine handes vpon him, and set him before Eleazar the preeste and before all the congregacion & geue him a charge in theyr syghte. And put of thy prayse vpon him that all the compaignye of the chyldren of Israel maye heare. And he shall stande before Eleazar the preeft whiche shall aske counsell for him after the iudgemente of Aarim before the Lord: And at the mouthe of Eleazar shall bothe he and all the chyldren of Israel with him and all the congregacio, go in and oute.

And Moyses dyd as the Lord commaunded hym, and he toke Iosua and set him before Eleazar preeft and before all the congregacion, and put his handes vpon him & gaue him a charge, as the Lord commaunded thow the hande of Moyses.

The childre of Ruben, and the childre of Gad, had an exceeding great multitude of catel. And when they sawe the lande of Jazer, and the lade of Gilead that it was an apte place for catel, they came and spake vnto Moyses & Eleazar the priest & vnto the lordes of the congregation, saying: The lande of Ataroth & Dibon & Jazer, and Pemrah & Helbon and Elealeh, and Sabam & Bebo and Beon, which contre the Lord smote before the congregation of Israel: is a lade for catell, and we thy seruantes haue catel: wherfore (sayde they) yf we haue founde grace in thy syght, let this lade be geuen vnto thy seruantes to possesse, and brynge vs not ouer Jordan.

And Moyses sayde vnto the children of Gad and of Ruben: Hal your brethren go to warre, and ye tarpe here: wherfore discorage ye the heartes of the childre of Israel, for to go ouer into the lande, whiche the Lord hath geuen them?

* This did your fathers, when I sent them from Cadeg barne to se the lade. And they went vp euen vnto the ryuer of Escol, and sawe the lande, and discoraged the heartes of the childre of Israel, & they should not go into the lade, whiche the Lord had geuen them.

And the Lord was wroth the same tyme, and sware, sayinge: * None of the men that came oute of Egypte from twentye yere olde and aboue, shal se the lande whiche I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, because they haue not continuallye folowed me: saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune the Keneslyte, and Iosua the sonne of Nun: for they haue folowed me continuallye. And the Lord was angrie with Israel, & made them wandre in the wilderness. xl. yere, vntyl al the generacions that had done euell in the syght of the Lord, were consumed.

And beholde, ye are rysen vp in youre fathers strade, to the increase of synful men, and to augmente the ferefull wrath of the Lord, to Israel warde. For yf ye tourne awaye from after him, he will yet agayne leaue the people in the wilderness, so shal ye destroy al this folke. And they wente nere hyr and sayde:

We will bylde shepfoldes here for our shepe, and for our catel, and ctytes for our chyl dren: But we our selues will go readye armed before the children of Israel, vntyl we haue broughte them vnto theyr place. And our chyl dre shal dwel in the fenced ctytes, because of the inhabiteres of the lande. And we will not retourne vnto our houses, vntyl the chyl dren of Israel haue enherited: euer y man his enheritaunce. For we will not enherit with them on yonder syde Jordan forwarde, because our enheritaunce is fallen to vs on this syde Jordan eastwarde.

And Moyses sayde vnto them: * If ye will do this thyng, that ye will go all harnessed before the Lord to warre, & will go all of you in harnesse ouer Jordan before the Lord, vntil he haue cast out his enemyes before him: and vntyl the lande be subdued before the Lord, then ye shall retourne and be withoute synne againste the Lord, and againste Israel, and this lande shalbe your possession before the Lord. But and yf ye will not do so, beholde, ye synne againste the Lord: and he sure your synne will fynde you out. Bylde your ctytes for your chyl dren & fouldes for your shepe, and se ye do that ye haue spoken. And the childre of Gad and of Ruben spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: thy seruantes wil do as my lord commaundeth. Our chyl dren, our wyues, substance and all our catel shall remayne here in the ctytes of Gilead. But we thy seruantes will go all harnessed for the warre, vnto battel before the Lord, as my lord hath sayde.

And Moyses commaunded Eleazar the priest, and Iosua the sonne of Nun, and the auncient heades of the trybes of the children of Israel: and sayde vnto them: If the childre of Gad and Ruben will go with you ouer Jordan, all prepared to fyght before the Lord: the when the lade is subdued vnto you, geue the the lande of Gilead to possesse, but and yf they will not go ouer with you in harnesse, then they shall haue theyr possessions amonge you in the lande of Canaan. These are the iorneyes of y<sup>e</sup> children of Israel, whiche wet oute of the lade of Egipte with theyr armies vnder Moses and Aaron. And Moses wrote their goinge out by their iorneyes at the commaundemente of the Lord: euen these are y<sup>e</sup> iorneyes of theyr goynge out. The chyldren of Israel departed from Rahmeses the xii. daye of the first moneth, on y<sup>e</sup> morowe after * Pascheduer: and wet out with an hye bande in y<sup>e</sup> syght of al Egipt, while the Egipcians buryed all theyr fyrste borne, which the Lorde had smytten amonge them. And vpon theyr goddes also the Lord did execucion. And y<sup>e</sup> children of Israel remoued from Rahmeses, and pitched in Socoth.

And they departed from * Socoth &

pytched their tentes in Ethan, whiche is in the edge of the wyldernesse. And they remoued from Etha, and tourned vnto the entrynge of * Hiroth which is before Baal zephon, and pitched before Migdol. And they departed fro before Hiroth and * went thorowe the myddes of the sea in to the wyldernesse, and wet iii. dayes iourney in the wyldernesse of Ethan, and pytched in Harah. And they remoued from Harah, and wente vnto * Elim, where were. xii. fountaines and. lxx. paulmetrees and they pytched there.

And they remoued from Elim and laye fast by the red sea. And they remoued from the red sea & laye in the * wyldernesse of Sin. And they toke theyr iourney out of the wyldernesse of Sin, and set vp their tentes in Daphka. And they departed from Daphka, and laye in Alus. And they remoued fro Alus, & laye at * Raphedim, where was no water for the people to drynke. And they departed from Raphedim and pitched in the * wyldernesse of Sinai.

And they remoued from the deserte of Sinai, & lodged at y<sup>e</sup> graues of Iust. And they departed fro the sepulchres of Iust, and lay at * Hazeroth. And they departed from Hazeroth, and pytched in Rithma. And departed fro Rithma, and pytched at Rimō Parez. And they departed from Rimō Parez, and pytched in Libna. And they remoued from Libna, and pytched at Risa. And they iourneyed from Risa & pytched in Rehelatha. And they went fro Rehelatha, and pytched in mount Sapher. And they remoued from mounte Sapher & lay in Harada. And they remoued from Harada, and pytched in Makeheloth.

gabber, and pitched in the * wyldernesse of Sin, whiche is Cades. And they remoued from Cades, & pitched in mount Hor, in the edge of the lande of Edom.

* And Aaron the priest wente vp in to mount Hor, at the commaundement of the Lorde, & dyed there, euen in the fortieth yere, after the chyl dren of Israel were come out of the lande of Egypte, & in the first daye of the fyfte moneth. And Aaron was an hundred and. xlii. yere olde when he dyed in mount Hor. And kynge Etad the Canaanite which dwelt in the southe of the lande of Canaan, hearde that the chyl dren of Israel were come.

And they departed from mount Hor, and pitched in Zalmona. And they departed from Zalmona, and pitched in Phimon, and they departed from Phimon, and pitched in Oboth. And they departed from Oboth, and pitched in Jehabartim in the borders of Moab.

And they departed from Jehabartim, and pitched in Dibon Gad. And they remoued from Dibon Gad, and laye in Almon Diblathama. And they remoued from Almon Diblathama, and pitched in the mountaynes of Abarim before Habbao. And they departed from the mountaynes of Abarim, and pitched in the fel des of Moab, fast by Iordā nye to Jericho. And they pitched vpon Iordan, from Beth Haelmoth * vnto the playne of Abel satim in the fel des of Moab.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses in the fel des of Moab, by Iordā nye vnto Jericho, saying: speake vnto the chyl dren of Israel, & say vnto them: * when ye are come ouer Iordan in to the lade of Canaan, se that ye dzyue out all the inhabiteurs of the lande before you, and destroye their chappelles and al theyr images of Metall, and plucke downe al their alters bylde on hylles: And possesse the lande & dwel therein, for I haue geuen you the lande to enioy it. And ye shall deuyde the enheritaunce of the lade by lot amonge youre kynredes, * and geue to the mo, the moze enherytaunce, and to the fewer, the lesse enheritaunce.

And your enheritaunce shall be in the tribes of your fathers, in the place where euery mans lot falleth.

But and ye ye will not dzyue out the inhabiteurs of the lande before you, the thornes which ye let remayne of the, shall be a thornes in your eyes and darteres in your sydes, and shall bere you in the lade wherein ye dwel. Whereouer, it wil come to passe, that I shall do vnto you, as I thought to do vnto them.

The notes.

a. Thornes in your eyes and darteres in your sydes, that is, they shall bere your rodde, scourge and vndoars.

The. xlii. Chapter.

The borders and borders of the lande of promise. Certain are assigned to deuyde the lande.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: commaunde the chyl dren of Israel, and saye vnto them, when ye come in to the lande of Canaan: this is the lade that shall fall vnto your enheritaunce, the lande of Canaan w al her costes. And * your south quarter shall be from the wilderness of Sin: a longe by the coite of Edom, so that your south quarter shall be from the side of the salte sea eastwarde: and shall set a compasse from the south by to Acrabim: & reache to zinna. And it shall go out on the south syde of Cades Barne, and go out also at Hazar Adar, and go a longe to Azimō. And shall set a compasse from Azimō vnto the ryuer of Egypte, and shall go oute at the sea.

And your west quarter shall be the great sea, which coste shall be your west coste. And this shall be your north quarter: ye shall compasse from the great sea vnto mounte Hor. And from mounte Hor, ye shall compasse and go vnto Hemath, and the ende of the coste shall be at zedadda, and the coste shall reache out to ziphro, and go out at Hazar enan. And this shall be your north quarter.

And ye shall compasse your east quarter from Hazar enan to Sepham. And the coste shall go doune from Sepham to Ribla on the east syde of Ain. And then descende and go oute at the syde of the sea of Cenereth eastwarde. And then go doune a longe by Iordan, and leue at the salte see. And this shall be your lande withall the costes ther.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel, saying: this is the lande whiche ye shal enherit by lotte, & which the Lorde commaunded to geue vnto ix. trybes and an halfe: * for the trybe of the chyldre of Ruben haue receaued, in the householdes of their fathers, and the trybe of the chyldre of Gad, in their fathers householdes, and halfe the tribe of Manasse, haue receaued their enheritaunce, that is to wete. ii. trybes and an halfe haue receaued their enheritaunce on the other syde of Jordan, by Jericho eastwarde, towarde the sonne ryse.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, saying: These are the names of the men, whiche shal deuyde you the lande to enherit. Eleazar the priest, and * Josua p sonne of Nun. And ye shal take also a lorde of every trybe to deuyde the lade, whose names are these: In the trybe of Juda, Caleb the sonne of Jephune.

And in the trybe of the chyldren of Simeon, Semuel the sonne of Amud, and in the trybe of Ben Jamin, Elidad the sonne of Cisson. And in the trybe of the chyldren of Dan, the lorde Bucki the sonne of Jagli. And amonge the chyldre of Joseph: in the trybe of the chyldre of Manasse, the lorde Daniel the sonne of Ephod. And in the tribe of the chyldren of Ephraim, the lorde Camuel p sonne of Siphthan. And in the trybe of the sonnes of Zabulon, the lord Elizaphan p sonne of Pharnach. And in the trybe of the chyldre of Issachar, the lord Palthiel the sonne of Asan. And the trybe of the sonnes of Aser, the lorde Abihud the sonne of Salomi. And in the trybe of the chyldren of Nephthali, the lorde Beda El the sonne of Aminihud. These are they whiche the lorde commaunded to deuyde the enheritaunce vnto p chyldren of Israel, in the lande of Canaan.

The. xxxv. Chapter.

¶ Into the Leuites must be geuen Cities and Subburbes. The Cities of refuge or sanctuaries. The lawe of manquelling. For one mannes witnesse shal no man be condemned.

And p Lord spake vnto Moses in the feldeg of Moab by Jordā, ouer agāst Jericho, saying: commaunde p chyldren of Israel, that they geue vnto the Leuites of p enheritaunce of their possession: * cities to dwell in. And ye shal geue also vnto the cities of p Leuites, suburbes rounde aboute them. The cities shal be for them to dwell in, & p suburbes for their catel, possessio & al manner beastes of theirs. And p suburbes of the cities whiche ye shal geue vnto the Leuites, shal reach from p wal of p citie outwarde, a thousande cubytes rounde aboute. And ye shal measure wout the citie, and make the vtmost border of p eastsyde: two thousande cubytes. And the vtmost border of the southsyde: two thousande cubytes. And the vtmost border of p westsyde: two thousande cubytes: and the vtmost border of the northsyde: two thousande cubites also: and the citie shal be in the middes. And these shal be the subburbes of theyr cytyes. East West North & South.

And amonge the cities whiche ye shal geue vnto p leuites, * there shal be sixe cities of fraunches whiche ye shal geue to that intent p he whiche killeth, maye flye thither. And to them ye shal adde xlii. cities mo: so that al p cities whiche ye shal geue the Leuites, shal be. xlviii. with theyr subburbes. And of the cities whiche ye shal geue oute of the possessions of the chyldre of Israel, ye shal geue many oute of their possessiōs that haue much, & fewe out of theyr possessiōs that haue lytle: so that euery trybe shal geue of hys cyties vnto the Leuites, accordynge vnto the enheritaunce whiche he enheriteth.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: * when ye be come ouer Jordan in to p lande of Canaan, ye shal bylde cities whiche shal be priuyleged townes for you: that he whiche sleeth a man vnwares, maye flye thither. And the cities shal be to lie fro the executer of bloude, that he whiche kyled dye not, vntil he stande before p congregaciō in iudgemēt. And of these vi. fre cities whiche ye shal geue, iii. ye shal geue on this syde Jordan, and iii. in the lande of Canaan. And these syre fre cytyes shal be for the chyldren of Israel and for the straunger, and for him that dwelleth amonge you: that all they whiche kyl any persone vnwares,

And then my lord commaunded in the name of the Lorde to geue the enheritaunce of zelaphead our brother vnto his doughters. Now when any of the sonnes of the trybes of Israel take them to wyues, then shall their enheritaunce be taken from y enheritaunce of oure fathers, and shal be put vnto the enheritaunce of the trybe in whiche they are and shal be taken from the lot of oure enheritaunce. And when the yere of iubelye cometh vnto the children of Israel, then shal their enheritaunce be put vnto the enheritaunce of the tribe wherin they are, and so shall their enheritaunce be taken awaye from the enheritaunce of y trybe of oure fathers.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel, at the mouth of y Lord, sayinge: the tribe of the children of Joseph haue sayde well. This therfore doeth the Lorde comaunde the doughters of zelaphead, sayinge: let them be wyues to whome they the selfe thincke best, but in the kynted of the trybe

most: depart therefore & take your iourney and go vnto the hilles of the Amorites, and vnto all places nye therunto: bothe fildes, hilles and dales: and vnto the south, and vnto the sea syde, in the lande of Canaan, and vnto Libanon: euen vnto the greate ryuer Euphrates. Beholde, I haue set the lande before you: go in therefore & possesse the lande whiche the Lorde sware vnto youre fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to geue vnto them and theyr seed after them.

And I sayd vnto you the same ceason: I am not able to beare you my selfe alone. For the Lorde youre God hath multiplied you: so that ye are this day as the starrs of heauen in nombre (the Lorde God of youre fathers make you a thousande tymes so manye moo as ye are, and blesse you as he hath promised you) how (sayd I) can I my selfe alone, beare & combraynce, charge & strepe that is amonge you & brynge therefore men of wysdome, and of vnderstandynge, & expert, knowen amonge youre tribes, that I maye make them ruelars ouer you. And ye answered me and sayde: that whiche thou haste spokē is good to be done. And then I toke the heades of youre tribes, men of wysdome, and that were expert, & made the ruelars ouer you: captayns ouer thousandes, & ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, and ouer tenne, and offycers amonge youre tribes.

And I charged your iudges the same tyme, sayinge: heare your brethren, and iudge ryghteously betwene euery mā and hys brother, and the straunger that is with hym. Se that ye know no man in iudgement: but heare the small as well as the greate, and be afrayed of no man, for the iudgement is Gods. And the cause that is to harde for you brynge vnto me, and I will heare it. And I commaunded you the same ceason, al the thynges which ye shoulde do. And then we departed frome Horeb, & walked thoro we al that great and terrible wyldernesse, as ye haue sene a longe by the way that leadeth vnto the hilles of the Amorites, as the Lorde our God commaunded vs, and came to Cadis barne. And there I sayde vnto you: Ye are come vnto the hilles of the Amorites, whiche the Lorde our God dothe geue vnto vs. Beholde, the Lorde thy God hath set the lande before the: goo bp and conquere it, as the Lorde God of thy fathers sayeth vnto thee: feare not, nether be discoraged. And then ye came vnto me euery one and sayde: Let vs sende men before vs, to searche vs out the land, & to brynge vs worde agayn, both what way we shall go bp by, & vnto what cities we shall come. And the sayinge pleased me wel: and I toke out xii. men of you, of euery tribe one. And they departed, & wēt bp in to the hye contrey, & came vnto the ryuer Escoll, and searched it out, & toke of the fruite of the lande in their handes, & broughte it doune vnto vs, and broughte vs woorde agayne, and sayde: It is a good lande, whiche the Lorde our God doth geue vs.

Notwithstandinge, ye wolde not consent to goe bp, but were disobedyent vnto the mouth of the Lorde youre God, and murmured in youre tentes, and sayde: by cause the Lorde hateth vs, therefore he hath brought vs oute of the lande of Egypte, to deliuer vs in to the handes of the Amorites, and to dystroie vs. Howe shall we goe bp: Sure brethren haue discoraged oure heartes, saynge: the people is greater and taller then we, and the cities are great and walled euen bp to heauen, & moreouer we haue sene the sonnes of the Enakimes there.

And I sayde vnto you: dreade not, nor be afrayed of them. The Lorde your God whiche goeth before you, he shall fyght for you, accordinge vnto all that he dyd vnto you in Egypte before your eyes, and in the wyldernesse: as thou haste sene how that the Lorde thy God bare the, as a man shoulde beare hys sonne, thoro we out al the way whiche ye haue gone, vntyl ye came vnto this place. And yet for all thys sayinge ye dyd not beleue the Lorde youre God whiche goeth the way before you, to setche you oute a place to pytche youre tentes in. In fyre by nyghte, that ye might see what waye to goe, and in a cloude by daye.

And the Lorde hearde the voyce of your words, & was wrath, & sware, sayinge: there shall not one of these men of this froward generacion see y good land which I sware to geue vnto your fathers, saue Caleb the sonne of Je-phune, he shall see it, & and to hym wyl I geue y lād which he hath walked in, & to his childrē, because he hath continuallye folowed y Lorde. Lyke wise y Lorde was angrye w me for your sakys, sayinge: thou also shalt not goe in thither. But Josua y sōne of Nun which stādeth before the, he shal go in thither.

 Beholde hym therfore, for he shall deuide the heritage vnto Israel. *More ouer, your childrē which ye sayd shuld be a praye, and youre sonnes whiche knowe nether good nor bad thys daye, they shal go in thither, & vnto them I wil geue it, and they shal enioye it. But as for you turne backe and take youre iourneye in to the wylbernes: euen the way to the read see. Then ye answered and sayde vnto me: *We haue sinned agaynst the Lorde, we wyl goe vp & fyght, accordynge to al that the Lorde our God cōmaunded vs. And when ye had girde on euery mā hys wepons of warre, & were ready to goe vp in to the hylles, the Lorde sayde vnto me: saye vnto them, see that they goo not vp, & that they fight not, for I am not amonge them: lest ye be plaged before your enemies. And when I tolde you ye woulde not heare: but disobeyed the mouth of the Lorde, & wente presump-tuously vp in to the hylles.

Then the Amozites which dwelt in those hylles, came oute agaynst you and chased you (as bees do) and hewed you in Seir, euen vnto Horma. And ye came agayne, & wpt before the Lord: but the Lorde woulde not heare youre voyce nor geue you audience. And so ye abode in *Cades a longe ceason, according vnto y tyme that ye remained in other places.

The notes.

a. The people beinge unfaithful, woulde not go vnto the lande promised, but murmured against the Lorde y promised it, because they beleued not y he was faythful & wold fulfil his promis.
 b. Their conscience gaue them, that they had become to be hated of the Lorde, & therfore through unbeliefe, they thought y what soeuer wente agaynst them, came of the hatred of God. Yea, this unbeliefe caused them to thincke, that their deliuerance out of the seruitude of Egypt came of hatred. But yf euer God may be sayd to hate a man, it is when he regardeth him not but suffereth him so to reuue at large without any go-uernaunce of hys grace. Deut. 10. 16.

 c. Here is the very pynage of barbat liue in thys most perillous tyme. For euen we likewise, where Goddes word is, there beleue we not: and where it is not, there be we bolde.

The. ii. Chapter.

A reherfall of that whiche was done from the tyme that they departed from Cades barme, vnto the battell agaynst the hynges Schon and Og.

Then we tourned & toke oure iourney in to the wildernes, euen by the waye to the read sea as the Lorde commaunded me. And we compassed the mountayns of Seir a longe tyme. Then the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge: ye haue compassed these mountayns log ynough, tourne you northwarde. And warne y people, sayinge: Ye shal go thorow the costes of your brythre the childrē of Esau whiche dwel in Seir, & they shalbe afrayed of you: But take good hede vnto youre selues, y ye prouoke them not, for I wyl not geue you of theire lande, no not so muche as a fote breade: *bycause I haue geuen mounte Seir vnto Esau to possesse: ye shal bte meate of them for money to cate, & ye shal bte water of them for money to dryncke.
 For the Lord thy God hath blessed the in all the workes of thyne hande, and knew the as thou wentest thorow this great wylbernesse. Moreover y Lorde thy God hath bene with the this. xl. yeres, so that thou hast lacked nothinge.

And when we were departed frome our brythzen, y children of Esau which dwelt in Seir, by the felde way fro E-lath & Ezion Gaber we tourned and went the way to the wildernes of Moab. Then y Lorde sayde vnto me, se y thou beere not y Moabites, nether prouoke the to battel, for I wyl not geue the of theire lande to possesse: because I haue geuen it vnto y children of Loth to possesse. The Emims dwelt there in in tymes passe, a people great, many and tall, as the Enakims: whiche also were taken for grauntes as the *Enakims: And the Moabites called them Emims. In lyke maner the Moabites dwelt in Seir before tyme, whiche the childrē of Esau cast out, & destroyed the before the, & dwelt there in their stede:
 as Israel did in y land of his possessio,

Cades barne vntyl we were come ouer the ryuer zared, was. xxxviii. yeres, vntyll all the generacton of the men of warre were wasted out of the host, as  $\bar{p}$ Lorde sware vnto them. \* for in dede the hande of  $\bar{p}$  Lorde was agaynst the,
to distrope the out of the holte, tyl they were consumed.

And as sone as al the men of warre were consumed and deade fro amonge the people, then the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge: thou shalt go thozow Ar, $\bar{p}$  cost of Moab this day: & shalt come nye vnto the childe of Ammon: se that thou bere the not, nor yet prouoke the.
for I wyl not geue the of the lande of $\bar{p}$  childe of Ammon to possesse, because I haue geuen it vnto the childe of Loth to possesse. That also was taken for a lande of geauntes, and geauntes dwelt therein in olde tyme, & the Ammo-nites called the zamzumims, a people that was great, many & talle, as the Enakims. But the Lorde destroyed the before  $\bar{p}$  Ammonites, & they cast the out and they dwelt there in their steade: as he dyd for the childe of Esau which dwelt in Seir: Euen as he destroyed the hozims before them: and they cast them out and dwelt in their steade vnto this day. And the Amims which dwelt in Hazarim euen vnto Aza, the Caph-thozims whiche came out of Caphthoz destroyed the & dwelt in their towmes.

Ryse by, take your iourney and go ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, * I haue geuen in to thy hand Schon the Amozite kinge of Helbon, & hys lande.
Goe to and conquere, and prouoke hym to battell. Thys daye I wyl beginne to sende the feare and dreade of thee, vpon al nacions that are vnder al portes of heauen: so that when they heare speake of  $\bar{p}$  they shall tremble & quake for feare of thee.

Then I sent messengers oute of the wyldernesse of the easte vnto Schon kinge of Helbon, w wordes of peace, sayinge: * Let me go thozowe thy land.
I wyl goo alwayes alonge by the hys way: & wyl nether tourne vnto  $\bar{p}$  right hande nor to the lefte. Sell me meate for money for to eate, & geue me drinke for money for to dryncke. I wyl goo thozow by fote onely\* (as the childe of Esau dyd vnto me whiche dwell in Seir & the Moabites whiche dwell in Ar) vntyll I be come ouer Jordan, into the lande whiche the Lorde oure God geueth vs.

But Schon the kynge of Helbon wolde not lette vs passe by hym, for the Lorde thy God had hardened his sprite and made his heart tough, bycause he woulde delouer hym in thy handes as it is come to passe thys daye.

And the Lorde sayd vnto me: beholde, I haue begonne to set Schon and his lande\* before the: goe to & conquere,  $\bar{p}$ thou mayste possesse his lande. \* Then Bothe Schon and all hys people came out agayst vs vnto battell at Jahaza.
And the Lorde set hym before vs, & we smote hym & his sones & al his people.

And we toke all his cities the same reason and destroyed al the cities with men, women and childe, & let nothing remayne, saue  $\bar{p}$  cattel onely we caught vnto our selues, and the spoyle of the cities whiche we toke from Moer vpon the bynke of the ryuer of Arnon, and the citie in  $\bar{p}$  ryuer vnto Gilead: there was not one citie to stronge for vs.
The Lorde oure God delouered al vnto vs: onely vnto the lande of the children of Ammon ye came not, nor vnto al the coste of the ryuer Iabocke, nor vnto the cities in the mountaynes, nor vnto what soeuer the Lorde oure God forbade vs.

The notes.  $\bar{p}$  Emim, is a kind of giauntes, so called, because they were terrible and cruell. For Emim signifieth terriblenesse.  $\bar{p}$  Hozims, a kynde of gyauntes, and signifieth noble, because that of pride they called them sel-ues nobles or gentles.  $\bar{p}$  zamzumims, a kynde of gyauntes, and signifieth mischeuousse. They were tyrantes, cruell theues and pollars.

Ad nowe herken Israel vnto the ordinaunces & lawes whiche I teache you, for to do them, that ye may lyue & go in & conquere the lande, whiche the Lorde God of youre fathers geueth you. * Ye shal a put nothings into the worde whiche I commaunde you, neither do ought therfrom, that ye may kepe the commaundementes of y Lorde your God which I commaunde you. Your eyes haue sene what the Lorde dyd vnto Baall Peor: * for all the men that folowed Baall Peor, the Lorde your God hath destroyed from among you. But ye that claue vnto the Lorde your God, are al yue euery one of you thys daye. Beholde, I haue taughte you ordinaunces & lawes, suche as the Lorde my God commaunded me, that ye shuld do euen so in the lade whether ye goe to possesse it.

Kepe the therefore and do them, * for that is your wisdom and vnderstandyng in the light of the nations: which when they haue herde al these ordinaunces, shall saye: O what a wyse and vnderstandyng people is thys greates nacion. For what nacion is so greates, that hath Goddes so nye vnto hym: as the Lorde our God is nye vnto vs, in all thinges, when we call vnto him: Yea, and what nacion is so greates, that hath ordinaunces and lawes so ryghteous, as all thys lawe whiche I set before you thys daye.

Take hede to thy selfe therfore, and kepe thy soule diligently, that thou forget not the thynges whiche thyne eyes haue sene, & that they departe not out of thyne hearte, al the dayes of thy lyfe: but * teache them thy sonnes and thy sonnes sonnes. The daye y I stode before the Lorde your God in Horeb, when he sayde vnto me, gather me the people together, that I may make the heare my wordes, that they may lerne to feare me as longe as they lyue vpon the earth: * and that they may teache their children: ye came and * stode also vnder the hyll, and the hyll burnt with fyre: euen vnto the myddes of heauen, and there was darkenesse, cloudes and myste. And the Lorde spake vnto you out of the fyre, and ye herde the voyce of the wordes, but sawe no ymage, saue herde a voyce onely.

And he declared vnto you his commaundment, whiche he commaunded you to do, euen .x. verses & wrote them in two tables of stone. And the Lorde commaunded me y same reason, to teache you ordinaunces & lawes, for to do them in the lande whether ye goe to possesse it.

Take hede vnto your selues, diligently as pertainyng vnto your soules, for ye sawe no maner of ymage the daye when the Lorde spake vnto you in Horeb out of the fyre: lest ye * marre your selues, & make you graue ymagis, after what soeuer lykenesse it be: whether after the lykenesse of man or woman, or any maner beast that is on the earth, or of any maner fethered foule that flyeth in the ayre, or of any maner woorme that cleapeth on the earth, or of any maner fysh that is in the water beneth the earth. * Yea, & lest thou lifte by thyne eyes vnto heauen, & when thou seist the sunne and the moone, and the starres and whatsover is contayned in heauen, shouldest be deceaued, & thuldest bowe thy selue vnto them and serue the thinges * whiche y Lorde thy God hath distributed vnto al nations, that are vnder al quarters of heauen.

For the Lorde toke you & broughte you out of the byzon * forname of Egypt, to be vnto him a people of inheritance, as it is come to passe this day. Forthermore, the Lorde was * angrie w me for youre sakes, and swate that I shoulde not goe ouer Jordan, and that I shoulde not go vnto that good lande, whiche the Lorde thy God geueth the to inheritance. * for I muste dye in this lande, & shall not go ouer Jordan. But ye shall goo ouer and conquere that good lande.

Take hede vnto your selues therefore, y ye forget not the appoyntment of the Lorde your God which he made with you: & that ye make you no grauen ymage, of whatsover it be that y Lorde thy God hath forbidden thee. * for the Lorde thy God is a consuming fyre and a gelouse God.

¶ Because God proueth his by affliction, therefore he is called a consuming fyre, as Hebrues the. ii. g. and because he consumed the vnsapthful reinedileffe, for there is nothynge that can resist his anger towards them. And he is called Jealous, because he can not suffer that any thynge shoulde fall from hym.

The. v. Chapter.

¶ The ten commaundmentes of the lawe, no Image may be made:

And Moses called vnto al Israel, & sayd vnto them: heare ye Israel the ordinaunces & lawes whiche I speake in thynne eares this daye, and learne the & take hede þe ye doe them. * The Lorde our God made an apoyntment with vs in Horeb. The Lorde made not this bonde with our fathers, but with vs: we are they, whiche are all here alpye this daye. The Lorde talked with you a face to face in the mounte, oute of the fyre. And I stode betwene the Lorde and you the same tyme, to shewe you the sayinge of the Lorde. for ye were afrayed of the fyre, and therefore went not vp in to the mounte and he sayde. * I am þe Lorde thy God, which brought the out of the land of Egypt the house of bondage. Thou shalt haue therfore none other goddes in my presence.

Ex. xxi. a.

* Thou shalt make thee no graven ymage of anye maner lykenesse þe is in heauen aboue, or in erth benethe, or in the water beneth the erth. Thou shalt nether bow thy selfe vnto the, nor serue them, * for I the Lorde thy God, am a gelouise God; visitynge the wickednes of the fathers vpon the children, euen in the thyrde and fourthe generacion, amonge the þe hate me: and shewe mercy vpon thousandes amonge them that loue me, and kepe my commaundmentes.

Exod. xx. a.

* Thou shalt not take the name of the Lorde thy God in bayne: for the Lorde wyl not holde him guiltlesse, that taketh hys name in bayne. * Kepe the Saboth daye, that thou sanctifie it, as the Lorde thy God hath commaunded the.

Exod. xx. b.

Gen. ii. a.

* Sixe dayes thou shalt labour & doe al þe thou hast to doe, but the seventh day is þe Saboth of the Lorde thy God: thou shalt doe no manner worke, nether thou nor thy sonne, nor thy doughter, nor thy seruaunte, nor thy mayde, nor thyne oxe, nor thyne asse, nor any of thy catel, nor the straunger that is within thy cite, that thy seruaunte and thy mayde maye rest as well as thou. And remembre that thou wast a seruaunte in the lande of Egypte, & howe that the Lorde God, brought the out there with a myghtye hande and a stretched oute arme. for whiche cause the Lorde thy God commaunded thee to kepe the Saboth daye.

These wordes the Lorde spake vnto all poure multitude in þe mounte oute of the fyre, cloude and darckenes, with a loude voyce, & added no more thereto, and wrote them in. ii. tables of stone, & deliuered the vnto me.

Rom. vii. c.

But as sone as ye hearde the voyce out of the darckenesse and sawe the hyl burne with fyre, ye came vnto me all the heades of poure trybes and poure elders: & ye sayde: beholde, þe Lorde our God hath shewed vs his glorie & hys greatnesse, & we haue herde his voyce out of the fyre, and we haue sene this daye þe God maye talke with a man and he yet liue. And nowe wherfore shoulde we dye that this great fyre shoulde consume vs? If we shoulde heare þe voyce of the Lorde our God anye more, we shoulde dye. for what is anye fleashe that he shoulde heare the voyce of the liuinge God speakynge out of the fyre (as we haue done) & shoulde yet lyue? The lawe must be earnestly pynted in their hertes and to kepe it in memory they must wryt it on the doores & postes of theyr houses. And teach it vnto their chyldre.

These are the commaundementes, ordynaunces, & lawes, which the LORDE your GOD commaunded to teache you, that ye mighte do theym in the lande: whyther ye go to possesse it: that thou myghtest & feare * the LORDE thy GOD, to kepe all his ordynaunces and his commaundementes which I commaunde the: both thou and thy sonne, & thy sonnes sonne all the dayes of thy lyfe, that thy dayes maye be proulonged. Heare therfore Israell and take hede that thou do thereafter, that it maye go wel with the, and that ye maye encrease myghtely, euen as the Lorde God of thy fathers hathe promysed the, a land that floweth with mylke and honye.

* Heare Israell, þ Lorde thy GOD is Lord only, & and thou shalt loue þ Lord thy GOD with al thyne hart, with al thy soule, & with all thy myght. * And these wordes whiche I commaunde the this

And they shalbe papers of remembraunce betwene thine eyes, and shalt wryt them vpon þ postes of thyne house, and vpon thy gates.

And when the Lorde thy GOD hathe broughte the into the lande, whiche he sware vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to geue the: with greate and goodly ceties which thou byldedst not, and houses ful of all maner goods which thou filledst not, & welles digged which thou diggedest not, & bynes, and olyue trees which thou plantedest not and when thou hast eaten and arte full: Then beware lest thou forget þ Lorde whiche brought the oute of the lande of Egypte the house of bondage. * But feare the Lord thy GOD, & serue hym, & sweare by his name, & se that ye walke not after straunge gods: of the goddes of the nacyōs which are about you. For the Lorde thy GOD is a gelouse GOD amonge you: lest the wrath of the Lord thy GOD wage whote vpon the, and destroye the from the erth.

The. vii. Chapter.

The Israelites may make no couenaunt or appoint ment with y Gentylis. They must destroy therr Idols. Them that kepe the commaundementes both God loue and blesse, and the contrary hateth y punishment. Idols etres must be layde.

When the Lord thy God hath brought the into y land wht ther thou goest to possesse it, he hath cast out many nacpos before the: the Hethites, y Gerseites, the Amorites, the Cananites, y Phere sites, the Heuites and the Jebulites. vii. nacpons mo in nombre & myghty: et than thou: * and when the Lord thy God hath set them before the, that thou shuldest smyte them, se that thou vtterlye destroye the, and make no couenaunt wyth theym, nor haue compassyon on theym. Also thou shalt make no maria ges with them, nether geue thy doughter vnto his sonne, nor take his doughter vnto thy sonne. * for they wil make poure sonnes departe fro me, and serue straunge Gods, and then will the wrath of the Lord waxe whote vpon you, and destroye you shortly.

their pylles, cut downe their groves, and burne their grauen ymages wyth fire. * For thou art an holy nacyon vnto the Lord thy God: the * Lord thy God hath chose the, to be a seueral people vnto hymselfe, of al nacpos that are vpon y erth. It was not because of the multitude of you aboue al nacpos, that the Lord had lust vnto you, and chose you. For ye were fewest of all nacpons. But by cause y Lord loued you, and because he wold kepe the * othe which he had sworne vnto your fathers, therefore he brought you oute of Egypte wyth a mightie hand, and deliuered you out of the house of bondage: euen fro the hand of Pharaon, kynge of Egypte. vnderstande therefore, y the Lord thy god, he is god, & that a true god * which kepeth poyntment and mercy vnto the that loue hym, and kepe hys commaun demetes, euen thorow out a thousande generacyons, and rewardeth them that hate hym * before hys face so that he bryngeth theym to nought, and wil not deferre the tyme, vnto hym that hateth hym, but wyll rewarde him before hys face. Kepe therefore the commaun demetes, ordynaunces and lawes, why che I commaunde you thys daye, that ye do them.

* If ye shall hearken vnto these lawes, and shal obserue & do them, the shal the Lord thy God kepe poyntmet with the, and the mercy which he sware vnto thy fathers, and wyl loue the, blesse the and multiply the: he wyl blesse the frute of thy wombe, and the frute of thy felde, thy corne, thy wyne, & thine ople, y frute of thine open, & the stockes of thy shepe, in y lande, which he sware vnto thy fa thers to geue the. Thou shalt be blessed aboue al nacpons: there shalbe neither man nor woman vnfrutefull amonge you, nor any thyng vnfrutful amonge your ratell. Moreover, the Lord wyll * turne from the, al maner infirmities, and wyl put none of the euell diseases * of Egypt (whiche thou knowest) vpon the, but wyl sende theym vpon theym that hate thee.

Thou shalt brynge to nought all nac yons whiche the Lord thy God dely uereth the: thynne eye shal haue no pytie vpo the, nether shalt y serue their gods

And thinke on all y waye which the Lord thy God lead the this xl. yere in the wildernes, for to humble the: and to proue the, to wete what was in thyne herte, whether thou wouldest kepe hys commaundementes or no. He a humbled the, and made the hongrye and fed the with Man; whiche nether thou nor thy father knewe of, to make the knowe, that a man must not lyue by bread onely: but by all that procedeth out of y mouth of the Lorde, must a man lyue. b Thy rayment waxed not olde vpon the, nether dyd thy fete swell this. xl. yeres.

Understande therfore in thyne hert, that as a man nourtereth his sonne, eue so the Lord thy GOD nourtereth the. They are forbidden to trust in their own strength. A rehearsal of certayne thynges that were done after the lawe was geuen, vnto the murmuring at the graues of Iust.

Hearke Israell, thou goest ouer Jordan this daye, to go and conquere nacjons, greater & myghtier then thy selfe: and cities great and walled vp to heauen, and people * great and tall, euē y<sup>e</sup> children of the Enakims, which thou knowest, and of whom thou hast herd saye, who is able to stande before the childre of Enach: But understande this daye, that the Lorde thy GOD which goeth ouer before the, a consuming fire, he shall destroye them, and he shall subdue the before the. And thou shalt cast them out, and bynge them out, and bynge them to nought quickly, as the Lorde hath sayde vnto the.

Where is mas the Lorde thy GOD hath cast them oute before the, saying: for my righteousnes the Lorde hath brought me in, to possesse this land. * Nay, but for the wickednes of these nacjons the Lorde doth cast the out before the. * It is not for thy righteousness sake, & right hert that y<sup>e</sup> goest to possesse their land: But partely for the wickednes of these nacjons, & Lorde thy GOD doth cast the out before the, & partly to performe that which y<sup>e</sup> Lorde thy GOD sware vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

Understande therfore that it is not for thy righteousness sake, that y<sup>e</sup> Lorde thy GOD doth geue the this good lande to possesse it, for thou art a stiffnecked people. Remembre & forget not, howe thou prouokedest y<sup>e</sup> Lorde thy GOD in the wilderness: for sence the day y<sup>e</sup> thou camest out of the land of Egypt vntill ye came vnto this place, ye haue rebelled agaynst the Lorde. * Also in Horeb ye angered y<sup>e</sup> Lorde, so that the Lorde was wroth wth you, euē to haue destroyed you, after that I was gone vp into the mount, to fet the tables of stone, the tables of appoyntemente, whyche the LORDE made with you. And I abode in the hill fortye daies and fortye nightes, and nether ate bread nor drak water. * And the Lorde deliuered me. ii. tables of stone written wth the finger of GOD, and in theym was accordynge to all the wordes which the Lorde sayde vnto you in the mount, out of the fire in the daye when the people were gathered together.

And when the fortye daies and fortye nyghtes were ended, the Lorde gaue me the. ii. tables of stone, the tables of the testament, and sayde vnto me: * Up, & get the downe quickly from hence, for thy people which y<sup>e</sup> hast brought out of Egypt, haue marred them selues. They are turned attace out of the way, which I commaunded them, & haue made the a GOD of metall. Furthermore the Lorde spake vnto me, saying: I se this people how y<sup>e</sup> it is a stiffnecked people, let me alone, that I maye destroye them, & put out the name of them from vnder heauen, and I wyll make of the a nacjon both greater and mo than they.

For I was afraied of the wrath & fearnes wherwith the Lord was angry wth you, euen for to haue destroyed you. But the Lord herd my petition at that tyme also.

The Lord was very angry with Aaron also, euē for to haue destroyed him: But I made intercessyon for Aaron also y<sup>e</sup> same tyme. And I toke your sinne, * the calfe whiche ye had made, & burnt him with fire, & staped hym & grounde him a good, euen vnto small dust. And I caste the duste therof into the broke, & that disceded out of the mount. # Receptes, Deuteronomium.

For ye are not yet come to rest, nor vnto the inheritaunce which the LORD your GOD geueth you. But ye shall go ouer Jordan, and dwell in the land which the LORD your GOD geueth you to inherit, & he shall geue you reste from all your enemyes rounde about: and ye shall dwell in safetie.

Therefore whē the Lorde your GOD hath chosen a place to make hys name dwel there, thither ye shal bring al that I commaunde you: your burnt sacrifices, & your offerings, youre tythes, & the heue offerings of your handes, and all your Godly vowes whiche ye vowe vnto the LORD. And ye shall reioyse before the LORD your God, bothe ye, your sonnes, and youre daughters, your seruantes, and your maydes, and the Leuite that is wythin your gates, *for he hath nether parte nor inheritaunce with you.

Take heede that thou offer not thy burnt offerynges in whatsoeuer place thou seest: but in the place whiche the LORD shall haue chosen amonge one of thy trybes, there thou shalt offer thy burnt offerynges, and there shalt do all that I commaund the. Notwithstandyng thou mayest kyll & eate fleshe in all thy cytyes, whatsoeuer thy soule lusteth after, accordyng to the blessing of the LORD thy GOD whiche he hath geuen the, both the vncleane and the cleane mayest thou eate, euen as the Roe, and p Hart: onelre eate not the bloud, but powze it vpon the earth as water. Thou mayst not eate wythin thy gates the tythe of thy corne, of thy wyne and of thy oyle, ether p firstborne of thyne oxen, or of thy shepe, nether any of thy vowes which thou bowest, nor thy freewyllofferynges or heue offerynges of thine handes: but thou must eate the before p LORD thy GOD, in the place which the Lord thy GOD hath chosen: bothe thou, thy sonne, and thy daughter, thy seruaut, & thy mayd, and the Leuite that is wythin thy gates: and thou shalt reioyce before p Lorde thy God, in all that thou putttest thine hande to. And * beware that thou forsake not the Leuite as long as thou lyest vpon the erth.

If when p Lord thy God hath enlarged thy coastes * as he hath promysed the thou say, I wyl eate fleshe, because thy soule longeth to eate fleshe: then shalt eate fleshe, whatsoeuer thy soule lusteth. If the place whiche the Lorde thy God hath chosen to put hys name there, be to ferre fro the, the thou mayst kil of thy oxen, & of thy shepe which the Lorde hath gyuen the, as I haue commaunded the, & thou mayst eate in thyn owne cyty, whatsoeuer thy soule lusteth. Neuerthelater, as p Roe & the Hart is eaten, euen so thou shalt eate it: p vncleane & the cleane indyfferently thou shalt eate. But be strōg * that thou eate not the bloud. For the bloud p is p life; and p mayst not eate p lyfe with p fleshe: thou maiest not eate it: but must powze it vpon p erth as water. Se thou eat it not therefore p it may go wel with the, & with thy chyldezen after thee, when thou shalt haue done that which is ryght in the sight of the Lorde.

* But thy holy thynges whiche thou hast, & thy vowes, thou shalt take & go vnto p place which the Lord hath chosen, & thou shalt offer thy burnt offerynges, both fleshe and bloud vpon p alter of p Lord thy God, & the bloud of thine offerynges thou shalt powze out vpon the alter of the Lorde thy God, & shalt eate p fleshe. Take hede & heare al these wordes which I commaunde the, that it may go wel with the, & with thy chyldezen after the for euer, when thou doest that which is good and right in the sight of the Lorde thy God. Then let thyne elders and thy iudges come forth and mete vnto the cyties that are rounde aboute the slayne. And let the elders of that citie whiche is next vnto the slayne man, take an heyffer that is not laboured with, nor hath drawen in the pocke, and let them bringe her vnto a valeye, wher is nether eating nor sowinge, and strike of her head there in the valey.

Then let the preestes the sonnes of Leui, come forth: for the Lord thy god hath chosen them to minstre, & to blesse in the name of the Lorde, and therfore at their mouth shall all stryfe and plage be tryed. And all the elders of the citie that is next to the slayne man, shall wash theyr handes ouer the heyffer that is beheaded in the playne, and shall answer and saye: oure handes haue not shedde thys bloude neyther haue oure eyes sene it. Be mercyfull Lorde, vnto thy people Israel, whiche thou haste deliuered, & put not innocent bloude vnto thy people Israel: and the bloude shall be forgeuen them. And so shalt thou put innocent blood from the, when thou shalt haue done that which is right in p syght of the Lorde.

When thou goest to warre agaynste thyne enemies and the Lorde thy God

Then bring her home to thine house, and let her shawe her heade and pare her nayles, and put her raiment that she was taken in, from her, and let her remayne in thyne house and bewepe her father and her mother a moneth longe, & after that go i vnto her, & marry her, and let her be thy wife. And if thou haue no fauoure vnto her, then let her go whether she lusteth: for thou mayst not sell her for money, nor make chensauce of her, because thou haste humbled her. * If a man haue two wyues, one loued & another hated, & they haue bozne him chylde, both the loued & also the hated. If the first bozne bee the sonne of p hated: then when he dealeth his goodes among his chylde, he maye not make p sonne of the beloued first bozne, before p sonne of the hated, whiche is in dede the first bozne: But he shall knowe the sonne of p hated for his first bozne, that he geue h double of all that he hath. For he is the first of hys strengthe, and to hym belongeth the ryghte of the first boznes shyppe.

* If any man haue a sonne that is stoburne & disobedient, that he will not herke vnto the voice of his father, and voice of his mother, & they haue taught him nought, but he woulde not herken vnto them: Then let his father and his mother take him, & bring him out vnto p elders of p citie, and vnto the gate of that same place, & saye vnto p elders of the citie: This our sonne is stoburne & disobedient, and will not herken vnto our voyce: he is a ryoter, and a drone karde. Then let all the men of that citie stone him with stones vnto deathe. And thou shalt put euell awaye from thee, & al Israel shall heare & feare. * If a man haue commytted a trespase worthe of death, & is put to deathe for it, and hanged on tre: let not hys body remayne all nyghte vpon the tree, but bury hym the same daye. For the curse of God is on him that is hanged. Defile not thy land therfore, whiche the Lorde thy God geueth the to enherit.

By the nether or upper mill stone.

a. By the nether or upper millstone is signified anye thinge which is necessarily required to a borrower or debtour, wherof he nouryseth & sustenteth himselfe, that maye no creditoure take from him, in especial his craft and occupation wheron he chekely lyueth maye he not by enprisonement (whiche some moste cruelllye do) kepe him from: Lest he be compelled to paye his det in double disprofft. One, that his millstone is ydell in the meane tyme. Another, that he is constrained to come further in det otherwayes: or to sell his necessarpe gooddes with out which he cannot lyue, to make payement.

It shal not be forgotten out of y<sup>e</sup> mouthes of their seed: for I know their imaginacion, whiche they goe aboute euē now, before I haue brought them in to the lande whiche I sware. Moses songe. Deuteronomium.

cometh. For the tyme of their destruction is at hande, & the tyme that shall come vpon them maketh haste.

* For the Lorde wyl do iustice vnto hys people, and haue compassion on his seruantes. For it shalbe sene that their power shal fayle, and at the laste they shalbe prised and forsaken.

And it shall be sayde: * Where are their goddes and their rocke wherein they trusted.

The fat of whose sacrifices they ate, and dranke the wyne, of their drinkeofferings, let thē ryle vp & helpe you, and be your protection.

See nowe howe that I,* I am he, and that there is no God but I.* I can kyll and make alyue, and what I haue smitten that can I heale:*nether is there that can deliuet any man oute of my hande.

For I wyl lyste bp myne hande to heauen, and wyl saye: I lyue euer.

F Yet I whette the edge of my swerde, and myne hande take in hande to doe iustyce, I wyll shewe vengeance on myne enemies, and wyll rewarde them that hate me.

I wyl make myne arrowes droncke with bloude, and my swerde shal eate fleshe of the bloude of the fflayne, and of the captiue and of the bare heade of the enemye.

* Prayse ye hethen his people, for he wyl auenge the bloude of his seruauntes, & wyl auenge him of his ad-uersaries, and wyl be merciful vnto y<sup>e</sup> lande of hys people.

And Moyses wente and spake al the woordes of this song in the eares of the people, bothe he and Josua the sonne of Nun. And when Moyses had spoken all these woordes vnto the ende to all Israel, then he sayd vnto them.* Set your heartes vnto all þe woordes which I testify vnto you thys daye: that ye commaunde them vnto youre chyldrē, to obserue and do al the woordes of this lawe. For it is not a bayne worde vnto you: but it is youre lyfe, and thowwe thys woorde ye shall prolonge youre dayes in the land whither you go ouer Jordan to conquere it.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses p̄ selfe same daye, saying: get thee vp in to this mountayne Abarim vnto mount Rebo, whyche is in the lande of Moab ouer agaynst Iericho. And behold the lande of Canaan, whiche I geue vnto the childzen of Israel to possesse.

And dye in the mounte which thou goest vpo, and be gathered vnto thy people. * As Aaron thy brother dyed in mounte Hor & was gathered vnto hys people, for ye trespassed agaynst me amonge y<sup>e</sup> childre of Israel * at y<sup>e</sup> waters of strife, at Cades in y<sup>e</sup> wilderness of zin: because ye sanctified me not amonge y<sup>e</sup> childzen of Israel. Thou shalt see the lande before the, but shalt not goe thy-ther, vnto the lande which I geue the childzen of Israell. In mount

The xxxiii. Chapter.

Moses dyeth, Israel wepeth. Iosua succeedeth in Moses cowne.

And Moses went from the felde of Moab vp into mount Nebo, which is the toppe of * Phasgah & is ouer agaynst Jericho. And the Lorde shewed him al the lande of Gilead euen vnto Dan, and all Nephtali and the lande of Ephraim and Manasse, and al the land of Iuda: euen vnto the vt-most sea, and the south, and the region of the playne of Jericho the cite of paulmetrees euen vnto zoar. And the Lorde sayde vnto hym. * Thys is the lande which I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac and Iacob, sayinge: I wyl geue it vnto thy seed. I haue shewed it thee before thyne eyes: but thou shalt not goe ouer thither.

So Moses the seruaunte of the Lorde dyed there in the lande of Moab, at the commaundement of the Lorde.

And he buried hym in a valey in the land of Moab besyde Bethpheor: but no man wist of his sepulchre vnto this day. And Moses was an hundred and xx. yere olde when he dyed, and yet his eyes were not dyme, nor hys chekes abated. And y children of Israel wept for Moses in the felde of Moab. xxx. dayes. And the dayes of wepyng and mournynge for Moses, were ended.

And Iosua the sonne of Nun was ful of the spirite of wisdom: for Moses had put his hande vpon him. And all y childre of Israell herkened vnto him & did as y Lorde commaunded Moses.
But there arose not a prophete sence in Israell lyke vnto Moses, whom the Lorde knewe face to face, in all the myracles and wonders whiche the Lorde sente hym to doe in the lande of Egypte, vnto pharao and all his seruauntes, and vnto all hys lande: and in all the myghtye dedes and greate terrible thynges which Moses dyd in the syghte of all Israell.

The ende of the fyfth boke of Moses.

Quoniam Moyses
seruus dei Moses the seruant of the Lord dyed there in the land of Moab at the commaundement of the Lord and he buried him in a valey in the land of Moab besyde Bethpheor But no man wist of his sepulchre vnto this day, m 120 years old when he dyed and yet his eyes were not dyme. Nor his chekes abated. And the children of Israel wept for Moses 30 dayes in the felde of Moab and then ended. And Iosua the son of Nun was full of the spirit of wisdom for moyses had put his hande vpon him. And all the children of Israel did as the Lord commaunded moyses. But there arose not a prophete sence in israel lyke vnto moyses whom the Lorde knewe face to face in all the myracles and wonders whiche the Lorde sente hym to doe in the lande of egypte vnto pharao and all his seruauntes and vnto all hys lande and in all the myghtye dedes and greate terrible thynges which moyses dyd in the syghte of all israel.

The booke of

The Lord courageth Josua to invade the land of promise, and commaundeth him continually to reade Deuteronomium.

fter the death of Moyses the seruāt of the LORD: the LORD spake vnto Josua the sonne of Nun, * Moyses minister, sayinge: Moyses my seruāt is dead. Nowe therfore vp & go ouer Jordan, both thou & al this people, vnto the lande the which I geue vnto the children of Israell. * All the places that the soles of your fete shall treade vpon, haue I geuen you, as I sayd vnto Moyses: from the wyldernesse & thys Libanon vnto the great riuer Euphrates: and all the lande of the Hethites, euen vnto the great sea toward the going downe of the sunne, shall be youre coastes. There shall not a man be able to wythstande the all the dayes of thy lyfe. * For as I was wyth Moyses, so wyll I be wyth the, * & will nether leaue the, nor forsake the. * Be strong & bold: for vnto this people shalt thou deuyde the lande which I swaie vnto their fathers to geue them.

A boue all thyng be stronge and harden thy self, to obserue and to do, accordyng to all the lawes, whiche Moyses my seruānt commaunded the. * Tourne there fro nether to y<sup>e</sup> right hand, nor to the lefte: that thou mayest haue vnderstandyng in all thou takest in hand: let not the boke of this lawe depart out of thy mouth: But recorde therein day and nyght that thou mayest be circumspect to do accordyng to all that is wyrtten therein: For then shalt thou make thy waye prosperouse, and then thou shalt haue vnderstandyng. Beholde, I haue sayde vnto the, be strong and bold: neether feare, nor dread: for the LORD thy god is wyth the, whether soeuer y<sup>e</sup> goest. Then Josua commaunded the officers of the people, sayinge: Go thorowe the middes of the host, and commaund y<sup>e</sup> people, sayinge: prepare you vitayles for after thre dayes ye shall passe ouer this Jordan, to go and enioye the land, which the LORD your GOD geueth you, to possesse it.

And vnto the Rubenites, Gadites, and halfe the tribbe of Manasses, spake Josua, sayinge: * Remember that which Moyses the seruānt of the LORD commaunded you, sayinge: the LORD youre GOD hath geuen you rest, and hath geuen you this lande. Let your wyues, your children, and your cattell remaine in the lande whych Moyses gaue you on thys syde Jordan: But go ye before youre brethren armed, all that be men of warre, and helpe them vntyll the LORD haue geuen your brethren rest, as he hath you, and vntyll they also haue optayned, the lande whiche the LORD your GOD geueth them. And then retourne vnto the land of your possession and enioye it, which lande Moyses the LORDS seruānt gaue you on this syde Jordan, toward the sunne risinge. And they answered Josua, sayinge: * All that thou byddest vs, we wyl do, and whither soeuer thou sendest vs, we wyll go. Accordyng as we obeyed Moyses in all thynges, so we wyll obey the, onlpe the LORD thy GOD be wyth thee as he was wyth Moyses. And whosoever disobey thy mouthe, and wyll not hearken vnto thy wordes in all that thou commaundest him, let him dye: Onely be stronge and of good courage.

The.ii. Chapter.

Josua sendeth searchers of spies to Jericho, which were hyde of Rahab and so escaped the handes of the pursuers. Rahab belongeth vnto the confederacy of the Canaanites.

hen Josua the sonne of Nun sent out of Settim two spies secretly, sayinge: go and beue the lande and also Jericho. And they wente, and came into a hartolotes house, named Rahab, and lodged there. And it was tolde the kynge of Jericho, sayinge: Beholde there came men in hither to night, of the children of Israel, to spie out y<sup>e</sup> countrey. And the kynge of Jericho sent vnto Rahab, sayinge: brig forth the men y<sup>e</sup> are come to the, which are entred into thy house: for they be come to searche out all the lande. And the woman toke the two men & hyd them. And sayd: in dede there came men vnto me, but I wote not whence they were. And about the tyme of shuttynge of the gate when it was darcke, they wente oute, whether they wente I wote not: but folowe after them quickly, & ye shal take them. But she brought them vpon the rofe of the house, and hyd them vnder flaxe (yet in the scales) which she had lying abroad vpon the rofe. And the men pursued after the, the waye to Jordan euen vnto the passage, and as sone as they whiche pursued after the were gone out, they shut the gates immediatly.

And oz euer they were a slepe, she came vnto them vpon the rofe, and said vnto the men. I knowe that the Lorde hath geuen you the lande, both because that the feare of you is fallen vpon vs, and because that the enhabytters of the lande saynt at your commynge. For we haue hearde howe the Lorde dyled vpon the water of the red sea before you, when you came out of Egypte, and what you dyd to the two kynges of the Amorites on the other side Jordan: Schon, and Og, whiche ye vtterlye destroyed. And as sone as we had heard these thinges, our hertes dyd faynte. And there remained no more courage in any manne for feare of youre commynge. For the LORDE poure GOD, he is the GOD in heuen aboue: and on the erth beneth.

Nowe therfore sweare vnto me by the Lorde because I haue shewed you mercye, that ye shal also shewe mercye vnto my fathers house, and geue me a true token. And that ye shal saue a liue, both my father, and my mother, my brethren, and my sisters, and all that pertaine vnto them. And that ye shal deliuer our soules from death.

And the men answered her, oure lyues for you to dye, yf ye vtter not this oure communicacion. And so when the Lorde hath geuen vs the lande, we wyll deale mercypullye and truly with thee. And then she lette them downe wyth a coarde thoroowe a wyndowe. For her house stode in the towne wall. And she dwelt in the town wal. And she said vnto to them, get you into the mountaynes, lest the folowers mete you, and hyde your selues there thre dayes, buttill the pursuars be returned, and then may ye go your wayes. on the Roofe, And said vnto her

And the men sayde vnto her, we wyll be blamelesse of thy othe, whyche thou haste made vs sweare. Scholde, when we come into the lande, thou shalt bynd this purple thyeden coarde in the wyndowe, which thou lattest vs downe by. And thou shalt bynge thy father, thy mother, thy brethren, and all thy fathers houtholde, euen into the house to thee. And then whosoever go oute at the doores of thy house, into the streete, his bloude shall be vpon his owne head, and we gyltlesse. And whosoever shall be wyth the in the house, his bloude be on oure heades, yf any mannes hande be vpon hym: And euen so yf thou vtter these oure woordes, we wyll be quyte of thy othe whyche thou haste made vs sweare. And she sayde: accordynge vnto your wordes so be it: and so sente them awaye, and they departed. And the bound y purple coarde in the windowe. And what you did to 2 Kinges

And they departed and got them into the mountaynes, and there abode thre dayes, buttill the pursuars were returned. And the pursuars sought thoroowe oute all the waye, and founde them not. And the two menne returned, and descended from the mountayne, and passed ouer, and came to Joshua the sonne of Nun, and tolde hym all that hadde chanced theym. And they sayde vnto Joshua: the LORDE hath deliuered into our handes all the lande, for al the inhabyters of the countrey saynte for feare of vs. for the Lord your God he is the God that the officers went thorow out the hoost, and commaunded the people, saying: when ye se the arke of the testament of the Lorde your God, and the priestes that are Levittes bearynge it: then departe ye from your places and folowe after it. So yet that there be a space betwene you and it, about a two thousand cubites by measure. And come not nye vnto it, that ye maye know the way, by whiche ye must go: for ye haue not gone by it in tymes paste (and beware, that ye appoche not nye vnto the arke.) And Iosua sayd vnto þ people: *purify your selues, for to morowe the Lord shall shewe wonders among you. Then Iosua spake vnto the priestes, saying: Take vp the arke of the testament, and go before þ people. And they toke vp the arke of the testament, and went before the people.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Iosua: this day wyl I begynne to magnifye the, in þ syghte of all Israell, that they may knowe how þas I was with Moses, so wyl I be wth thee. And commaund thou the priestes that beare the arke of the testament, saying: when ye are entered a lytel into þ water of Jordan, then stande styll in it.

Then spake Iosua to the children of Israell, saying: come hyther and heare the wordes of the Lorde your God. And Iosua sayd: Herbye ye shal know, that the lyuynge God is amonge you, and that he wyl without fayle caste out before you, the Cananites, the Hethites, the Hittites, the Pherezites, the Gergesites, the Amorites, and the Jebusites. Beholde, the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde of al the world shall go before you into Jordā. And now take you twelue men of the children of Israel, of euery trybe a man. And as sone as the sooles of the fete of the priestes þ beare the arke of Jehouah (the Lorde of all the worlde) treade in the water of Jordan, the water of Jordan shal deuyde it selfe: and the waters that commeth fro above, shall stande styl vpon an heape. And when the people were departed fro their tentes to go ouer Jordan (* the priestes bearyng þ arke of þ appoyntment before þ people) as sone as they þ bare the arke came vnto Jordan, and the fete of the priestes that bare þ arke were dipped in the brim of the water. * Jordan beyng full ouer al his bankes all the tyme of haruest: the water þ came down from aboue dyd stoppe and stode vpon an heape, a great way toin Adam, a cite besyde zarthan. And the water that went downe banished into the sea of the wylernes, called the salt sea as sone as it was deuided: & the people went right ouer agaynst Jericho. And þ priestes þ bare the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde, stode styll vpon drye lande, vntyll all the people were cleane ouer Jordan.

 The c. bi. Chapter.

The walles of Jericho fall, and it is taken.

And Jericho shut in her people, and was shut for feare of the chyldren of Israell, so that no man went out oz in. And the Lorde sayd vnto Iosua:

behold, I haue geuen into thynne hand, Jericho & her king, & the men of warre. And ye shall copassie the citie, al that be men of warre, ago round about it once: and so shall you do syre dayes. And seven priestes shall beate seven trompettes of * rammes hoznes before the Arcke.

And the seuenth day, ye shall compasse the cytie seven tymes, and the priestes shall blowe with their trompettes. And when there is a longe blaste blowne wyth the Rammes horne, assone as ye heare the sounde of the horne, let al the people shoute a myghtie shoute. And then shall the walles of the cytie fall downe, and the people shall ascende vp, euery mā streight before him. And Iosua the sonne of Nun, called vnto the priestes, and said vnto them: take vp y arcke of the pointment, & let seven priestes beate seven trompettes of rammes hoznes before the arcke of y Lord. And he sayd vnto y people, go & copasse the citie: & let the men of armes go before the arcke of the Lorde. And when Iosua had spoken vnto the people, the seven priestes that bare the seven trompettes of rammes hoznes before the arcke of the LORD, wente forth and blew with the hoznes, and the arcke of the testament of the LORD folowed after theym. And the men of armes went before the priestes, that blew wyth hoznes, and the comē people came after the arcke: and as they wēt, they blew with the hoznes. And Iosua commaunded the people, sayinge: shoute not nor let your voyce be heard, oz any worde proceade oute of your mouthes, vntyll the daye I bydde you shoute: and then shoute.

And so the arcke of the Lorde compassed the cytie and went about it once: and then they returned into the hoste, and lodged there. Then Josua sent men from Jericho to Ai, which is besyde Bethauen, on the eastsyde of <sup>a</sup> Bethell, and spake vnto them, saying: get you vp, and be we the countre. And the men went vp and spied out Ai. And returned vnto Josua, and sayde vnto him: let not all the people go vp, but lette as it were a two or thre thousande men go vp, and destroy Ai, and make not all the people to labour thither, for they are but fewe.

Deut. x. d.

And Josua sayed. * Ah, Lorde Jehovah, wherfore hast thou broughte thys people ouer Jordan, to delpyer vs into the handes of the Amorites, to destroye vs: would to God we had aduentured & dwelt on y<sup>e</sup> other syde Jordan. Oh Lord what shall I saye, when Israel turneth theyr backes before theyr enemyes: Moreover the Canaanites, and all the inhabiteurs of the lande shall heare of it and shall come aboute vs, and destroye the name of vs oute of the worlde. And then what wilt thou do vnto thy mighty name.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Josua: get the vp, wherfore liest thou thus vpon thy face: Israel hath sinned, and also transgressed mine appoyntment, which I commaunded them, and haue taken of the excommunicate thynges, & haue stolen and hidde the, and also put them vnto theyr owne stuffe: And therefore the chyldren of Israel can not stand before theyr enemyes. They shall turne theyr backes before theyr enemyes, because they be excommunicate. Nether will I bee with you anye more excepte ye destroy the excommunicate frome amonge you.

1. Cor. x. 10.

Up and sanctifye the people, & byd them to sanctifie the selues against the morowe: for so sayeth the Lorde God of Israel, the excommunication is amonge you (Israel) and therefore ye cannot stand before your enemyes, vntill ye haue put the excommunication frome amonge you. To morow morynge ye shall come by youre trybes. And the trybe whych the Lord shall fynde gylty, shall come by kinredes. And y<sup>e</sup> kinred which the Lord shall fynde gylty, shall come by householdes. And y<sup>e</sup> household which the Lord shall fynde faultye, shall come man by manne. And he that is founde in the excommunication, shall be burnt with fire, both he and all that pertapneth vnto him, because he hath transgressed the covenant of the Lorde, and because he hath brought folpe in Israel.

And so Josua rose vp earlye in y<sup>e</sup> morynge and brought Israel by theyr trybes: and the trybe of Juda was caught. Then he brought y<sup>e</sup> kinredes of Juda, and founde the kynted of the zarahites gylty: And he broughte the kynted of the zarahites by householdes, and zabdi was caughte. And he broughte hys household, man by man, and Acan the sonne of Carmi, the sonne of zabdi, the sonne of zarah in the tribe of Juda was caughte.

And Josua sayde vnto Acan: * my sonne, geue glory to the Lorde God of Israel, and geue him prayse, & shew me what thou hast done, & hyde it not from me. And Acan answered Josua and sayde: of a truth I haue sinned against the LORDE God of Israel, and so and so haue I done. I sawe amonge the spoyle a goodlye Babylonische garmente, and two hundred sicles of syluer, and a tonge of golde of fyfte sicles weyghte: and I coueted them, and I toke them. And Josua toke Acan the sonne of zarah, and the syluer, and the garment, and the tonge of golde, and hys sonnes and his doughters, hys oxen, asses, shepe, his tent, and all that he had, and all Israel with him, and broughte the vnto the valeye of Acor.

And Josua sayde: In as muche as thou hast troubled vs: the LORDE shall trouble the this day. * And all Israel stoned him with stones, and burnt hym wpyth fyre, and ouerwhelmed hym wpyth stones. The sege and wynging of Ai. The kyng thereof is hanged. Josua setteth vp an alter on which is wyrtten the boke of Deuteronomie. He blesteth the people.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Josua: * feare not, nor dreade: but take all the men of warre with the, and bp: a get thee to Ai. Behold, I haue geue into thy hand, the king of Ai, and his people, his citie, and his lande. And thou shalt do to Ai and hir kyng, as thou didest vnto * Jericho and her kyng. Nevertheless, the people and * catell thereof, ye shall take vnto youre selues: But laye a * watche vnto the towne on the backsyde therof.

And then Josua arose, and al the me of warre, to go vp vnto Ai. And Josua chose out thyrty thousand men of war, & sent the by night. And he commaunded the, saying: Se ye lye a wayte vnto the towne on the backsyde therof. So not very farre from the ctye, and se that ye be all readye. And I, and all the people that are with me, wyl apwoche vnto the ctye. And when they come out againste vs, * as at the fyrste time, then will we see before them. And they wyl come out after vs, vntyll we haue plucked them awaye from the ctye. For they wyl say, they see before vs, as at the fyrst tyme: for we will see before them. Then shall ye ryle vp from lying awayte & destroy the ctye: for the Lorde youre God wil deliuer it vnto youre handes. As soone therfore as ye haue taken the ctye, se that ye set it on fyre. * Accordynge to the commaundement of the Lorde se that ye do, beholde, I haue charged you.

And Josua sent them forth, and they went to lye a wayte, and laye betwene Bethel & Ai, on the west syde of Ai. But Josua lodged y night amonge the people. And he rose vp early in y morninge, and nombred the people and wente vp, both he and the elders of Israell before the people, vnto Ai. And all the men of warre that were with him, went vp and drue nye, and came before the ctye, and pitched on the northe syde of Ai a valey being betwene the and Ai. And he toke vpon a fyue thousand men, and put the to lye awayte, betwene Bethel and Ai, on the westsyde of the ctye. And he put the people euen al the hoste, on the northe syde of the ctye, and the lyers awayt on the west. And Josua went y same night into the myddes of the valey.

And when the kyng of Ai sawe that, they halted and rose vp early, then the people of the ctye went out againste Israell, to battell, bothe the king and all his people, at a time apoynted, euen before the playne, and wyl not that there were liers awaite on the backsyde of the ctye.

And Josua & al Israell sayned the selues to be put to the worlde before them, and fled towarde the wildernesse. And al the people of the towne cried to folow after the. And they folowed after Josua tyll they were drawn awaye from the citie: So that there was not a man left in Ai, or in Bethel, that went not out after Israell. And they left the citie open & folowed after Israell.

Then the Lord sayde vnto Josua: stretch out y bouckelar that is in thine hande toward Ai, for I haue geuen the it. And Josua stretched out the bouckelar that was in his hande, towarde the citie. And the liers awaite rose quickly out of theyr places, & ranne, as fast as Josua had stretched out his had, & they entred into the citie, and toke it, and hadsted and set it on fire. And when the men of Ai looked backe after them and sawe. Beholde, the smoke of y ctye ascended vp to * heuen. And they had no place to flee, ether this way or that, for the people that fled to the wildernesse, turned backe againe vpon the folowers.

And when Josua and all Israell saw that the lyers awayte had taken the citie, & that the smoke of it ascended. They turned agayne and layed on the men of Ai. And the other yssued oute of the citie against them. And so wer they in y myddes of Israell, these beinge on the one syde of them, and the reste on the other. And they layed vpon them, so that they let none ether remayne or scape. And the kyng of Ai they toke a lyue, and brought him to Josua. And when Israell had made an ende of slaying al the en-fore make a couenaunt of peace with vs. Thys our prouision of bread, we toke with vs out of our houses, whotte, the day we departed to come vnto you. And now beholde, it is dyed bp and hored. And these bottelles of wyne whiche we filled, were newe: and se, they be rente. And these oure garmentes and shoes, are woren olde by the reaso of the excedyng longe Journey.

* And the men toke of theyr vitayles, and counceled not with the mouth of y<sup>e</sup> Lord. And Josua made peace with the, and made a couenaunt with them, to saue theyr lyues: and the Lordes of the congregacyon sware vnto them: But thre dayes after they had made peace with them, they hearde that they were neyghbours vnto them, and that they dwelte among them. For the chylde of Israell toke theyr Journey, and came vnto theyr cities the thyrde daye: and theyr cities were Gibeon, Caphira, Bezroth and kariah Jarim. And the chylde of Israell knewe them not, because the Lordes of the congregaciō had sware vnto them by the Lorde God of Israell. And therfore all the multitude murmured agaynst the Lordes. But all the Lordes sayde vnto all the congregaciō: we haue sware vnto them, by the Lorde God of Israell. And therfore we maye not hurte them. But this we wyll do to them, and let the liue: and so shall no wrathe be vpon vs because of y<sup>e</sup> othe whiche wee sware vnto them. And the Lordes sayde vnto them, y<sup>e</sup> they should liue: And they were made * hewers of woode, and drawers of water vnto all the congregacion, as the Lordes sayde vnto them.

Then Josua sent for them, and talked with them, and sayd: wherfore haue ye begyled vs, and yet ye dwel amonge vs: and now therfore cursed be you, and there shall not cease to bee of you, bondemen, and hewers of wodde, and drawers of water vnto the house of my God.

And they answered Josua, and sayd: it was tolde thy seruantes, howe that the Lorde thy God had commaunded his seruant Moses, to geue you al the lande, and to destroye all the Enhabitours therof oute of youre sighte, and

And he dealte as it is sayde, with them, and ridde them out of the handes of the chylde of Israell, that they slew them not. And Josua made them that same daye hewers of wood, and drawers of water vnto the congregacyon, and vnto the aulter of God vnto thys daye, in the place whiche God shoulde chose.

The .x. Chapter.

The Amorites are overcome of Josua. It rained stones. The sunne standeth still, & the day is lengthened. The .xv. Kinges are hanged.

And whē Adonizedec King of Ierusalem had heard how Josua had taken Ai, and had destroyed it, a howe that * as he had done to Jericho & her kyng, euen so he had done to Ai and her kyng, and howe the Enhabitours of Gibeon had made peace with Israell, and dyd remaine amonge them: then they feared exceedingly, for Gibeon was a greatelye, as any cytie of the kingdome, and therto greater then Ai, and all her men were myghtye.

Wherfore Adonizedec kinge of Ierusalem, sent vnto Hoham kinge of Hebron, and vnto Piria kinge of Jamuth, and vnto Iaphia kinge of Lachis, and vnto Debir kyng of Eglon, sayinge: Come vp vnto me, and heape me, that we maye smyte Gibeon: for they haue made peace with Josua and the chylde of Israell. Then the .v. kynges of the Amorites, the kinge of Ierusalem, the kinge of Hebron, the kyng of Jamuth, the king of Lachis, the kyng of Eglon gathered thym selues together: bothe they and all theyr hostes and wente vp and beseged Gibeon, and made warre agaynst it.

But the mē of Gibeon sent vnto Josua, vnto the hoste to Gilgal, sayinge: withdrawe not thy handes from thy seruantes, but come vp to vs: for all the kynges of the Amorites which dwell in the mountaines, are gathered together agaynst vs.

And Josua ascended frome Gilgal, both he and all the people of warre with him, and all the men of myghte, and the Lord sayd vnto Iosua: feare them not, for I haue deliuered them into thyne hand, ther shal not a man of them stand before the. And Iosua came vnto them sodenly, and iourneyed from Galgall al nyghte. And the Lord turmoyled them before Israell, and slew of them a great slaughter at Gibeon, and chased them a longe the way that goeth vp to Bethoron and slew them tyll they came to Esaka and Makeda. And as they fledde from Israell, euen in the goynge doune to Bethoron, the Lord cast downe great stones frome heauen vpon them, vntyll they came vnto Esaka, that they dyed. And there were mo that dyed with hable stones, then the chyldren of Israell slew with swerde.

Then spake Iosua vnto the Lord, & dawe when the Lord deliuered the Amorites before the chyldren of Israell, and he sayde in the sighte of all Israell: *Sunne stand thou stil vpon, Gibeon, and thou Moone, in the valey of Aialon. And the sunne abode, and the moone stode styll, vntyll the people hadde aduenged them selues vpon their enemies. Is not thys wrytten in the booke of the ryghteous, howe that the sunne abode in the middes of heauen, and hasted not to go doune by the space of a whole day. And there was no dawe lyke that, before it, or after it, that the Lord obeyed the voice of a man: and al because the Lord fought for Israel.

And Iosua returned, and all Israell with him, vnto the hoste to Galgall: but the fyue kynges fledde, and hid them selues in a caue at Makeda. And it was tolde Iosua, sayinge: y fyue kynges are found hid i a caue at Makeda. And Iosua sayde: rowle greafe stones vnto the mouthe of the caue, and apoynte men therto, for to kepe them. And stande ye not stille, but folowe after youre enemies, and smyte the hindmost of them. And suffre them not to entre into theyr ctyes, for the Lord youre God hathe deliuered them into your handes. And when Iosua and the chyldren of Israel had made an ende of slaying them with a greafe slaughter, tyll they were waked, yet there remainned a certayne of them, whiche entred into walled ctyes, and all the people returned to the hoste to Iosua at Makeda in peace, so that no man durste moue his tonge againste the chyldren of Israell. Then sayd Iosua: open the mouthe of the caue, and brynge oute these. v. kynges vnto me oute of the caue. And they dyd so, and broughte those fyue kynges vnto him, oute of the caue: the kyng of Ierusalem, the kyng of Hebron, the kyng of Iarmuth, the kyng of Lachis, & the kyng of Eglon.

And when they had brought out those kynges vnto Iosua: Iosua called for all the menne of Israell, and sayd vnto the capytaynes of the men of warre, which came with hym: come nere & put your fete vpon the neckes of these kynges. And they came nere and put theyr fete vpon the neckes of them. And Iosua sayde vnto them: feare not nor dreade: but bee stronge and plucke vp youre hertes, for so shall the LORD serue all youre enemies agaynst whiche ye fyghte.

And then Iosua smote them, and slew them, * and hanged them on fyue trees tyl euen. And at the going doune of the sunne, Iosua gaue commaundement, and they toke them doune of the trees and cast them into y caue (where they hyd themselves) and layed greafe stones on the caues mouth, whiche remainne vnto this dawe.

And that same day Iosua toke Makeda and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the kyng thereof also, and utterly destroyed them and all the soules that were therein, and let noughte remainne. And he dyd to y kyng of Makeda, * as he dyd to the kyng of Iericho.

Then Iosua wente frome Makeda, and all Israell with him vnto Libna, & foughte agaynst Libna. And the Lord deliuered it also into their handes, with the kyng also, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therein, and let noughte remainne in it, and dyd vnto the kyng thereof as he dyd vnto the kyng of Iericho.

After that Iosua departed from Libna and all Israell with him, vnto Lachis, and beseged it, and assaulted it. And the Lord deliuered into the handes of Israell Lachis, that they toke it the seconde daye, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therein, accordyng to all that he dyd to Libna.

Then Hozam kynge of Geler came bp to helpe Lachis: But Josua smote hym and his people, vntyll he lefte hym noughte remainyng.

And from Lachys Josua departed vnto Eglon, and all Israell with hym, and there beseged it, and assaulted it, and toke it the same daye, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therein: and vtterly destroyed them the same day, accordig to all that he dyd to Lachis.

Then Josua departed bp from Eglon and all Israell with him, vnto Hebron. And they foughte agaynst it, and toke it, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the kynge therof, and al the townes that pertayned to it, and all the soules that were therein, so that they lefte noughte remainyng: but in all thinges as they did to Eglon, so they destroyed it vtterly, and all the soules that were therein.

G Then Josua returned, and all Israell with him to Dabir, and they fought agaynst it, and toke it, and the kynge therof, and all the townes that pertayned thereto. And smote them wth the edge of the swerde, and vtterly destroyed all the soules that were therein, and let noughte remaine. And as he dyd to Hebron, so he dyd to Dabir and the kynge therof, and as he dyd to Libna and her kynge.

D. ut. xx. c. And Josua smote all the hille contreis, and the southe contreys, and the valeys, and the springes of water, with al their kinges and let nought remaine, but vtterly destroyed al that breathed, as the Lorde God of Israell commaunded. And Josua smote them from Cades barne vnto Asah, and al the countrey of Golan, euen vnto Sibcon. And all those kynges and theyr lande, Josua toke at one tyme: because the Lord God of Israell foughte for Israell. And then Josua returned & all Israell with him, vnto the hoste of Gilgall.

And vnto the kynges that are by north in the mountaynes, and plapnes, on the southe side of Ceneroth, and in the low countreys: and in the regions of Dor, bp the sea, and vnto the Canaanites bothe by East and west: and vnto the Amorites, Hethites, Pherezites, and Jebusites in the mountaynes: and vnto the Hittites vnder Hermon in the land of Hazephah: whiche came oute and all theyr hostes wth them, a multitude of folke, euen as the sandes of the sea in nombre, with horses and charettes exceeding manye. And al these kynges met together & came & pitched together bp the water of Merom, for to fight w Israell.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: be not afrayd of them: for to morow about this tyme I wyl deliuer them al aaine, before all Israell: and thou shalt hough theyr horses, and burne theyr charettes with fyre. And Josua came, and all the men of warre with hym agaynst them, vnto the water of Merom, sodenly, and selle vpon them. And the Lorde deliuered them into the handes of Israell: and they smote them, and chased them, vnto great Sidon, and vnto the whot waters, and vnto the valeye of Hazephah Eastwarde, and smote them butyl they had none remainyng of them. And Josua serued them as the Lorde bad him, houghed theyr horses, and burnt theyr charettes with fyre.

Then Josua at that tyme turned backe & toke Hazor, and smote her king with the swerde. For Hazor before time was the heade of all those kyngdomes.

I trust the Lord wilbe with me, & I shall dryue them oute as the Lord sayde. And Josua blessed Caleb the sonne of Jephune & gaue him Hebrō to enherite. * And Hebrō became the enheritaunce of Caleb the sonne of Jephune & kene: site, vnto this daye: because he folowed the Lord God of Israel perpetuallie. And the name of * a Hebrō was called in olde tyme, Kariath arbe, which was a huge man among the Enakims. And the lande ceased from warre.

The Notes.

a. Hebrō is a proper name of a citie whiche before was called the cytye of Arbe, whych the Arbe after the Heb. was a Giante both myghtie & strong and of a famous name.

The. xv. Chapter

The lot of the chyldren of Iuda and the names of the citis and villages of the same.

AND the Lotte of the trybe of the chyldren of Iuda in their kintedes was y wylbernes of zyn y stretcheth to the costes of Edom southward, and is the vtmost parte of the southe costes. * And their southcostes were fro the brinck of the salt sea and from a certen poynte of the sea that leaneth southwarde. And it went out on the south syde of y goyng vp to Acrabim, & went a long to zimna and ascended vp on the southe syde of Cades Barne, & went a longe to Hebrō and went vp to Ader, and sette a compassse to Karca and went alonge to Zimon and it wente oute to the riuier of Egypt: so that the ende of that coste is the Sea. And these are their southe costes.

B And their easste costes are the salt sea euen vnto the edge of Jorzdā. And their borders in the northe quarter were fro a nother poynte of the sea where Jorzdā endeth. And went vp to Bethhagla & went along by y northsyde of Betharabah & went vp to the stone of Bohen the sonne of Ruben. And then went vp to Dabir from the valeye of Alcoz, & so northward, turnyng towarde Gilgall that lieth before y going vp to Adonim which is of the southe syde of y Riuier

And then went a longe to the water of Enseimes, & ended at the * well of Rogell. And then went vp to the valeye of the sonne of Benin, euen vnto y southe syde of the Jebusites the enhabitoures of Ierusalem. And then went vp to the toppe of the hille that lyeth before the valeye of Bennom westwarde, and by the edge of y valeye of Raphaim northwarde: And then it draweth from the lande hille vnto the fountayne of water called Nephtoah, and gothe oute at the citis of mount Ephron: & draweth to Balah, otherwyle called Kariathiarim: and the it compasseth from Balah westwarde, vnto Eyr, and then goeth alonge vnto the syde of mount Iatim, otherwyle called Chesalon, on y northe side therof. And cometh downe to Bethsames and gothe to Chamnah, and goeth oute on the syde of Akarō northwarde: And then draweth to Secron and goeth a longe to mounte Balah, and goeth oute at Jabnel: and y ende of the costes is the sea. And the west borders are the great sea and the costes that lye thereon. And these are the costes of the chyldren of Iuda rounde aboute in their kintedes.

* And vnto Caleb the sōne of Jephune was there a parte geuen amonge the chyldren of Iuda, by the mouthe of the Lord to Josua, euen the cytie of * Kariatharbe father of Enack whiche cytye is called Hebron. And Caleb droue thence the thre sonnes of Enack, Sesai, Ahman, and Chalmari, the sonnes begotten of Enack. And he went vp thence, to the enhabitours of Dabir, whose name in the olde tyme was Kariath sepher. And Caleb sayde, * he that smyteth Kariath sepher and taketh it: to hym wyl I geue Aclah my doughter to wyfe. And Othniel, the sonne of Kenes, the brother of Caleb toke it. And he gaue hym Aclah his doughter to wyfe. And as she wēt she moued hym, to aske of her father a felde. And she * alyghted of her asse. And Caleb sayde vnto her, what ayleth y. And she sayde, gyue me a blessing: for thou hast geue me a southwarde & drye lande: geue me also springes of water. The he gaue her spriges of water, bothe aboue & beneth. This is the enheritaunce of the tribe of the children of Juda in their kynredes.

And the cities of the tribe of the children of Juda in all quarters, toward the costes of Edom southwarde, were: Kabzel, Eder, and Jagur: Kinah, Dimonah, and Adada: Kedesh Hazor and Jethnan: ziph, Telem, and Baloth Hazor, Hadathah, and Kariath Hestron, otherwyle called Hazor: Eman, Samit and Moladah: Hazargadah, Halmom and Bethpheleth: Hazar Sual, Bersabe, and Baziothiah: Baalah, Jim, and Azen: Eltholad, Cesill, and Hozma: zikelag, Medemenah and Senilenah: Labaoth Selhim, Ain and Bemom: all these cyties are twentye and nyne with their villages. And in the lowe contrey they had Ethaol, Zareah, and Alenah: zonenah, Enganim, Thaphuah & Enaim: Jerimoth, Adulam, Socoh, & Azkah: Saarem, Adithaim, Gederah, and Gederothaim: fourtene cyties with their villages.

zenan, Hadazah, and Magdalgad: Delean Hazphah, and Tektheel: Lachis, Bazcath and Egló: Cabon, Lahamaim, and Cethlis Gaderoth, Bethdagon, Maamah and Makedah: Syxtene cities with their villages.

Lebnah, Ether, and Alan: Jephthah, Alnah, and Mezib: Keilah, Kabezib & Marelah: nyne cytyes with their villages. Akron with her townes and villages. And fro Akron oute to the sea, all that lyeth aboute Adod with theyr villages. Adod with her townes and villages. Azah with her townes and villages, euen vnto the riuer of Egypte: and the greates sea with the costes that lye thereon.

And in the mountaynes, they had Samir Jathir, and Socoh: Danah: & Kariath Senath, whiche is Dabir: Anab, Elthemoh, and Anim: Gozen, Hozon, and Giloh: aleuen cities with their villages. Arab, Dumah, & Clean: Jannim, Beththaphuah and Aphcah: Huzmatah, and Kariath Arbe: which is Hebron and Zor: nyne cyties with theyr villages. Mas Carmel, S'ph, and Jutzah: Jethraell, Jukadan, and Samoch: Cam, Gabaath, and Chamnah ten cyties with theyr villages. Halhul Bethsur and Gedor: Maarath, Bethanoth, and Elthecon: Sixe cities w theyr villages. Kariath Saal whiche is Kariath Jarim, and Harabba two cyties with their villages.

And in the wildernesse they had Beth Arabah, Meddin & Sacacach: Mebis, the cite of salt, and Engadi: Syxe cytyes wyth their villages. * But the Jebusites that were the inhabitants of Jerusalem: the children of Juda could not cast oute. Wherefore y Jebusites dwell amonge the children of Juda vnto this daye.

Jud. i. 6.

The. xvi. Chapter.

The lotte of parte of Ephraim.

And the lotte of the children of Joseph selle fro Jordan by Jericho vnto y water of Jericho Eastward, and the wildernesse that goeth by from Jericho thorowout mount Bethel: and then goeth oute frome Bethel to Lus, and tunneth alonge vnto the borders of Arciataroth: and goeth doune westwarde, euen to the costes of Japhleth, and vnto the costes of Bethhoron the nether, and so to Gasor, and the endes of their costes came to the sea. And so the children of Joseph Manasses and Ephraim toke theyr inheritaunce.

And the children of Ephraim toke their costes by kinredes. And the costes of theyr inheritaunce Eastward were, Ataroth, Ador euen vnto Bethhoron the upper, and wente oute westwarde to Machmathah on the North side, and compassed Eastwarde vnto Chaanath Silo, and paste it on the Eastside vnto Jannoah, and wente downe fro Jannoah to Ataroth and Maarath, and met at Jericho, and went out at Jordan. And theyr borders went fro Thaphuah westward vnto the ryuer Kanah, & the endes were the sea. This is the inheritaunce of the tribe of y children of Ephraim in theyr kinredes, & the bordering cities of the childre of Ephraim, lye among the inheritaunce of y children of Manasses: euen al y cities w theyr villages. * Notwithstandinge they draue not oute the Cananites that dwelte in Gasor: but y Cananites dwelt amonge y Ephraimites vnto this day, and paye tribute.

The. xvii. Chapter.

The lotte of porcion of the halfe tribe of Manasses. The Cananites became tributaries to the Israelites. Manasses and Ephraim require a greater porcion of heritage.

And

And the trybe of Manasses, whiche Gen. 48. c was the * eldest sonne of Ioseph, receaued a lotte. And Machir the eldest sonne of Manasses whych was the father of Gilead (and a man of war) hadde Gilead and Basan. And the rest of the chyldren of Manasses recey-ued by theyr kyntredes: whych were the chyldren of Abiezer: the chyldren of Helek: the chyldren of Asriel: the chyldren of Sicheim, the chyldre of Hephher, the chyldren of Semida. These are the male chyldren of Manasses the sonne of Ioseph in theyr kyntredes. * But

 Hagla, Melcha and Thirza: whych came befoze Eleazar the priest, and before Josua the sonne of Nun, and before the Lordes, saying: * the LORD commaunded Moses to geue vs an enherytaunce amonge our brethzen. And he gaue them at the mouth of p̄ Lorde, an enherytaunce amonge the brethzen of their fathers. And there fell ten porcyons to Manasses, belyde the land of Gilead and Basan whiche are on the other syde Jordan: because the dought-ters of Manasses dyd enherite amonge his sonnes. And Manasses other son-nes, had the lande of Gilead.

And the coastes of Manasses reached from Aser to Machinathah that lyeth before Sicheim, & wente a longe on the ryght hande, euen vnto the enhabiters of Enthaphuah, and the lande of Thaphuah belonged to Manasses, whych Thaphuah laye in p̄ borders betwene Manasses and the chyldren of Ephraim. And the coastes descended vnto the riuer Canah on whose south side Ephraim hath cities among the cities of Ma-nasses. For the coastes of Manasses were on the northsyde of the riuer, & the endes of them was p̄ sea: so p̄ the south pertayned to Ephraim, and the north to Manasses, and the sea is hys border.
 And they mette togyther in Aser north warde, and in Asachar estwarde. * And Manasses had in Asachar and in Aser, Bethsean, & her townes: Tiblean, & her townes: & the enhabitours of Dor, w the townes pertaynyng to p̄ same: & the uen thre contreyes: yet the chyldren of Manasses could not ouercome those cities: But the Cananites began to dwel in the same lande. Neuertheles, asone as the chyldren of Israell were waxed stronge, they put the Cananites to trybute, but expelled them not.

And p̄ chyldren of Ioseph spake vnto Josua, saying: why hast thou geuen vs but one lot, and one porcion to enherit, seynge we be muche people, and for as muche as the LORD hath blessed vs so: and Josua answered them: yf ye be much people, then get you vp to p̄ wod contreye, and prepare for youre selues there in the lande of the Pheressites and of the * Raphaites, yf mount Ephraim be to narowe for you. Then the chyldre of Ioseph sayde: agayne the hyll wyl not be gotten of vs: for al the Canani-tes that dwel in the lowe contreye haue charettes of yron, and so haue they that enhabite Bethsean, and the townes of the same, and they also that dwel in the valey of Jezreel. And Josua answered the house of Ioseph, Ephraim and Ma-nasses, saying: ye be muche people, and haue great power, and shall not therefore haue one lotte. But the hyl shalbe youtes, for it is a wodde contreye, & ye shall bynge it to fashon, and it shalbe yours eue vnto p̄ endes of it, for ye shal be able to cast out the Cananites for al their yron charettes, & for al they be so stronge.

Gen. xli. a Certen are sende to deuyde the lande to the other seuen trybes. The lot of the chyldren of Ben Jamin.

And the whole cōgrega-tion of p̄ chyldre of Israell came together at Si-loh, & set vp p̄ tabernacle of witnes there, & the lād was in subieccp̄s before them. But there remainned amonge the chyldren of Israel seuen trybes, whych had not their enheritaunce deuided out.
 And Josua sayd vnto p̄ chyldren of Israell: how lōge are ye so slacke to go & possesse p̄ lād which p̄ Lord god of your fathers

fathers hath geuen you: Bring of euery tribe thre men, & I may sende them. And that they may rise, & walke thorow the lande & distrybute it by their enheritaunces, & come agayne to me. Beside it into seuen partes. For Iuda shal abyde by their coastes in the south, and the house of Ioseph shal stande to their coastes in the north. Describe ye & lād therfore into seuen partes, & byng the descripcyon to me hether, & I maye cast lottes for you here before the LORD our GOD. The Leuites haue no part amonge you, for the priestshyppe of the LORD is their enheritaunce. * And Gad, Ruben, and halfe the tribe of Manasses haue receaued their enheritaunce beyonde Iordan Estward, which Moses the seruaunt of the Lord gaue the.

Ios. xii. b.

And the men arose, and wente theyr way. And Iosua charged them & went to describe the lande, saying: hence, and go thorow the land & describe it, & come agayne to me hether: and I wyll caste lottes for you before the Lord in Siloh. And the men departed, & walked thorow the lande, and described it by cities into seuen partes in a booke, & returned to Iosua into the host at Siloh. And Iosua cast lottes for them in Siloh before the Lord, and there he deuided the lande vnto the chyldren of Israell, to eche their porcyō. And the lot of & tribe of & chyldre of Ben Iamin came vp accordynge to theyr kynredes. And the coastes of their lotte came out betwene the chyldre of Iuda and the chyldren of Ioseph. And their northe coastes were from Iordan, and wente vp to the syde of Jericho on the north syde, and went vp thorow the mountaynes westward, and they ended at the wyldernesse of Bethauen: and went from thence to the southsyde of Lus, other wyse called Bethell: and descended to Ataroth Adar: vpon the hyl that lieth on the southside of the nether Bethhoron. And the west coaste draweth & cōpasseth southward, euen from & hyl that lyeth before Bethhoron, and goeth oute at Kariathbaall whiche is Kariath Jarim, a cytie of the chyldren of Iuda: and thys is the west quarter: and the south coaste goeth frō the edge of Kariathiarim westwarde, & goeth oute to the waterwelle of Nepht thoah, and cometh downe to the edge of the hyl, that lyeth before the valeye of the sonne of Hennon whych is in the valleie of Raphaim northwarde, and descendeth thorowe the haleye of Hennon vnto the side of Jebus southward and goeth down to the well of Rogell. And cōpasseth frō the northe, and goeth forth to Eufames, and to & coastes that lye before the gopnge vp vnto Adomim: and goeth downe to the stone of Bohan the sonne of Ruben: and then goeth a longe towarde the syde of the playne, northwarde: and goeth downe into the playne: and goeth a longe to the syde of Bethhaglah northwarde, and endeth at the poynte of the salte sea north therfrom, and at the ende of Iordan south therfrom. Thys is the south coaste.

And Iordan is their east coaste, thys is the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Ben Iamin wyth theyr coastes rounde aboute and by theyr kynredes. And these are the cytyes of the trybes of the chyldren of Ben Iamin in theyr kynredes: Jericho, Bethhaglah, and the valeye of Kizir: Betharabah, Ramathim, and Bethel: Aium, Pharah, and Ophrah: Chepar, Ammonat, Ophni, & Gabai, twelue cytyes wyth theyr byllages. Gibeon, Ramah, and Beroth: Hazpah, Caphairah, & Mozah: Rekem, Tarephel & Tharelach, Zela, Eleph, and the cytye of the Jebusites whych is Ierusalem, Gibeath, and Kariath, fourtene cyties wyth theyr byllages. This is the enheritaunce of the chyldre of Ben Iamin in their kynredes.

The. xix. Chapter.

The lottes of partes of Zabulon, Issachar, Aser, Naphtali, Dan, and Iosua.

And the seconde lotte came out vnto the trybe of the chyldren of Simeon by theyr kynredes. And theyr enheritaunce fell in the myddes of the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Iuda. * And theyr enheritaunce was, Bersabee, Sabe, and Moladah, Hazorhual, Balah, and Azem, Eltholad Bethul and Hazmah zikelag, Bethmarcaboth and Hazetlulah, Bethlebaath, and Saruhen thyrtyene cytyes wyth theyr byllages. four cyties with their billages: & ther-to al the billages that lye round about these cities, eue vnto Salasah, Beor, & Ramath, southwarde. This is the en-heritaunce of the tribe of the childre of Simeon in their kynredes oute of the porcyon of the chyldren of Juda, came the enheritaunce of the children of Simeon. For the parte of the children of Juda was to muche for theym: and therfore the children of Simeon hadde theyr enheritaunce in the enherytaunce of theym.

B And the thyrde lotte came vnto the chyldren of zabulon accordynge vnto theyr kynredes. And the coastes of theyr enherytaunce came to Sarid, and wente vp to the Sea, and to Marialah, and touched at Dabaseth, and mette at the ryuer that lyeth before Jokneuen: and tourned frome Sarid estwarde towarde the Sunne rplynge vnto the border of Chilloth in mounte Chabor: and then goeth oute to Dabe-reth and goeth vp to Japhia: and from thence goeth a long estwarde towarde the Sunne rplynge, to Sethah, Hepher Jethah, & Jazun, and goeth to Remon, Methoar, and Meah. And compasseth it on the northe syde and goeth to Ra-than, and endeth in the valeye of Jeph-thahel. And Jatah, Nahalol, Semto, Jedalah, and Bethlehem: twelue cities wyth their byllages. This is the enhe-ritaunce of the chyldren of zabulon, in theyr kynredes. The sayd cities with their byllages.

And the fourth lot came oute to the chyldren of Issachar by their kynredes.
And their coastes were Jesraelah, Casuloth, Sunem, Hapharaim, Sion, A-naharath: Harabith, Kision, and Abey: Rameth, Enganim, Enhadah, & Bethphazer. And hys coastes mete at Chabor, Sahazimah and at Bethsames and endeth at Jordan, Syxtene cytyes wyth their byllages. This is the enherytaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Issachar by their kynredes & cytyes and their byllages.

C And the fyfte lotte came oute vnto the trybe of the childre of Aser by their kynredes. And theyr coastes were Helkath, Hali, Betem & Achsaph: Ala-melech, Amaad & Mifeal: and mette at Carmel on the sea, and at Sthor and at Labanath and turneth towarde the sunne rplyng to Bethdagon, and mette at zabulon and in the valey of Jephtha-hel, and towarde the northsyde of Beth-emek & Megel, and goth out on the left syde of Cabul: and Hebron, Rohob, Hamon, and Kanah euen vnto greate St-don. And then the coast turneth to Ramah & to the strong cite of Azor & tour-neth to Hozah and endeth at the sea: by the possessio of Achzibah: Amah, Aphek, and Rohob: Twentye and two cytyes with their byllages. This is the enherytaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Aser by their kynredes: These cytyes wyth their byllages.

And the Syxte lotte came out vnto the children of Nephthali by theyr kin-redes. And theyr coastes were frome Heleph and from Elö in zaananini, and Adami, Mekeb and Jabneel euen to Lakum, and go out at Jordan. And the coast turneth westward to Asanath in mounte Chabor, and then goth oute frome thence to Hukokath and meteth with zabulon on the south syde, & wyth Aser on the weste, and at Juda vpon Jordan towarde the Sunne rplynge.
And their strong cyties are zidim, Bet, Hamath, Kacath and Cenereth, Ada-mah, Hermah & Hazor: Kedesh, Corat, and Enhazor: Jeron, Magdelel: Horem, Bethanah and Bethsames: nyne-tene cyties with their byllages. This is the enherytaunce of the trybe of the children of Nephthali by their kynred-des: these cyties and their byllages.

And the seventh lotte fell to the tribe of the chyldren of Dan by their kynredes. And the coastes of their enherytaunce was zaraah, Elthalo, Irtames, Saclabin, Aialon and Jethlah: Eglon, Chemnathah and Akaron: Elthekeh, Gibethon and Baalath: Jehud, Vanebarak and Gatherron, Merericon and Harcon in the countrey & lyeth before Japho. And the coastes of the chyldren of Dan went out frome beyonde them.
For the chyldren of Dan wente vp and foughte agaynst Lesen and toke it, and smote it wyth the edge of the swearde, and conquered it, and dwelt therein and called it Dan, after the name of Dan their father.

Of the lande. Iosua, Sactua, Iol. xii

This is the enherytaunce of þe tribe of the children of Dan in their kynredes: these cyties with their villages. When they had made an ende of deuoyng the lande by her co. Tes then the children of Israell gaue an enherytaunce vnto Iosua the sonne of Nun amonge theym: at the mouth of the Lorde they gaue hym the cytye whiche he asked, euen * Chammath Serah in mount Ephraim. And he bylte the citie and dwelt therein. * These are the enherytaunces whiche Eleazar the priest & Iosua the sonne of Nun, and the auncient fathers of the trybes of the chylde of Israell deuoyded by lot in Siloh before the Lorde, in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and so made an ende of deuoyng the contrey.

The. xx. Chapter.

The cyties of refuge or Sanctuaries.

When the LORDE spake vnto Iosua, sayinge: comen wyth the chylde of Israell, and say: * Appoynte out fre cyties, of which I spake vnto you by Moles, that the slea that killeth anye parson vnwares and vnwytinglye, maye flee thither. And those cyties shall be your refuge from the auenger of bloude. And the slea shall flee vnto one of those Cyties and shall stande in the entrynge of the gate of the cytye and shall shewe hys cause in the eares of the elders of the sayde cytye. And they shall take hym into the cytie vnto them, and shall geue him a place that he maye dwell amonge theym.

And when the auenger of bloude foloweth after him, they shall not deliuer the slea into his hande: because he smote his frende ignorauntlye, and hastened hym not before tyme. And he shall dwell in the sayde cytye vntyll he stand before the congregacion in iudgement, and * vntyll the death of the hye priest that shalbe in those dayes. And then shall the slea retorne, and come vnto hys owne cytye, and vnto hys owne house, and vnto the cytye frome whence he fledde. And they appoynted Kedes in Galile, in mount Nephtali, and Sichem in mount Ephraim, & Bariatathar be which is Hebron, in the mountaynes of Iuda. And on the other syde

Jordan ouer against Jericho estward, they gaue Bozoz in the wildernes vpon the plaine, out of þe tribe of Ruben: & Ramoth in Gilead out of þe trybe of Gad, and Golan in Basan out of the trybe of Manasses. These were the cyties appoynted for all the chylde of Israell, and to the straungers that sojourned amonge the: that whosoever killeth anye parson ignorauntly, the same might fle thither, and should not dye by the hand of the auenger of bloude, vntyll he stode before the congregacyon.

The. xxi. Chapter.

The cyties geuen to the Leuites, in nombre. xliiij. The promys of geuyng the lande of Canaan are fulfilled. The Israellites are at rest.

And then came the principall heades of the Leuites vnto Eleazar the priest, and vnto Iosua þe sonne of Nun, and vnto the auncient heades of the trybes of the chylde of Israell, and spake vnto theym at Siloh in the lande of Canaan, sayinge: * the Lorde commaunded by Moles, to geue vs cyties to dwel in, & the felde about the: for our catell. And þe chylde of Israell gaue vnto the Leuites, out of their enherytaunces, at the bydding of þe Lord, these cyties folowynge with their Suburbs.

And the lot came out vnto the kynredes of the Cahathites: and the chylde of Aaron the priest, which were of the Leuites had geuen them by lot, out of the trybe of Iuda, out of the trybe of Simeon, and oute of the trybe of Beniamin thirtene cities. And þe rest of the chylde of Cahath had by lotte, out of the kynredes of the trybe of Ephraim, out of the trybe of Dan, and out of the halfe trybe of Manasses ten cities. And the chylde of Gerson had by lot oute of the kynredes of þe trybe of Issachar, out of the trybe of Aser, out of the trybe of Nephtali, and oute of the other halfe tribe of Manasses in Basan. xiiij. cities. And þe chylde of Merari by their kynredes, had oute of the trybe of Ruben, out of the trybe of Gad, and oute of the trybe of Zabulon, twelue cities. And the chylde of Israell gaue by lot vnto the Leuites, these cities with their suburbs, as the Lord commaunded by Moles.

children of Simeon, these cities by name: which the children of Aaron beyng of the kynredes of y<sup>e</sup> Cahathites, and of the childre of Leui, obtayned: for theirs was the first lot. And they gaue them Kariath Arbe of the father of * Enack, (whiche is Hebron) in the hyll contrey of Iuda, wyth the Suburbes of the same rounde about it. But the contrey that pertained to the cytye and the villages thereof, they gaue to * Caleb the sonne of Iephune, to be hys pos-

And thus they gaue to the children of Aaron the priest, the fraunchysed cy-ties of the chyldren of Aaron p<sup>r</sup>estes were thirtene cyties with their Subur-bes. And the kynredes of the children of Cahath that were Leuites: that is to say, the other children of Cahath had the cities of theyr lotte, out of the tribe of Ephraim. And they gaue them the free cytye of the Neare: Sichē wyth her Suburbes, in mounte Ephraim: and Gazer with her Suburbes: and Kabsin wyth her Suburbes: Bethhoron with her Suburbes: foure cytyes.

 And out of the trybe of Dan: Eltheke wyth her Suburbes: Gibthon wyth her Suburbes: Atalon wyth her Suburbes: foure cytyes. And out of the halfe tribe of Manasses, Chanach with her Suburbes: Gathreimon wyth her Suburbes: two cytyes. So that all the cyties whiche were gyuen vnto the kynredes of the other children of Ca-hath, were tenne wyth theyr Subur-bes.

And vnto the chyldren of Gerson whych were of the kynredes of the Le-uites, they gaue oute of the other halfe of Manasses, the cytye of refuge for the Neare, Golan in Basan wyth her Suburbes: Beelstherah wyth her Subur-bes: two cyties. And out of the tribe of Machar, Kispon wyth her Suburbes: Daberath wyth her Suburbes: Jarimoth wyth her Suburbes: Enganim wyth her Suburbes: foure cytyes.

 And oute of the trybe of Aser, Misell wyth her Suburbes: Abdon wyth her Suburbes, Halakah wyth her Suburbes: Rohob wyth her Suburbes: foure cytyes. And oute of the trybe of Nephthali, the cytye of refuge of the Neare, Kedesh in Galile, wyth her Suburbes: Hamothdor, wyth her Subur-bes: Carthan wyth her Suburbes: thre cytyes. So that all the cytyes of the Gersonytes in their kynredes were thirtene with their Suburbes.

And vnto the kynredes of the children of Merari, the rest of the Leuites, they gaue oute of the tribe of Zabulon: Iecnam with her Suburbes: Carthah with her Suburbes: Damna wyth her Suburbes, and Nahalal wyth her Suburbes foure cytyes. And out of the trybe of Ruben, they gaue Bozor with her Suburbes: Jahelah with her Suburbes: Kedemoth wyth her Subur-bes, and Maphaath with her Subur-bes: foure cyties. And out of the trybe of Gad, they gaue the fraunchysed city of y<sup>e</sup> Neare, Ramoth in Gilead wyth her Suburbes, Mahanaim wyth her Suburbes, Hesbō wyth her Suburbes: & Jaser wyth

And the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad and halfe the trybe of Manasses, returned and departed from the chyldren of Israell out of Siloh (which is in the lande of Canaan) to go vnto the contreye of Gilead, and to the land of theyr possession, wherein they were possessed at the mouthe of the Lorde by the hande of Moses. And when they came vnto the costes of Jordan that lie in the lande of Canaan: there the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad and the halfe tribe of Manasses, bylt an altare fast by Jordan, and that a great altare to se to. And when the chyldren of Israell hearde saye: beholde, the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses, haue bylte an altare in the forefront of the lande of Canaan in the borders of Jordan on y syde of the chyldren of Israell: the hole congregacion of the chyldren of Israell gathered them together to Siloh, to go vpon them with batel. And the chyldren of Israell sent vnto the chyldren of Ruben, to the chyldren of Gad, and to the halfe tribe of Manasses into the lande of Gilead, Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the preeste, and with him ten lordes, of euery chese house a lorde thowse out all the trybes of Israell, which were heades of theyr fathers householdes ouer the thousandes of Israell. And they went vnto the chyldren of Ruben, of Gad and to the halfe trybe of Manasses, vnto the land of Gilead, and speake with them, sayinge:

Thus saye the hole congregacion of the Lorde: what * transgression is thys that ye haue transgressed agaynst the God of Israell, to turne away this day from after the Lorde, and to bylde you an altare for to rebell thys day agaynst the Lorde, Is * the wicked dede of Beor to lytle for vs, wherof we are not cleaused vnto this daye, and there was a plage in the congregacion of y Lord: But that ye also should turne away this daye from folowinge the Lorde: ye shall rebelle to day agaynst the Lord, and to morowe he shall be wrathe wyth all the congregacion. Then the chyldren of Ruben and of Gad, and halfe the tpye of Manasses answered, and sayde vnto the heades ouer the thousandes of Israell: The myghty God Jehouah he knoweth, and Israell shall know, if it be to rebelle or traungresse agaynste the Lorde, then the Lorde saue vs not thys daye. Or elles if wee haue bylte vs an aulter to turne from folowinge the Lorde, or to offer theron burntoffringe or meate of fringes, or to offer peaceoffringes theron: let the Lorde requyre it: And haue not rather done it for feare of thys: least in tyme to come your chyldren shoulde saye vnto oures: what haue ye to do with the Lorde God of Israell, saying: that the Lorde hath made Jordan a border between vs and you, ye chyldren of Ruben and of Gad: ye haue no parte therfore in the Lorde: so shal your chyldren make our chyldren cease from fearynge the Lorde.

I Josua exhorted the people that they forgoe not them selues to the Gentyles, and that they reuente in none but in God ouerke, whiche had fulfilled hys promyses to them.

And it came to passe a longe tyme after that the Lord had geuen rest vnto Israell from all theyr enemyes rounde aboute, that Josua waxed olde, and was strycken in yeres. Wherefore he sent for all Israell, and for theyr elders, theyr heades, theyr Iudges and offycers, and sayd vnto them: I am olde and strycken in yeres. And ye haue sene all that the LORD your God hath done vnto all these nacions before your faces: For the Lord your GOD he fought for you. * Behold, I haue appoynted these nacions that remaine, to be the enheritaunce of your tribes: euen from Jordan, and all the nacyon that I haue de

So shall the LORDE caste oute before you great nacions and myghtye, as ye se howe no manne hath stande before you hitherto. *One of you shal chace a thoue lande: for the LORDE your GOD he fighteth for you, as he hath saide vnto you. Take good hede therfore vnto youre soules, that ye loue the LORDE your GOD.

But and yf ye shall go backe and cleaue vnto the reste of these nacions that remayne with you, and shall make Mariages with them, & shal go to them and they come to you: bee sure that the LORDE your GOD will not caste oute all these nacions frome before you. *But they shal bee snares and trappes vnto you, and scourges for youre sydes, and pyckes in youre eyes, vntyll ye perishe from of thys good lande, which y<sup>e</sup> LORD your GOD hath geuen you.

D Beholde, I walke this daye, by the way of all the worlde: call ye to mynde in al your hertes and in al your soules, that nothyng hath sayled of al the good thynges whiche the LORDE your GOD promysed you. All are come to passe, and nothyng hath sayled thereof. And as al good thynges are come vpon you, whiche the LORDE your GOD promysed you: so shall the LORDE bryng vpon you al euil vntyll he haue destroyed you fro of thys good lande, whiche the LORDE your GOD hath geue you, when ye haue traungressed the apoyntmente of the LORDE your GOD, whyche he commaunded you: and haue gone & serued straunge Goddes, and bowed your selues to them. Then shall the wrathe of the LORDE waxe whote vpon you, and ye shall perishe quyklye, frome of the good lande, which he hath geuen you.

that were not destroyed became tributaries.

After the deathe of Josua the chyldre of Israel asked the Lorde, saying: who shall go vp fyrste vnto the Canany-tes, to fight agaynst them: And the Lorde

saide: * Iuda shal go vp: behold I haue deliuered the lande into hys handes.
Then Iuda sayde vnto * Simeon hys hym.

And Iuda went vp, and the Lorde deliuered the Cananites and Pheresi-tes into theyr handes. And they slewe of them in Bezek ten thousande men. And they found Adonibezek in Bezek. And they fought agaynst him, and slewe the Cananites and Pheresites. But Adonibezek fled & they folowed after hym, and caught hym, & cut of his thombes and his greate toes. Then Adonibezek sayde: thre score and ten kinges hauing theyr thombes and greate toes cutte of gathered theyr meate vnder my table: wherefore * as I haue done so god hath done to me agayne. And they broughte him to Ierusalem, and there he dyed.

Iuda went euen to fyghte agaynst the Cananites that dwelte in the moun-taine, in the southe, and in the low contrei. * And Iuda went vnto the Cananites & dwelt in Hebron, whiche before time was called Kariath Arbe. And slew Sesai, Ahiman and Chalmi. And fro thence they wente to the inhabiteurs of Dabir, whose name in olde tyme was called Kariathsepher.

And Caleb sayde: he that smytteth * Kariathsepher, and taketh it, to him wil I geue Acsah my doughter to wife.
And Othoniel sonne of Keniz Calebs younger brother toke it: to whome he gaue Acsah his daughter to wyfe, and as they went, she counceled him to aske of her father a felde. And then she lighted of her asse: and Caleb said vnto her: what apleth the. She sayde vnto him: geue me a blessing: for thou haste geuen me a Southwarde and drye lande, geue me also sprynges of water. And Caleb gaue her sprynges bothe aboue and beneth. And the chyldren of the Kenite Moses father in lawe went vp out of the citie of * palme trees, with the chyldren of Iuda into the wildernesse of Iuda, that lyeth in the southe of Arad, and dwelt amonge the people.

And Iuda went and Simeon wyth him, and they slew the Cananites & enhabited zephath, & utterly destroyed it, & * called the name of y citie Hormath.
And Iuda toke Azah with the costes therof, & Ascalon with the costes therof, and Akaron with the costes thereof.
And the Lorde was with Iuda, that he conquered the mountaynes, but they could not dryue out the enhabiteurs of y valeyes, because they had charettes of yron. And they gaue * Hebron vnto Caleb, as Moses sayde: And he expelled thence the thre sonnes * of Enack.

* And the chyldren of Ben Jamin did not cast out the Jebusites, that enhabi-ted Ierusalem, but the Jebusites dwel with y chyldren of Ben Jamin in Ieru-salem, vnto this daye.

* And in like maner the house of Joseph went vp to Bethel, & the Lorde was with them, and the house of Joseph serched out Bethel which before time was called Lus. And the spyes sawe a man

The notes.

a. Adonibezek was the king of Bezek. The word signifieth as muche as Lorde of bezeke he was a wicked and cruell tyrant.

b. Here note that the Beriles had the knowledge of God, as saith Paulc Roma. i. And that they knew the law & righteousness natural, of whiche Moses Deute. xxi. d. and Exod. xxi. c. But in the punishment of Adonibezek is this chesely to be obserued, that God not only auengerh the wrong that y wicked do to the good: but also that which the wicked do to y wicked. The xx. kinges whose thombes and greater toes he cut of were wicked men, yet is he punished for the iniury and cruelty done vnto them. Suche an ensample haue ye that I will not caste them oute before you: a but they shalbe thornes in the sy-snares vnto you. And when the angell of the Lorde had spoken these wordes vnto all the chyl dren of Israel, the peo-

Am. a. vi. a. *And then the chyldren of Israel dyd wickedlye in the syghte of the Lorde, & serued Baalim, and forsoke the Lord God of theyr fathers, whiche broughte them out of the lande of Egypt, and followed straunge Goddes, euen of the Goddes of the nations that were rounde about them, and bowed them selues vnto them, and angred the Lorde. And so they forsoke the Lorde and serued Baal and Astaroth. Wherefore the Lord waxed angry with Israel, and delyuered them into the handes of rau-ners, to spoile them and solde them into the handes of their enemyes rounde about them, so that they had no power anye longer to stande before their enemies. But vnto what soeuer thiges they wente, the hand of the Lorde was vpon them with cruel lucke, euen as the Lord promised the, & as he sware vnto them.
And they were sore vexed.

Neuerthelesse the Lorde rayled vp Judges, which delyuered them oute of the handes of their oppressers, & yet for all þ they woulde not harken vnto theyr Judges: but wente a whozyng after straunge Goddes, and bowed them sel-ues vnto them, and turned quickly out of the way which their fathers walked, in obeyinge the commaundementes of the Lord, and dyd not so.

Exod. ii. d. And when the Lorde rayled them vp Judges, he was with the Judge, *and delyuered the out of the handes of their enemyes all the dayes of the Judge: for the Lorde had compassion ouer their sorowinges whych they had, by the reason of them that oppressed them and vexed them: yet for all that *as sone as the iudge was deade, they turned & dyd worste then theyr fathers, in folowinge straunge Goddes, and in seruinge the,
and ceased not frome theyr inuencions, nor frome theyr malycyouse wayes.

Wherefore the Lorde was angrey wyth Israel, and sayde: because thys people hathe traungressed myne appointment which I commaunded their fathers, and haue not obeyed my voyce, therfore henceforth I will not cast out one man before the of þ nations, which Josua lefte when he dyed, and that to *proue Israel thorough them whether they wyll kepe the waye of the lord to walke therein, as their fathers dyd or not. And so the Lorde lefte those naci-the handes of Josua.

And when he had presented the present, he sent the people that bare it, away: but he him selfe turned againe from the Idols by Gilgal, and sayde: I haue a secret vnto the King: and y Kyng commaunderd hym to holde his peace vntil al that stode about hi, wer gone out from him.

And Abud came in vnto him, into a somer parler, which he had seuerall vnto him selfe alone, and sayde: I haue a message vnto y fro God. And he arose out of his seate. And Abud put forth his lefte hand a toke the dagger frome his right thyghe, and thrust it into his bely, so that the harte wente in after the blade. And the harte stopped in the fat, for he dize not y dagger out of his bely. And the dytte came oute. But Abud gat him out at a posterne doze, and shut the dozes of y parler vpon him and locked them.

When he was gone out, his seruautes came and locked. And beholde, the dozes of y parler were locked. And they sayde: Al, he is a doyng of his easement in his somer chamber. And when they had tarped tyll they were ashamed, for no man dyd the dozes of the parler open: then they toke a key, and opened them. And beholde, they? lozde was fallen downe deade, vnto the erthe. Up vp Deboza, vp vp and synge a songe vp * Barak, and take thy praye, thou sonne of Abinoam. The they that had escaped, raygned ouer the proudest of the people. The Lorde rayneth ouer the stronge.

* Ephraim was the fyrste agaynste Amaleck. And after them Ben Jamin, amonge the people.

Of Machir came lerned men in the lawe, and of Zabulon & wel coude drawe with the penne of a scribe.

The Lordes of Isakar were with Deboza. And as Barak, euē so was Isakar sent into the baleye a sote. But in the diuisions of Ruben, were great ymaginacions of herte.

Wherfore abodest thou amonge the shepe foldes, to heare the bleatynge of the flockes. In the deuisions of Ruben, great were the ymaginacions of herte. Gilead abode on the other syde Iordā, and why tarped Dan in Syppes. And Aser late in the hauens of the sea, and abode styll in his owne costes. But Zabulon is a people that put their lyues in teopardye of death, and Nephtalim in lyke maner, euen vnto the toppe of the felde. * Kynge came and fought. Then fought the kynge of Canaan at Chanach, vpon the water of Hagedo. But the syluer that they coueted, they carped not awaye.

From heauen came battel: for & sterres beyng in theyr course, foughte agaynste Sisara. The ryuer of Kison caught them awaye: that auncient ryuer the ryuer Kison.

My soule: treade thou the myghtie vnderfote. The they malled the horslegges, that their myghtye coursers leste prauinsynge.

Curse Meroz bad the angell of the Lorde: Curse the inhabitoures thereof, because they came not forth to helpe the Lorde, to helpe the Lorde amonge the myghtie.

Blessed be Jael the wyfe of Haber & Kenite, aboue other womē: aboue other weimen blessed be she in the tente.

* He asked water, but she gaue hym mylke, and brought butter in a goodly dyshe. * She caught a nayle in her lefte hande, and a workynge hammer in her ryght, and nayled Sisara & wounded his heade & peatced and went thorow his temples. Betwene her fete he bowed Thorowe a windowe looked Sisara's mother and howled thorowe a lattesse, why abydeh his charet so longe, that it cometh not, why tarpe the wheles of his waggans. The wyf of her ladies answered her: yea, and she answered her owne wordes her selfe: haplie they haue founde, and deuyde the spoile: I mayde, ye two maidens for a pccer a spoyle of diuers coloutes for Sisara, a spoyle of dyuerse coloutes w brodered workes, dyuerse coloured brodered workes for the necke for a prape. So perthe all thynne enemyes Lorde: but they that loue the, let them be as y sunne risinge in his myghte.

The notes.

Sisara

a. The meanyng is, y Sisara had done so great iniuries vnto the Israelites, that y wayes were not occupied; & that nether husbande mā nor Citizen might safely passe to exercise marchaūdyse or other thinge, nor wayfaringe man iorney, nor plowmā yll y felde. Whosocuer dyd once peepe out of his Citie towne or byllage, was streyght waye watched by of the theues that belonged to Sisara.

Rubinites.

b. The pryde of the Rubinites is here noted because they refused to go w Debora to ouercome the oppressour of Israel.

Debora

c. By these wordes signifieth Debora y the Kinges hostes of the Canaanites came to Shānach & Magedo thynkinge verely, because of the multitude of the hoste, that they came not to fight: but to take a prape, but they were sore deceaied, for it so chaunced, that they were rather a prape to Israel than Israel to them.

The. vi. Chapter.

Israel is oppressed of the Madianites, because he returned agayne into Idolatrie. Gedeon is let of God to be their deliuerer. The altar of Baal is querthowē.

And the children of Israel *commpted byekidnes in y syght of the Lorde. * And the Lorde deliuered them into the handes of the Madianites seuē yeres. And when the hande of the Madianites was sore vpon Israel, the childe of Israel made them denies in the mountaynes and caues and stronge holdes. For when Israel had sowne then came the Madianites the Amalechites and they of the East contreye vpon them, & pytched they tentes agaynst them, and destroyed the increase of the erthe, euen vnto Azah, and left no sustynauce in Israel, nether shepe, ore, or alle, for they came with their castell, and householdes euen as grethopets in multitude: so y bothe they and also they cammels were withoute numbre. And they entered the lāde to destroye it. And so was Israel excedynglye impoueryshed by the Madianites, and cryed vnto the Lorde. And when the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde because of the Madianites, the Lorde sent a prophete vnto them, and sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: I sette you from Egypte and brought you out of the house of bondage, and I rydde you out of the hande of the Egipcians, and out of y handes of all that oppressed you, and caste them out before you, and gaue you their landes. Angell of the Lorde came, and late vnder an Ocke in Ephrah, that pertayned vnto Joas y father of y Eserites. And his sonne Gedeon pressed oute wheate oute of the eares in a presse, for to flee from the Madianites: And the angel of the Lorde appeared vnto him, and said: the Lorde is with the, thou mā of might, And Gedeon answered him: Oh my lord, yf the Lorde be with vs, why is all this come vpon vs: yea, and where be al his myracles whiche oure fathers tolde vs of, and sayde: the Lorde brought vs out of Egypte. But now the Lorde hath forsaken vs, and delyuered vs into the handes of the Madianites. And y Lorde looked vpon him, and sayde: So hence in this thy might, and delyuer Israel out of y hādes of y Madianites: Beholde, I haue sent the: And he answered him: Oh Lorde where with shoulde I saue Israel: Beholde my kynred is the poorest in Manasses, & I am the least in my fathers house. But then the Lorde said vnto him: I wyll be with the, and thou shalt smyte the Madianites, as they were but one mā. And he answered him, yf I haue founde grace in thy sight, the shewe me a sygne, that thou arte the Lorde that talketh with me. thou come agayne. And Gedeon wente and made redye a kydde, and swete kakes of an Ephra of flowre, and put the fleshe in a basket, and the brothe in a potte, and brought it out vnto him vnder the Ocke, and presented it. And the angell of God said vnto him: *take the fleshe & the swete kakes, and put them vpon this rocke, & powre out the broth. And he did so. Then the angel of the Lord put forth the ende of the staffe & was in his hande, and touched the fleshe & the kakes. *And there arose vpon fyre out of the rocke, and consumed the fleshe & the kakes. And the angel of the Lord bayned out of his sight. And when Gedeon perceaued & it was an Angel, he sayde: Alas, my Lord Jehouah, that I haue *sene an angel of the Lord face to face that I shoulde dye. And the Lord said vnto him, peace be wth thee, & feare not, for thou shalt not dye. Then Gedeon made an aultare there vnto the Lord, and called it *Jehouah Salom, which vnto this day is yet in Ephraim, & pertaineth vnto the father of the Ephraim. And the same nyght the Lord said vnto hym, take an ore of thy fathers, and another of Baal & belongeth vnto thy father, & cut doune the groue & is about it, & make an aultare vnto the Lord thy god, vpon the toppe of this rocke & furnyshe it. And take the seconde ore & offer burnt sacrifice wth the wode of the groue, which thou shalt haue cut doune. Then Gedeon took ten men of his seruantes, & did as the Lord bad him. But because he durste not do it by day for feare of his fathers householde and of the men of the cite, he dyd it by nyght.

When the men of the cite were by eue in the moorning: Beholde, the aultare of Baal was broke, & the groue & stode about it cut doune. And the seconde ore offered vpon the aultar & was made. And they said one to another: who hath done this thing? and they required and asked. And it was tolde them that Gedeon the sonne of Joas had done it. Then the men of the cite sayde vnto Joas, bringe out thy sonne, & he may dye, because he hath broke the aultar of Baal, & cut doune the groue & was aboute it. And Joas said vnto al the stode by him, Wyll ye fyght for Baal, or wil ye be his defeders: he & stryue for him shall dye this moorninge. If he bea God let him stryue wth him & cast doune his aultar. And he called Gedeon Jerobaal the same time, saying: let Baal stryue wth him because he hath broke doune his aultar.

When al the Madianites, the Amalekites and they of the East, were gathered together and had gone and pitched in the valeye of Ierael: the spirite of the Lord entred in to Gedeon.

*And he blew a trompet, and called Abiezer to folowe him, and sente messengers thorow out all Manasses, and called them: vpon to folowe him also. And he sent messengers vnto Issachar, Zabulon and Naphtalim, whiche came also to mete him.

And Gedeon sayde vnto God: yf thou wilt saue Israel by my hande, as thou hast sayde: Beholde, I wyll put a flece of wolles in the thresheynge place. And yf the dewe be on the flece onely, and dye vpon all the erthe besyde: then I shall be sure that thou wilt saue Israel by my hande, as thou saidest. And it came so to passe. And he rose vpon the morowe, and he thruste the flece together, and wronge the dewe therout, and fylled a boole of water. And Gedeon said vnto God, be not angrie with me, that I speake once more, let me proue onely once agayne with the flece. Let it be dye onely vpon the flece, and dewe vpon all the grounde aboute. And God did so that same night: so that it was dye vpon the flece onely, and on all the grounde aboute, dewe.

The. vii. Chapter.

The soudyars that shoulde go with Gedeon to battell are proued by takynge them vpon water. Gedeon with three hundred men ouercometh the Madianites. Deborah and Jael are slayne.

He *Jerobaal otherwyle called Gedeon rose eue and al the people that were with him, and pitched besyde the well of Harad, so the hoste of the Madianites were in a valeye on the northsyde of the hyll Hamoreh. B And the Lord sayde vnto Gedeon: the people are yet to manye, bynge them downe vnto the water, and I wyll trye them vnto the there. And of whome I saye vnto the, this shal go with the, the same shal go with the. And whosoever I saye vnto the, this shal not go with the, the same shal not go. And when he had brought downe the people vnto the water. The Lord sayde vnto Gedeon: as many as lappe the water with their tonges, as dogges do, them put by the selues, and so do them that knele downe vpon their knees to dryncke. And the numbrye of them that put their handes to theyr mouthes and lapped, were. iiii. hundred men. And all the remnaunte of the people kneled downe vpon their knees to dryncke water. And the Lord sayd vnto Gedeon, with the thre hundred men that lapped wyll I saue you, and deliuer the Madianites into thyne hande. And all the other people shal go euery man vnto his owne home.

C And they toke bytayles with them for the folke, and their trompettes. And he sent all the rest of Israel, euery man vnto his tente, and kepte the thre hundred with him. And the host of Madian was benethe him in a valeye. And the same nyghte the Lord sayde vnto hym, vp and go downe vnto the hoste, for I haue deliuered it into thyne hande. But and yf thou feate to go downe, then go thou downe vnto the hoste, and shatah thy ladde, and herken what they saye, & so shal thyne handes be stronge, & then thou shalte go downe vnto the hoste.

Then he wente downe with shatah his ladde, euen harde vnto the men of armes that were in the hoste. And the Madianites, the Amaleckites, and all they of the East, laye alonge in the valeye, lyke vnto greshoppers in multitude, and their camels were wout nombre, euen as the sande by the sea syde in multitude. And whē Gedeon was come:

Beholde, there was a man that tolde a dreame vnto his felowe, and sayde: Beholde, I dreamed a dreame and me thought that a boyed looffe of barley breade tumbled in the hoste of Madian, and came vnto a tente and smote it & it fel, & ouerturned it, that the tente laye a longe. And his felowe answered, & said: this is nothynge elles saue the swerde of Gedeon the sonne of Joas a man of Israel, into whose hande the Lord hath deliuered Madian and all the hoste.

When Gedeon hearde the tellynge of the dreame and the interpretaciō of the same, he bowed hym selfe to the erthe & he returned vnto the hoste of Israel, & sayde: vp, for the Lord hath deliuered into youre handes the hoste of the Madianites. And he deuyned the thre hundred men into thre companies, & gaue to euery man a trompet in his hande, & an emptye pitcher, and lampes therein, and sayde vnto them: loke on me and do lykewyse: and beholde, when I come to the syde of the hoste, euen as I do, so do you. And when I blowe with a trompet and all that are with me, blowe ye with trompettes also on euery syde of y host, and saye: here is the sworde of the Lord and of Gedeon.

And so Gedeon and the thre hundred men that were with him, came vnto the side of the host in the beginnyng of the middel watche, and reysed vp y watche men. And they blew with their trompettes, and brake the pitchers y were in their handes. And all thre companies blew with trompettes and brake y pitchers, and helde y lampes in theyr lefte handes, & the trompettes in their right, to blowe w al. And they cryed: y swerde of the Lord and of Gedeon. And they stode styl, euery man in his place rounde about y host. And al y host ranne & cryed, & fled. And as y thre hundred blew with trompettes, y Lord set euery mannes swerde vpon his neyghboure, thow out al the hoste. And y hoste fled vntyll they came to Bethsitah, to zereath, & to y edge of Abelmeholah besyde Gabath. And y mē of Israel gathered together of the trybe of Nephtalim, of Asser, and of all Manasses, and followed after the Madianites. For Gedeon had sent messēgers thow out al mount

Ephraim, sayinge: come downe againt the Madianites and take from the waters both of Bethbarath and also of Jordan. Then al the men of Ephraim gathered together and came doune and toke þ waters bothe of Bethbarath, & also of Jordan. And they toke two captaynes of the Madianites, Oreb & zeb, and slew Oreb vpon the rokke Oreb, & zeb at the presse zeb, and folowed after Madian. And broughte the heades of Oreb and zeb to Gedeon on the other syde Jordan.

God hath delyuerd in to your handes the Lordes of Madiā, Oreb and zeb. And what was I able to do lyke as you haue done. And then their spirittes abated from of him, whē he had sayde that. And then Gedeon came to Jordan and passed ouer, bothe he and the thre hundred men that were with him, verpe saynte and yet folowed the chace. And he sayde vnto the mē of Socoth: geue * I praye you kakes of breade vnto the people that folowe me: for they be sayntie, that I maye folowe after zebath & zalmona kynges of Madian. And the Lordes of Socoth sayde: ate the handes of zebath and zalmona now in thyne handes, that we shoulde geue breade vnto thy companye. And Gedeon sayde, therfore when the Lorde hath delyuered zebath and zalmona in to myne hande, I wyll teare the fleshe of you with the thornes of the wylderne and with breeers. And he wēt thēce to Phaul, and spake vnto them lyke wyse. And the men of Phaul answered hym, as dyd the men of Socoth.

A And Abimelech the sonne of Jerobaal went to Sichem, vnto his mothers brethren, and communed with them, & with all his mothers fathers kynred, sayig: saye I prape you, in the eares of all the enhabytoutes of Sichem: whether is better for you, that all the sonnes of Jerobaal which are lxx. personnes raygne ouer you, ether þ one raigne ouer you. And remember therto, that I am youre bones, & youre fleche. And his mothers brethren reherſed of him in the audiēce of all the Citezens of Sichem, all these wordes, and moued their heartes to folowe Abimelech, in that they sayd: how he was their brother. And they gaue hym lxx. peces of syluer out of þ house of Isaal Berith, with which Abimelech hyred Jhel and light personnes which went with him. And they wet vnto his fathers house at Ephrah, and slewe al his brethren, the sonnes of Jerobaal, euen lxx. personnes with one stone. Notwithstandynge, yet Joatham the youngest sonne of Jerobaal eskaped, for he hyd him selfe. And al the citezens of Sichem gathered together with all the house of Mello, and went and made Abimelech kynge at a certē ocke that was by Sichem.

And Gaal the sonne of Abed and his brethren went and gat them to Sichem. And the men of Sichem, put their confidence in him. And they wente out into the felde, and gathered in their grapes, & troade them, and made mery: and went in to the house of their God, & dyd eate & drinke & cursed Abimelech. And Gaal the sonne of Abed sayde: what is Abimelech: and what is Sichem: that we shoulde serue him, is he not þe sonne of Jerobaal: and zebul is his officer: serue suche as come of * Hemor the father of Sichem, for what reason is it þe we shoulde serue him: would God this people were vnder my hande, then I woulde take Abimelech out of þe waye. And one sayde vnto Abimelech, make thyne hoste greater: & go out. And whē zebul the ruler of the cite hearde the wordes of Gaal þe sonne of Abed, he was wroth and sente messengers vnto Abimelech priuelye, saying: Behold Gaal the sonne of Abed & his brethren be come to Sichem: and beholde, they set þe cite against the. Now therfore bp by night, both þe & al the people þe is w the, & lye in wayte in the felde. And ryse erlye in the mornynge as soone as the sunne is bp, & come vpon the cite. And whē he & the people that is w him, come oute against the, do to him what thyne handes shalbe able. And Abimelech rose bp, & al the people þe were w him, by night. And they layde awayte to the cite in foure copanyes. And Gaal the sonne of Abed went out, & stode in the entrynge of the gate of þe cite. And Abimelech rose bp, and the folcke þe were with him, fro layinge awayte. And when Gaal sawe the people, he sayde to zebul: Beholde, there come people downe from the toppe of the mountaynes. And zebul sayde vnto him: the shadowe of the hylles seme me vnto the. And Gaal answered agayne, and sayde: se there come folcke downe by the mydle of the lande, and another companie come a longe by þe charnars Ocke. Thē said zebul vnto him: where is now thy mouth þe said, what felow is Abimelech, that we shoulde serue hym. These are the people þe so despyfdest.

Go out now a feloushipe and fyght wth them. And Gaal went out before y<sup>e</sup> citizing of Sichem, & fought with Abimelech. And Abimelech chased hym, that he fled before him, and many were ouerthrowen and slayne, euen vntyll they came vnto the entrynge of the gate. And then Abimelech wente & dwelt at Arumah. And the zebul thrust out Gaal & his brethren, & wolde not suffer the to dwell in Sichem. And on y<sup>e</sup> morowe the people went out in to y<sup>e</sup> felde. And it was tolde Abimelech. And he toke his people and deuyded the in to .iii. companies, & laye wayte in the feldeg. And when he sawe that the people were come out of the citie, he rane vpon the, and layde vpon them.

And Abimelech & y<sup>e</sup> companions y<sup>e</sup> were wth him, ranne & stode in the entrynge of the gate of the citie. And y<sup>e</sup> two other companies ranne vpon al the people y<sup>e</sup> were in the felde, & slue them. And then Abimelech fought agaynst the citie all y<sup>e</sup> daye, & toke it, & slue the people that was therein, & destroyed the citie, and sowed salt in the place. And when al y<sup>e</sup> men of the towre of Sichem hearde y<sup>e</sup>, they entered in to a stronge holde of the house of their God Baal Berith. And whē it was tolde Abimelech, that all the men of the towre of Sichem were gathered together, he gat him to mount zelmon, bothe he & all y<sup>e</sup> were wth him, & toke axes with him & cut downe an arme of a tree, & toke it vp, & put on his shoulder, and sayde vnto the folke that were with him, *whatsoeuer ye se me doe: spede your selues, and do lyke wyse. And all the people cutte downe also euery man a bough, and folowed Abimelech, & put them in to the holde, and sette the holde a fyre vpon them: so that all the men of y<sup>e</sup> towre of Sichem were slayne, vpon a thousande persons what of men and women together.

Then went Abimelech to Thebez, & beleged it, & toke it. But there was a stronge towre in the middes of the citie, & thither ranne all the men & wemen, & al the citezins of the citie, & shut it to them, and got them vp vpon the toppe of y<sup>e</sup> towre. Then came Abimelech vnto the towre & fought agaynst it, & wet harde vnto the entrynge of the gate, to set it on fyre. But a woman caste a pece of a mylstone vpon his heade, & all to brake his brayne panne.

Then Abimelech called hastelye vnto the younge man that bare his harness, and sayde vnto hym: *drawe thy swerde and slee me, that men say not of me, a woman slue hym. And his ladde thrust him thorowe & he dyed.

And when the men of Israel sawe y<sup>e</sup> Abimelech was deed, they departed, euery mā vnto his own house. And thus *all the wyckednesse of Abimelech whyche he dyd vnto his father, in slayinge his .lxx. brethren, & therto all the wickednesse of the mē of Sichem, God dyd byng vpon their heades: And vpon them came the curse of Joathan y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Jerobaal.

Forcouer the children of Ammon wēt ouer Jordan to fyghte agaynste Iuda, Ben Jamin, & the house of Ephraim: so y Israel was sore combred. The children of Israell cryed vnto the Lorde, sayinge: we haue synned agaynst the: for we haue forsaken oure owne God, & haue serued Baalim. And y Lorde sayde vnto y children of Israel: dyd not y Egypciās, y Amozites, the children of Ammō, the Philistines, the Sidonites, the Amaleckites, & the Moabites oppresse you? And ye cryed to me and I deliuered you out of their handes. And for all that ye haue forsaken me, and serue straunge goddes, wherfore I wil helpe you nomore. But goe and crye vnto the goddes whiche ye haue chosen, & let them saue you in the tyme of your tribulation.

But the children of Israel sayd vnto the Lorde, we haue sinned: do y vnto vs whatsoeuer please the, and deliuer vs onelye at thys tyme. And they put awaye the straunge goddes from the, and serued the Lorde. And the miserie of Israel greued hys soule.

Then the chyldren of Ammō gathered together, & pitched in Gilead. And the children of Israell gathered them together & pitched in Hazpah. And y companie of y Lordes of Gilead sayde eche to other, whosoever wyl begynne the battel agaynste the chyldren of Ammon, the same shalbe heade ouer al the inhabitants of Gilead.

The. xi. Chapter.

Jephthah the sonne of a harlot deliuereth Israel from the Ammonites after they had asked forgiveness.

And there was one Jephthah a Gileadite, a stronge man, which was the sonne of an harlot: howe be it Gilead begat Jephthah. But Gileades wyfe bare hym sonnes, whiche when they were come to age, thruste oute Jephthah, and sayde vnto hym: * Thou shalt not inherite in our fathers house, for thou art the sonne of a straunge woman. Then Jephthah fled fro hys brethren, & dwelt in the lande of Tob. And there gathered y Idle people to Jephthah, & wēt out with him. But it chaūced in procelle of tyme, y the children of Ammon made warre agaynst Israell.

1 Re. xxi. a

And when y children of Ammon fought thus agaynst Israell, the the elders of Gilead went & sette Jephthah out of y lande of Tob, & sayde vnto him: come & be our captayne, & let vs go fight w y children of Ammō. And Jephthah sayd vnto the elders of Gilead. Dyd not ye hate me & expelle me out of my fathers house: howe happeneth it then y you come vnto me nowe in tyme of your tribulacion: and the elders of Gilead answered Jephthah. Therefore we turne agayne to the nowe, that thou goe with vs, & fight agaynst y children of Ammō, & be our heed ouer al y inhabitants of Gilead. And Jephthah said vnto y elders of Gilead: Yf ye brynge me home agayne, to fight with the childre of Ammon, then yf y Lorde deliuer the before me, I shalbe your head. And y elders of Gilead sayde to Jephthah: the Lorde be witnes betwene vs yf we doe not accordynge to thy wordes. Then Jephthah went with the elders of Gilead. And the people made hym head, & ruler ouer them. And Jephthah rehersed all hys wordes before the Lorde in Hazpah.

The Jephthah sent messengers vnto the kynge of the children of Ammon, sayinge: what ayleth the with me that thou comest vpon me, to fyght agaynst my lande? And y kynge of the childre of Ammō answered vnto y messengers of Jephthah, because Israell toke awaye my land, whē they came out of Egypt: euē fro Arnon vnto Iabok, & fro thece vnto Jordan. Nowe therefore restore those lads agayne w sayre meany. And Jephthah sent messengers agayne vnto y kynge of the children of Ammon, & sayde vnto hym: * thus sayeth Jephthah. Israell toke not away the land of Moab, nor the lande of the children of Ammō. But when Israell came out of Egypt, they walked thorowe the wylderneesse, euen vnto the reed sea, & came to Cad, & sente messengers vnto the kynge of Edom, saying: let vs we pray the go thorowe thy lande. But y kinge of Edom wolde not agre therto. And in lyke maner they sent vnto the kyng of Moab, but he wolde not consent. And so Israell abode styl in Cades. And the they went a longe thorowe the wylderneesse, ness, and compassed the lande of Edō, and the lande of Moab, & came a longe by the east syde of the lande of Moab, and pytched on the other syde p̄ ryuer of Arnon, and came not within the costes of p̄ Moabites: for Arnon was their vtmost border. And then Israell sent messengers vnto Sehon, kynge of the Amozites, & kynge of Hesbon, & sayde vnto hym: let vs passe thorowe thy lande vnto oure owne contreye.

But Sehon trusted not Israell to goe thorowe hys coostes: but gathered all his people together and pitched in Jaz-zah, & fought with Israell. But p̄ Lorde God of Israell deliuered Sehon & all hys folcke in to the handes of Israell.
And so Israell smote thē and conquered all the lande of the Amozites, the enhabiters of the sayde contreye. And they conquered al the coostes of the A-mozites, from Arnon vnto Jabok, and frome the wyldernesse vnto Iordan.
So now, seynge p̄ Lord God of Israel hath cast out p̄ Amozites before his people of Israell, shoulde thou possesse the lande? Naye, but what people Ca-mos thy God dryueth oute that lande possest thou. But whatsoeuer nations the Lorde oure God expelleth, that lande oughte we to enioye. And thereto arte thou better thē Salack the sonne of Jephō king of Moab: dyd he stryue with Israell or fight agaynst them? all the whyle Israell dwelte in Hesbon, and her townes, and in Aroer, and her townes, & in all the cities p̄ be a longe by the coostes of Arnon. iii. hundred yeres: why dyddest thou not recouer them in al that space, wherfore, I haue not sinned agaynst the. But thou doest me wronge, to warre agaynst me. The Lorde therefore be iudge thys daye, betwene the chyldren of Israell, and the chyldren of Ammon. Now be it, the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon herkened not vnto the wordes of Jephthah, whiche he sent hym.

Then the spirite of the Lorde came vpō Jephthah. And he passed ouer Gilead & Manasses, & came to Mazpah that lyeth in Gilead, and from thence vnto the chyldren of Ammon. And Jephthah bowed a bowe vnto the Lorde, & sayd: yf thou shalt deliuer the chyldren of Ammon in to my handes, then that thyng that cometh out of the doores of my house agaynst me, when I come home in peace, from p̄ chyldren of Ammon, shalbe the Lordes, and I wyll offer it vp a burnt offering. And so Jephthah went vnto the chyldren of Ammon to fyght with them. And the Lorde de-liuered them in to hys handes. And he smote them from Aroer vnto Menith, xx. cities. And so forth to the playne of the vineyardes, & made an excedyng great slaughter. And thus the chyldre of Ammon were brought vnder, before the chyldren of Israell.

Then Jephthah came to Mazpah vnto hys house. And se, hys daughter came out agaynst hym, w̄ tymberelleg and daūses, which was his only child: so p̄ belyde her he had nether sonne nor doughter. And when he sawe her, he rent his cloth, & sayd: alas my dought-er, thou haste made me stoupe & arte one of them p̄ trouble me. For I haue opened my mouth vnto the Lorde, and can not goe backe. And she sayde vnto hym: my father, if thou haue opened thy mouth vnto the Lorde, then doe with me accor dyng to that proceeded oute of thy mouth, for as much as p̄ Lord hathe auenged the of thyn enemyes the chyldren of Ammon. And she sayde vnto her father, doe thus much for me: let me alone two monethes, that I may goe downe to the mountaynes, and be-wayle my virginite with my felowes.
And he sayde: goe, and so he sente her awaye two monethes. And she wente with her cōpanions, and lamented her mayden head vpō p̄ mountaynes. And after the two monethes, she turned a-gayne vnto her father, which dyd with her accor dyng vnto his bowe which he had bowed, and so she knewe no man.
And it became an ordinaunce in Israel yere by yere, that the doughters of Israell shulde go and lament p̄ dought-er of Jephthah the Gileadite, foure dayes in a yere.

The. xliii. Chapter.

C The maryage of Samson. He kylleth a Lyon. He propoundeth a riddle. He kylleth xxx. men. His wyfe forsaketh hym and taketh another.

S Amson went downe to Thamnath, and sawe a woman in Thamnath of þe daughters of the Philistines, and came vp and tolde hys father and hys mother, and sayde: I haue sene a woman in Thamnath of the daughters of the Philistines. And nowe geue her me to wyfe. Then hys father and mother sayde vnto hym: * is there neuer a womā of the daughters of thy brethren, amonge al my people: but that thou muste goe, and sette a wyfe of the vncircumcised Philistines? And Samson sayde vnto hys father: geue me this woman, for she pleasech me well. But hys father and mother wylte not that it was the Lordes doyng, & that he sought an occasion of the Philistines, whiche at that tyme raygned ouer Israell.

B Then went Samson and his father and hys mother downe to Thamnath. And when they came to the bynepardes of Thamnath: beholde, a younge Lion rored vpon him. And the spirite of the Lorde came vpon hym. * And he tare hym, as a man wolde rente a kyd, and yet had nothyng in hys hande. Neuerthelatter he tolde not his father and mother what he had done. And he wente downe and talked with the woman, whiche semed well fauoured in þe syghte of Samson.

And within a shorte space after, as he went thither agayne to take her to wyfe, he turned out of the waye, to se þe carkasse of the Lyon. And behold, there was a swarme of bees in þe carkasse of the Lyon and honye. And he toke of the honye in hys handes & wente eatynge, and came vnto hys father and mother, and gaue them also. And they dyd eate. But he tolde not them, that he had taken the honye oute of the carkasse of the Lyon.

And when his father was come vnto the woman. Samson made there a feast, for so vsed the younge men to do.

And when her frendes sawe hym, they broughte .xxx. companions to beare hym telowshyppe. And Samson sayde vnto them: I wyll put forth a ryddle vnto you. And yf you can declare it within .vii. dayes of the feast, and find it out, I wyl geue you thirtie shyrtes, and thirtie chaunge of garmentes: But and yf you can not declare it me, then shal you geue me thirtie shyrtes & thirtie chaunge of garmentes. And they answered him, put forth thy ryddle, and let vs heare it. And he sayd vnto them oute of the eater came meate: and out of the stronge came swetnes. And they coulde not in thre dayes expounde the riddle. And when y<sup>e</sup> seuenth

Day was come, they sayde vnto Samsons wyfe. Flatter with thyne husbād, that he maye declare vs the ryddle, or els we wyll burne the and thy fathers house with fyre, haue ye called vs to make vs beggers or not. Then Samsons wyfe wept vnto hym, and sayde: it can not be but that thou hatest me and louest me not: for thou hast put forth a ryddle vnto the children of my folke & wylt not tell me what it meaneth. And he sayde: Beholde, * I haue not tolde it my father nor my mother, and shulde I tel it the.

And she wepte vnto him. .vii. dayes whyle the feast lasted. And the seuenth daye he tolde her, bycause she laye so fore vpon him. And she tolde it the children of her folke. And the men of the citie sayde vnto him the seuenth daye, before the sunne went downe. What is sweter then honye, and what is stronger then a Lyon. Then sayde he vnto them: Yf ye had not plowed with my caulfe, ye had not founde out my rydle. Then the spirite of the Lord came vpon him. And he wēt doune to Ascalon, & sette thyrtye men of them, and spoyled them, and gaue their garmentes vnto them whiche expounded the rydle. And he was wrothe and went vpon to hys fathers house. * But Sāsons wyfe was geuen to one of hys companions, that bare hym companye.

¶ The xiii. Chapter.

¶ Samson titheth fyrebrandes to fore tayles, and letteth them runne into the corne and burne it, to be auenged of them that toke hys wyfe from hym. With the Jawe

But it chaunced within a whyle after, euen in y<sup>e</sup> tyme of whete haruest, that Sāson visited hys wyfe with a kiddy. And when he suppoled to haue gone in vnto hys wife, in to the chambze, her father woulde not suffer hym to goe in: But sayde: I thought that thou haddest hated her, & therfore gaue I her vnto one of thy companions. Howe be it, her younger sylter is sayet the the. Take her in steade of the other. Then sayde Samson vnto them: Howe I am blamelesse concerninge the Philistines, thoughe I doe them euell.

And Samson wente oute, & caught thre hundred foxes, and toke fyrebrandes, and fastened tayle to tayle, and put a fyrebrande in the myddes, betwene two tayles. And he set the fyrebrandes on fyre, and put them in to the corne of the Philistines, and burnte vpon bothe the reped corne and also the standynge, with vines & olyues. Then the Philistines asked, who had done that. And it was tolde the that Samson the sōne in lawe of the Chammitte, bycause he hadde taken hys wyfe, and geuen her to one of his companions. And the Philistines came and burnte her & her father with fyre.

And Samson sayde vnto them: Shoulde ye do so: I wyll surely be auenged of you, and then I wyll cease. And he smote them * legges and thyghes with a myghtye plage. And then he wēt & dwelt in the caue of the rocke Etam.

Then the Philistines came vpon, & pitched agaynst Iuda, and laye in Lehi. And they sayde, we wyl not hurte the, saue onely bynde the and delyuer the vnto their handes: But we wyl not kyll the. And so they bounde hym with two newe cordes, and brought hym vp from the rocke. And when he came to Lehi, the Philistines shouted agaynst hym. And the spirite of the Lorde came vpon hym, and the cordes that were vpon hys armes, became as flaxe & was burnt with fire, and the bandes lousd frome of hys handes. And he founde a Jaw bone of a rottē asse, and put forth hys hande and caughte it, and slewe a thousande men therewith.

D And Samson sayde: with þe Jawe of an asse, haue I made heapes of the: with the Jaw of an asse haue I slayne a thousande men. And when he had left speakynge: he caste awaye the Jawe oute of hys hande and called the place * Ramath Lehi. And he was sore a thurst, and called on the Lord, and sayd. Thou Lorde haste geuen thys greate victorie, thorowe the hande of thy seruante. And now I muste dye for thirst and fall in to the handes of the vncircumcised. But God brake a great toth that was in the Jawe, and there came water therout. ### ¶ The. xvi. Chapter.

¶ Samson lefteth vp the gates of Gaza and carpeeth the vp in to the mountayne. He was deceaued by Dalilah and made blynde. He pullt down the house vpon the Philistines and dyeth with them.

A Then wente Samson to Gaza, and saue there an whoze, & went in vnto her. And it was tolde the Gazites, that Samson was come thither. And they went about, and layde awaite for him al nyghte in the gate of the cite, but were styll al the nyght, saying: Carpe tyll the mornynge that it be daye, and then lette vs kyll hym. And

Samson toke hys rest tyll mydnyght, and arose at mydnyght, and toke the doores of the gate of þe cite, and the two syde postes, and rent them of, bannes & all, and put them vpon hys shoulders, & caried the vp to the toppe of an hyl that lieth before Hebron.

And after that he loued a woman, vpon the ryuer of Sozek, called Dalilah vnto whome came the Lordes of the Philistynes, and sayde vnto her: Flatter with hym, and see wherein hys great strength lyeth, & by what meane we maye haue power ouer hym, that we maye bynde hym, to bynge hym vnder, and we wyl geue euery man a leuen hundred syluerlynges.

And Dalilah sayde vnto Samson: B Oh, tell me where thy greate strengthe lyeth, and yf thou were bounde where: with men myght constrayne thee. And Samson sayd vnto her: Yf men boude me with .vii. grene wythes that were neuer dyled, I shuld be weake & as an other man. And then the lordes of the Philistines brought her .vii. wythes that were yet grene and neuer dyled, and she bounde hym therewith. Not withstandinge she had men lyinge in wayte with her in the chābre. And she sayd vnto hym: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he brake the wythes as a strynge of towne breaketh, when it fealeth fyre. And so hys strengthe was not knowen.

Then sayde Dalilah to Samson: C See, thou hast mocked me and tolde me lyes, nowe yet tell me I praye the, wherewith thou myghtest be bounde. And he sayde: Yf I were bounde with newe ropes that neuer were occupied, then shoulde I be weake, and as an other man. And Dalilah toke newe ropes, and bounde him therewith, & sayde vnto him: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And there were lyers of wayte in þe chābre, and he brake them from of hys armes, as they had bene but a threde. And Dalilah sayde vnto Samson, hitherto þe hast begyled me, & tolde me lyes: I praye the yet tell me wherewith men maye bynde the. And he sayd vnto her: Yf thou plattedest the seuen lockes of my head with an heere lace & fastenedest the with a nyle, I shoulde be weake be weake. And she sayde vnto hym: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awaked out of hys slepe, and plucked and went awaye with the nayle that was in the plattynge and with the heere lace. Then she said vnto him: Howe canst thou saye that thou louest me, when thyne hearte is not with me: for thou hast mocked me this. iiii. times and hast not tolde me wherein thy great strength lyeth. And as she lay vpon him wyth her wordes continually verbyg of hym, his soule was encombred euen vnto the death. And he tolde her al his heart, and sayd vnto her: *there neuer came raser nor sheres vpon myne head, for I haue bene an abstayner to God, euen frome my mothers wombe. If myne heere were cut of, my strength woulde goe from me, and I shoulde ware weake and be lyke all other men. And when Dalilah sawe that he had tolde her all hys heart, she sente for the Philistines, sayig: come yet this once, for he hath shewed me all his heart.

And she made hym slepe vpon her lappe, and sent for a man, and cutte of the seven lockes of his heed, and beganne to bere hym. But hys strength was gone from hym. And she sayde: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awooke out of his slepe, & thoughte to goe oute as at other tymes before & make hymselfe, and wiste not that the Lorde was departed from hym. But the Philistines toke hym and put out hys eyes, and brought him doune to Gaza, and bounde hym with fetters. And he was made to grinde in the priso house, howe be it the heere of hys head began to grow agayne after y he was shorne.

Then the lordes of the Philistines gathered them together, for to offer a solempne offeringe vnto Dagon their God, and to reioyce: for they sayde: our god hath deliuered Samson our enemye in to oure handes. And when the people sawe hym, they prayled their god: for they sayd: our god hath deliuered in to oure handes oure enemye, y destroyed our contreye and slue manye of vs. And when their heartes were merue, they sayde: sende for Samson, and let hym playe before vs. And they fet Samson out of the priso house, & he played before them, and they sette hym betwene the pylers. And Samson sayde vnto the ladde that lede hym by the hande: set me that I maye touche the pylers that the house stande vpon, and that I may leane to them. And the house was ful of men and wemen. And there was all the lordes of the Philistines. And there were vpon the rouse a thre thousande men and wemen, that behelde howe Samson played.

And Samson called vnto the Lorde, and sayde: my Lorde Jehouah thynke vpon me, and strengthen me, at thys time onely O God, that I maye be aduenged of the Philistines for my two eyes. And Samson caughte the two myddle pylers on whiche the house stode, and on whiche it was borne vpon the one in his right hand, and the other in his lefte, and sayde: my soule dye w the Philistines, and bowed them with al his myght. And the house fel vpon the lordes and vpon al the people that were therein. And so the dead whiche he slue at his death, were mo then they which he slue in hys lyfe. And then hys brethren and all the house of hys father came doune and tooke hym vpon, and brought him and buryed hym betwene zarah and Esthaol, in y buryng place of Manoah his father. And he iudged Israel twentye yere.

go, and searche out the lande. And they came to mounte Ephraim, euen to the house of Micah and lodged there.

And whē they were come vnto þ house of Micah, they knewe the voyce of the younge man the Leuite, and turned in thither, & sayd vnto him: who brought the hyther: and what makest þ in this

And

And they turned thitherwarde and came to the house of the young man the Levite, in the house of Micah, and saluted him peaceably. And the spyre hundred men girded with weapons of warre which were of the children of Dan, stood in the entering of the gate. And the spyre man that went to spyre out the land, went in thither, and toke the kerued Image, and the Ephod, the kerued Image, and the Image of metal. And the priest stood in the entrance of the gate with the spyre hundred men which were armed to battell, while the other went to Michas house, and set the kerued Image, the Ephod, the kerued Image and the Image of metal. Then sayde the priest vnto them: what do ye? and they answered him, holde thy peace, and put thine hande vpon thy mouth, and come with vs, and be vnto vs a father and a priest, whether is it better for thee to be a priest vnto the house of one man, or to be priest vnto a tribe or a kindred in Israel? And the priest was gladd, and toke the Ephod and the Images, and the grauen Image, and went with the people. And they turned and departed, and put the children, the cattell, and their costlye thinges before them.

When they were a good waye from the house of Micah, the men which were in the houses which were by Michas house, made an out crye, and folowed after the children of Dan, and called vnto them. And they turned their faces, and sayde vnto Micah, what ayleth thee, which thou makest an out crye? And he said, ye haue taken awaye my Goddes which I made, and also the priest, and go your wayes with them. And what haue I more, how shall I save ye vnto me, what ayleth thee? And the children of Dan said vnto him, let not thy voyce be heard amonge vs, lest angry felowes runne vpon thee, and thou loose thy lyfe, with the lyues of all thyne houshold to. And so the children of Dan went their wayes. And when Micah sawe that they were to stronge for him, he turned, and went backe vnto his house agayne.

And they toke the thinges which Micah had made, and the priest which he had, and wente vnto Laish, euen vnto a people that were at rest and without mistruste, and smote them with the edge of the swerde, and burnt the citie with fyre. And there was no man to helpe, because it was farre from Sidon, and they had no medelunge with any other nacion. And the cite stood in the valeye that lyeth by Bethrehab. And they bulte the cite and dwelte therein. * And called it Dan, after the name of Dan their father, which was borne vnto Israel. Howe be it, in very dede the name of the cite was Laish at the begynnyng.

And the children of Dan set them by the grauen Image. And Jonathan the sonne of Gerson, the sonne of Manasses and his sonnes were the priestes vnto the tribe of the Danites, butyll they were carryed awaye out of the land captiue. And they set them by the kerued Image which Micah made, all the while that the house of God was in Siloh.

The .xix. Chapter

Of the Leuite whose wyfe was villanously kylled in Gibeon. She is deuyded in to xii. partes and of her sente to euerye tribe of Israel a peece.

When there was no kynge in Israel, that a certain Leuite dwellinge on the side of mount Ephraim, toke to wyfe a concubine out of Bethlehem Juda: which concubine played the whoze in his house, and went awaye from him, vnto her fathers house to Bethlehem Juda, and there continued foure monethes. And her husband arose and went after her, to speake freely vnto her, and to bringe her home agayne, and his lad with him, and a couple of asses. And he brought him vnto her fathers house, and when the father of the damosel sawe him, he reioysed of his commynge. And his father in lawe the damoselles father kept him that he abode with him thre dayes, and so they ate and dranke and lodged there.

The fourth daye they arose earlye in the mornynge, and the man stode by to departe. But the damoselles father laid vnto his sonne in lawe, comforte thyne heart with a morsel of breade, and they go your waye. And they sate doune, and dyd eate and drinke both of them together. Then sayde the damoselles father vnto the man, go to I praye the and tarpe all night, and let thine heart be merie. Howe be it the man stode by to departe: but his father in lawe compelled hym to turne agayne, & to tary al nyght there. And he rose vp early the fyfthe daye to departe. Then said p damosels father, cōforte thine hert: and so made him tarye vntil after myddaye. And they dyd eate bothe of them together.

C And then the man arose to departe with his concubine and his ladde. But his father in lawe the damoselles father sayde vnto him: beholde, the day goeth fast awaye, and draweth towarde euen, tarye all nyght: at the least waye tarye this day here, and let thine hert be merie. And to morowe get you early vpon your waye, and get the to thy tent. Neuerthelater, the man woulde not tarye, but arose & departed, and came as ferre as Jebus, whiche is Ierusalem, & hys two asses laden, and his <sup>a</sup> concubine and his lad with him. And when they were faste by Jebus, the daye was sore spent, and the younge man sayde vnto his master, come I praye the, and let vs turne in, into this cite of the Jebusites, and lodge al night there. But his master said vnto him, we wil not turne in to a straunge cite that are not of the chyldren of Israel: we wyll go forth to Gibeah. And he sayde vnto his lad, go forwarde, & we shall come to one place or other and shal lodge al nyght, in Gibeah or in Ramah. And they wente forwarde vpon theyr waye, and the sunne wente downe vpon them, when they were fast by Gibeah whiche is in Benjamin. And they turned thitherwarde to go and lodge all nyghte in Gibeah. And when they came in, they sat them doune in a streate of the cytie, for there was no man toke them in to lodge.

C But beholde, there came an olde man from his worcke, out of p felde at euē, whiche was also of mounte Ephraim, and but a straunger in Gibeah for the men of the place were of the chyldren of Iemini. And when he had lyfte vp his eyes, and sawe a wayefaringe man in the streates of the cite, he said: whither goest thou? And whence comest thou? And the other answered him, we come from Bethlehem Iuda, towarde the syde of mounte Ephraim: from thence am I, and went to b Bethlehem Iuda, and go now to the house of the Lord. But there is no man that receaueth me to house: and yet I haue strawe and prouander for our asses, and breade and wyne for me & thy handmayde, and thy lad that is w thy seruante, and lacke nothing.

The olde man sayde, peace be with the, all that thou lackest shalte thou fynde with me: onely abyde not in the streates al night, and he broughte him in to his house, and gaue fodder vnto his asses. And they washed their fete, and dyd eate and dryncke. And * as they were makynge theyr hertes merie, the men of the cytie which were wicked, beset the house rounde aboute, and thrust at the dore, and spake to the man of the house, the olde man, sayinge: brynge forth the man p came into thine house, that we maye knowe him.

* But the man of the house went out to them and sayde vnto them: Oh, naye my brethren, do not so wickedlye, seying that this mā is come into my house: do not this folye. And the leuite, the womans hulbande that was slayne, answered and sayde: I came into Gibeah that is in Benjamin with my concubyne to lodge all nyght.
And the cytezens of Gibeah rose agāst me, and set the house rounde about vpon me by nyght, & thoughte to haue slayne me: and caught my concubyne and forced her, that she dyed. And I toke my cōcubyne, and cut her in peces and sent her thorow out al the landes of the enherytaunce of Israel. for they haue cō-mitted abheminaciō & folly in Israel.
Beholde, ye are al childre of Israel. Se therfore & gene your aduysē in the case.

Then all the people arose, as it had ben one mā, saying: there shal not a man of vs go to his tente, nether turne in to his house. And now this is it y<sup>e</sup> we wyl do to Gibeah, and cast lottes agāst it.

B And we wyl take ten men of the hūdrēd thorowe out al the tribes of Israel, and an hundred of y<sup>e</sup> thousande, and a thousande oute of the ten thousande, to set bittayle for the people to make that they mā go agaynst Gibeah Benjamin, accordynge to all the folye, y<sup>e</sup> they haue wrought in Israel. And so al the mē of Israel gathered together, vnto Gibe-ah, knytte together as it had ben but one man. And the trybes of Israel sent men thorowe al the trybe of Benjamin, saying: what wickednesse is this that is happened among you. Now therfore belyue vs the mē, those wycked wretches of Gibeah that we mā slep them, and put awaye euēl from Israel.

Jos. xxi. b

Neuerthelater, the children of Benjamin woulde not herken vnto y<sup>e</sup> voyce of their brethzen the children of Israel: but gathered them selues together out of the cityes vnto Gibeah, to come oute in battayle agāst the children of Israel. And y<sup>e</sup> children of Benjamin were nombred at that tyme, out of the cityes xxvi. thousande men that drew swer-des besyde the enhabitors of Gibeah, whiche were nombred seuen hundred chosen men. And among al these folke were seuen hundred left handed men, which euery one could flyng stones at an hear breadth, and not mysse. And y<sup>e</sup> children of Israel besyde the children of Beniamin, were nombred foure hūdrēd thousande men that drew swerdes, and all men of warre.

And the childre of Israel arose, and went vp to Bethel, and asked of God, who shoulde begynne the battel agāst the children of Benjamin, and the Lord sayde Juda shal begynne. And y<sup>e</sup> childre of Israel stode vpon erlye and beseged Gibeah. And the men of Israel went out to battel agaynst Benjamin, and put them selues in arape agaynst them, to fycht agaynst Gibeah. And the childre of Benjamin came out of Gibeah, and destroyed in Israel that day, xxi. thousande men, & broughte thē to the erthe.

As before in y. xix. c

And the folke of the children of Israel plucked vpon their heartes, and went to agayne and made battel in the same place where they did the fyrste day: but they went fyrste vpon and wept before the Lorde vnto euē, and asked of the Lord, saying: Shall we go agayne to battel agāst the children of Benjamin oure brethzen. And the Lorde said: go vpon to them, and whē the children of Israel were come to the children of Benjamin the seconde day, the children of Beniamin went agaynst them out of Gibeah, the seconde day, and destroyed to y<sup>e</sup> etth of the children of Israel once agayne. xxviii. thousande men that drew swer-des euery man of them.

Then the children of Israel and all the people went vpon and came vnto Bethel, and wepte and sat there before the Lorde, & fasted the same day vnto euē, and offered burnt offerynges & peace offerynges before the LORDE.

And they asked the Lord: for there was the arcke of the appoyntment of God, in those dayes. And * Whinehes the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron waiting vpon it at that time: and they said, shal we go out any more to battell agaynst the children of Benjamin oure brethren, or shal we cease? And y lord said, go: for to morowe I wil deliuer the into your hādes. And Israel set layes awayte agaynst Gibeah rounde aboute. And the children of Israel went agaynst y children of Benjamin the thirde time, & put them selues in aray agaynst Gibeah, as twise before. Then came the childre of Benjamin agaynst y people, tyll they were drawen a great way from y cite. And they began to smyte of the people deade (as twise before, by two hye wayes of whiche one goeth by to Bethel, & the other to Gibeah thorow the felde) vpon a thirtie men of Israel. For the children of Benjamin thought that the other had ben beaten before them, as at the fyrste tyme. But the children of Israel sayde: let vs flee and plucke them awaye from the ctyte, vnto the hye wayes.

And then all the men of Israel rose vp out of their standynge, and put the selues in aray at Baal Thamar. And lykwylse the layers in wayte of Israel came forth out of their places, euen out of the medowes of Gibeah, & came before Gibeah: ten thousande chosen men out of all Israel, & there was sore battel. But y other wist not that euyl was to nye them. And the Lord plagued Benjamin before Israel, so that the children of Israel destroyed in Benjamin y same daye. xxv. thousande, and a hundred men, that dreye swerdes euerye one of them. It semed y childre of Benjamin, that the other had ben put to y woorse. For the men of Israel gaue rōme to Benjamin, because they trusted vnto y layers in wayte whiche they had layde agaynst Gibeah. And y laiers in waite hasted, and came vpon Gibeah, & wēt and smote al the ctyte with the edge of the swerde. And the appoyntmēt of the men of Israel with the layers in wayte to runne vpo Benjamin with y swerde, was when they shoulde make the smoke cyle vp out of the ctyte. And the men of Israel fled in the battell. And Benjamin began to smyte deade of the children of Israel, aboute a thirtie parsonnes, for they supposed y the other had bene put to the worse before them, as in the fyrst battell. Then began to arylse out of the ctyte, a pyller of smoke. And the Beniamites looked backe: and beholde, the wastynge of the hole ctyte began to ascende vp to heauen.

When the men of Israel turned agayne, the mē of Benjamin were abashed: for they saw y euyl approached the. And they turned before the mē of Israel vnto the waye that leadeith to y wylderneffe, the other folowynge them at the harde heles. And besyde y, they of the ctyte destroyed them in the myddle of them. And they compassed Benjamin aboute, and chased the to Mennah, and ouer ranne the before Gibeah on the east syde: and there were slayne of Benjamin. xviii. thousande, and all men of myghte. And they turned & fled to the wylderneffe warde, and vnto the rocke * of pomegarnettes. And the other flue by the waye of y rest of them, fyue thousande men, and sticked vnto them vntil they came to Gibeā, and slue two thousande moore of them. So y all that were slayne y same daye of Benjamin were. xxv. thousande mē that dreye swerdes, and al mē of myght: * onely. vi. hūdzred men turned and fled to the wylderneffe, vnto the Roocke of pomegarnettes and abode there. iiii. monethes. And then the men of Israel turned backe againe vnto the children of Benjamin, and smote them with the edge of the swerde in the cities, bothe man and beast, and al that came to hande, and moore ouer set al the ctytes they coulde come by, on fyre.

The. xxi. Chapter.

The trybe of Benjamin beyng vtterlye destroyed for theyr fornication with the Leuites wyfe: is restored agayne.

And the men of Israel sware in Mizpah, sayynge: there shall none of vs geue his doughter vnto any of Benjamin to wyfe. And y people cā to Bethel & abode there til eue, before god, & lift vp their voices & wept sore, & said: O lord god of Israel, why is this chaūced in ced in Israel, & there should be this day one trybe lackynge in Israel: And on þe morowe the people rose vp betyme, & made there an altare and offered burnt offerynge, and peace offeringes.

And the childre of Israel asked, who are they amonge al the trybes of Israel, that came not with the congregaciō vnto the Lorde: for they had made a great othe concernynge thē that came not vp to the Lorde to Hazphah, sayinge: that they shoulde suerly dye. And the children of Israel had pytie on Benjamin their brethren, and said: there is one trybe cut of from Israel this daye: what shal we do vnto the remnaunte of them, for to get them wyues, for as muche as we haue sworne by þe Lorde, that we wil not geue thē of our doughters to wyues. Then they sayde, what are they of the tribes of Israel þe came not vp to Hazphah to þe Lorde: And beholde there came none of þe inhabitoures of Jabes Gilead vnto the congregacion. And when the people were bewed: beholde, there were none of the inhabitants of Jabes Gilead there. And þe congregacion sent thether. xii. thousande men of the strongest of thē, & comaūded them, sayinge: go & synpte þe inhabitants of Jabes Gilead wth þe edge of þe swerde, both women & children. * And this is þe ye shal do: vtterly destroye al the males & al the women þe haue lien by men. And they fōūde among þe inhabitants of Jabes Gilead foure hundred damoselles virgins, þe had knowen no mā by lying with any male. And they brought them vnto the host to Siloh, which is in the lande of Canaan.

And the hole congregacion sente and spake with the childre of Benjamin, * þe were in the Rocke of pomegranettes, & called peaceably vnto them: & Benjamin came agayne at that tyme, & they gaue them the women which they had sauēd a lyue of the women of Jabes Gilead. But they so suffised thē not. And þe people had cōpassion on Benjamin, because þe God had made a gap in þe trybes of Israel. And thē the elders of the cōgregaciō, said: what shal we do to the remnaunte of them, to get them wyues, seynge al the wyues of Benjamin are destroyed: And they said: there must be an enheritaunce for them þe be escaped of Benjamin þe a trybe be not destroyed out of Israel: howe be it, we may not geue them wyues of oure doughters. For the children of Israel had made an adiuracion, sayinge: a cursed be he that geueth a wyfe to Benjamin.

Then they said: beholde, there is a feast of þe Lorde yerlye in Siloh, which is on the north syde of Bethel, & on the east syde of the waye, that goeth from Bethel to Sichem, and southe from Libanon. And they commaūded þe children of Benjamin, sayinge: go and lye in wayte in the byneyardes. And when ye se that þe doughters of Siloh come oute to daunce in a rowe, then come ye out of the byneyardes, and catche you euerye man a wyfe of the doughters of Siloh, and get you vnto the lande of Benjamin. And yf theyr fathers or brethren come vnto vs to complayne, we wyll saye vnto them, haue pytie on them, because we reserued not to eche man his wyfe in tyme of warre, & thertoe because that ye gaue them none in due tyme, ye were to blame.

And the children of Benjamin dyd euen so: and toke them wiues according to the nombze of them of the dauncers whiche they caught. And then they wēt and retozned vnto their enheritaunce, and bylt their citties and dwelt in thē.

And the children of Israel departed thence at that tyme, and went euery mā to his trybe, and to his kynred, & wente out from thence euery man to his enheritaunce. * In those daies there was no kynge in Israel: but euery man dyd what semed hym ryghte in hys owne eyes.

Moab: with his wyſe and two ſonnes.
The name of the mā was Elimelec, and his wyſe Noemi, and the names of hys two ſonnes were, Mahalon and Chilion, and they were Ephraites, out of Bethlehem Juda. And when they came in to the lāde of Moab, they cōtinued there.
And Elimelec Noemies huſbāde died, and he remayned with her two ſonnes whiche toke them wyues of the naciōs of the Moabites: the ones name was Orpah, and the others Ruth. And whē they had dwelled there about a tē yere, Mahalon and Chilion dyed alſo euen bothe two of them, ſo that the wiſe was left deſolate of her two ſonnes, and of her huſbande therto. The ſhe ſtode by with her daughters in law, and returned fro the contrey of Moab: for ſhe had herde ſaye, beyng in the cōtre of Moab: how that the Lorde had vylited his people, and geuen them fode. Wherefore ſhe departed out of the place where ſhe was, and her two daughters with her. And as they wente by the waye returnyng vnto the lāde of Juda, Noemi ſaid vnto her two daughters in lawe: go and returne eche of you vnto youre mothers

Then they cryed and wepte, and ſayde vnto her: we wyll go with the vnto thy

The. ii. Chapter.

Ruth leaſeth corne in the felde of Booz and findeth ſauour in hys ſyghte.

And Noemi had a kynſman of her huſbandes, a man of myghte, of the kyntred of Elimelec, named Booz. And Ruth ſ Moabiteſſe ſayde vnto Noemi, let me go to ſ felde, and leaſe and gather eares, after whoſoꝝe I ſide grace in his ſyght. And ſhe ſaid vnto her: go my daughter. And ſhe wet and caſt gather red after the haruest men, & her chaunce was, that parte of the felde pertayned vnto Booz, which was of the kynred of Elimelec. And beholde, Booz came fro Bethlehem, and sayde vnto the haruest men, the Lorde be with you. And they answered him: the Lorde blesse thee.

Then sayde Booz vnto the younge mā that had the ouer syght of the heruest men. Whose damosell is this? And the younge man that was set to ouer se the heruest men answered and sayde: it is the Moabitish damosel, that came with Naomi oute of the countrey of Moab, and she sayde: let me I praye the, lease & gather after the heruest men, & eates that remayne: and so she came, & hath contynued euen from the moynynge vnto now, & tarped not lōge in y<sup>e</sup> house.

Then sayde Booz vnto Ruth: hearest thou my doughter: go to no nother felde to geather, nether go from hence: but abyde by my maydens. Thine eyes are on a felde that shalbe reped: go after the maydens therfore, for I haue charged the younge men, & they touche the not. Moreover, when thou arte a thrist, go vnto the vessels and dryncke of that which the laddes haue drawen. Then she fel on her face and bowed her selfe to the ground, and said vnto him: howe is it that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, to knowe me, seynge I am an alvaunte.

And Booz answered & said vnto her: al is tolde me that thou hast done vnto thy mother in lawe, sēce y<sup>e</sup> death of thine husbāde, how thou hast left thy father and thy mother, & the lāde where y<sup>e</sup> wast borne, and art come vnto a naciō which thou knewest not in tyme passed. The Lorde quyte thy worcke, and a full rewarde be geuen the of the Lord God of Israel: vnto whō y<sup>e</sup> arte come, to trust vnder his winges. Then she sayde vnto him: let me fynde fauour in thy sight my Lorde for thou hast comforted me, and hast spokē hartely vnto thy maide, whiche yet can not be lyke vnto one of thy maydens. And Booz whē the tyme of relectiō was come, said vnto her: cōe hither & eate of y<sup>e</sup> bread, & dip thy sop in the vinager. And she sat doune by y<sup>e</sup> reapers, & he taughte her & parched corne. And so she did eate & was suffised & left parte. And whē she was risen vp to gather, Booz said to y<sup>e</sup> youg me, sayng: let her gather y<sup>e</sup> eates y<sup>e</sup> remayne & do her no despote. And therto pull out of y<sup>e</sup> sheues for her & let it lye, & she may gather it vp, and rebuke her not. And so she gathered vntyll euen & thē threshed y<sup>e</sup> she had gathered, & it was vpon an Ephā of barley. And she toke it vp and wente to y<sup>e</sup> citie, & shewed hir mother in lawe what she had gathered. And therto she plucked out, & gaue to her y<sup>e</sup> she had reserved, whē she had eaten ynough. Thē said her mother in law vnto her, where gatheredst y<sup>e</sup> to daye? & where wroughtest thou: blessed be he that knewe thee. And she shewed her mother in law with whō she had wrought, & said: y<sup>e</sup> mannes name w<sup>h</sup> whō I wrought to daye is Booz. Then sayde Naomi vnto her doughter in law: blessed be he of the Lord, for he ceaseth not to do the same goodnesse to the deade, & he dyd to y<sup>e</sup> lyuynge. And Naomi said vnto her: y<sup>e</sup> mā is nye vnto vs, euen of our nexte kynne. And Ruth y<sup>e</sup> Moabite said: he bad me also, that I should continue with his younge men, vntil they had ended all the heruest he hath. Then said Naomi vnto Ruth her doughter in law, it is best my doughter that thou go out w<sup>h</sup> his maydens, and that no man mete y<sup>e</sup> in any other felde. And so she kept her by the maydens of Booz, to gather vnto the ende of barley haruest & of wheate haruest also: and dwelte with her mother in lawe.

The.iii. Chapter.

Thē Naomi her mother in law sayde vnto her: my doughter I wyl seke reast for the, that thou mayst be in better case. For nowe this Booz oure kynsman w<sup>h</sup> whose maydens thou wast, wenoweth hys barleye to nyght in the threshyng floure: washe thy selfe therfore, & anointe the, and put thy raymente vpon the, & get the to y<sup>e</sup> threshyng floure. But let not y<sup>e</sup> man beware of the, vntyl he haue least eatinge and drynkyng. And whē he goeth to slepe, marcke the place where he layeth him doune, and then go and lyfte vp the clothes, that are on hys feete, and laye the doune and so shal he tell the what thou shalt doe. And she answered her: al that thou biddest me, I wyl doe. And so she went vnto the floure, and dyd accordinge to all þæt her mother in law bad her. And whē Booz had eaten and droncken & made hym merre, he wente and laye downe by the syde of the heape corne. And she came softly & lifte vp the clothes of his fete, and layde her doune. And at mydnyght the man was astryde and groyped. And beholde, a woman laye at his fete. Then he sayd: what arte thou, and she answered: I am Ruth thyne handmayde, sprede thy mantell ouer thyne handmayde, for thou arte the nexte of the kynne. And then he sayde: blessed be thou in þæt Lorde my daughter, for thou hast shewed more goodnesse in the latter ende, then at the begynnynge, in as muche as thou folowedest not younge men, whether they were poore or ryche. And nowe my daughter feare not, I wyl doe to the all that thou requitest, for all the gates of my people knowe, that thou art a woman of vertue. And it is true that I am of thy next kynne: Howe be it, there is one nyer then I. Tary al night. And when the morning is come yf he wil marie the, it is good, so let hym doe. But and yf he wyl not haue the, as sure as the Lorde lyueth I wyl haue the: yf styl vntyl the morninge. And so she lay at his fete vntyl þæt morning. And she arose vp before one coulde knowe another. And he said: let no mā beware, that there came any woman in to the threshynge floure. And he sayde: bynge thy matell þæt thou haste bpō the, & holde it vp. And she helde it vp. And he met in. vi. measures of barleye, & layed it on her. And she gat her in to the citie: & she came in to her mother in lawe, whiche sayd: what tydynge my daughter? And she tolde her al that the mā had done to her. And sayd thereto, these syxe measures of barleye gaue he me, and sayde: Thou shalt not go emptie vnto thy mother in law. Then sayde she: my daughter, syt still, vntyll thou knowe howe the matter wyl chaunce. For the man wyl not be in rest, vntyll he haue finished the matter thys same daye.

Booz taketh Ruth to wyfe, of whome he begetteth Obed.

Then went Booz vnto the gate, and satte hym downe there: and beholde the kynsman of whiche Booz spake came by. Vnto whome he sayde: come and sytte downe here, and called hym by hys name. And he turned in and satte downe. Then he toke ten men of the elders of the citie, and sayde: sit ye downe here. And they satte downe. Then he sayd vnto the kynsman: Naomi that is come agayne out of the cōtrepe of Moab, * wyl sell a parcell of lande, which was oure brother Elimelecs. And I thoughte to do the to wete, and bidde the bye it before the enhabitours and elders of my people, yf thou be disposed to calenge it doe: but yf þæt wylt not purchase it, then tell me, & I maye wete it. For there is none to calenge it saue thou, & I nexte the. And þæt other answered, I wyl purchase it.

Eli Hannah i. Samuel.

And all the people that were in the gate, & the elders sayde: we are witnesses: y<sup>e</sup> Lorde make the womā y<sup>e</sup> is come in to thyne house, like * Rahel and Lea, whyche twayne dyd bylde the house of Israel: that she may * do vertuously in Ephrathah, and be famous in Bethlehem, & that thyne house be lyke the house of * Pharez, whō Chamār bare vnto Juda, euen of the seed whiche the Lorde shall geue the of thys younge woman.

And so Booz tooke Ruth, and she was hys wyfe. And he wēt in vnto her, & the Lorde gaue that she conceaued, and bare a sonne. And the women sayd vnto Noemi: blessed be the Lorde, the whiche hath not lefte the without an heyre thys day * that shal haue a name in Israel, & that shal bynge thy lyfe agayne, and cheryshe thyne olde age. For thy doughter in law which loueth the, hath bozne hym & is better to thee then seuē sonnes. Noemi toke y<sup>e</sup> childe, and layed it in her lappe, and became nourse vnto it. And her neyghbours gaue it a name, saying: there is a child bozne to Noemi, and called it Obed: he is the father of Isai, the father of Dauid. This is the generacion of * Pharez, Pharez begat Hezron: Hezron begat Ram, Ram begat Aminadab, Aminadab begat Nahalon, Nahalon begat Salimon, Salimon begat Booz, Booz begat Obed, Obed begat Isai, Isai begat Dauid.

The. i. Chapter.

Elkanah hath. ii. wyues, Hannah & Phenēnah. Phenēnah x<sup>p</sup> byp<sup>er</sup> deth Hannah because she is childlesse. Whā she after prayer made to God, byngeth forth Samuel.

Here was a man of Ramathaim: of Ephraim, of mount Ephraim named * Elikanah, the sōne of Jeroham, the sōne of Eliu, the sonne of Tihohu, the son of Zuph an Ephrathite: whiche had. ii. wyues, the one called Hannah and the other Phenēnah. And Phenēnah had childre, but Hannah had none. * And y<sup>e</sup> sayd mā wēt out of his citie euery festiue daye, to praye and to offer vnto the Lorde of hostes in Silo: where the two sōnes of Eli (Hophni & Phinehes) were y<sup>e</sup> Lordes priestes. And it fel on a day as Elkanah had offered, y<sup>e</sup> he gaue to Phenēnah hys wyfe and to all her sonnes & doughters porciōs. But vnto Hannah he gaue a * porcion with a heupe chere, for he loued her, neuertheless y<sup>e</sup> Lorde had made her barrē. And thereto her encynye Phenēnah vexed her a good in castynge her in the tethe, how y<sup>e</sup> Lorde had made her barren. And so did she yere by yere as oft as she wēt vp to the house of y<sup>e</sup> Lorde. And so charged her, wherfore Hannah wepte & ate not. Then sayde Elkanah her hūsbāde to her: Hannah why wepest thou? and why eatest thou not: and why is thyn hearte so troubled: am not I better to the, thē ten sonnes: then Hannah arose bp after y<sup>e</sup> they had eaten & droncke in Siloh. And Eli the prieste late vpon a stole by one of y<sup>e</sup> syde postes of y<sup>e</sup> temple of y<sup>e</sup> Lorde. And she was troubled in her spirites, & prayed vnto y<sup>e</sup> Lorde, & wept sore, & bowed a bowe, & sayde: O Lord of hostes, yf thou wilt loke on the wretchednesse of thine handmayde and shalt remēbre me and not forget thyne hādmayde, and shalt geue vnto thyne hādmayde a māchilde: I wil geue him vnto y<sup>e</sup> Lorde, al y<sup>e</sup> dayes of his lyfe: & there shall neither raser oz theres come bpō his heed. And as she cōtinued prayng before the Lorde, Eli marked her mouth, for Hānah she spake i her hert, and her lippes dyd but moue only, but her voyce was not hearde. And therfore Eli toke her for droncke, & sayd vnto her: holwe longe wilt y<sup>e</sup> be droncke: put away frō the, the wyne y<sup>e</sup> thou hast.

kettle, caldren, or pottle. And al that the fleshoke broughte vp, the prieste toke awaye. And so they dyd vnto all Israel that came thither to Siloh. Yea: & therto before they had offered the fat, the priestes ladde came and sayd to the mā that offered: geue flesh to rost for y priest, for he wyl not haue sodden flesh of the, but rawe. And yf any man sayde vnto hym: let the fatte be offered according to the day, & then take as much as thyne heart desireth. The lad wolde answer hym, thou shalt geue it me now, or els I wyl take it with violence. And the sinne of the youngmē was verye greate before the Lorde. For they despyed the people and also the offeringe of the Lorde.

But the ladde Samuell ministered before the Lorde, girded about with a lymen Ephod. Moreover his mother made hym a lytell coote, and brought it to hym from feast to feast, when he came vp with her husband, to offer the offering of y sayd feast. And Eli blessed Elkanah and his wyfe, and sayde: the Lorde geue the seed of thys woman, for that he hath lente the Lorde. And they went vnto their owne home. And y Lord visited Hannah, so that she conceived, and bare thre sonnes, and two daughters. But y boye Samuel grewd wellynge styll with the Lorde.

Eli was verye olde and hearde all y hys sonnes dyd vnto al Israel, & howe they slept with the women that waynted in the doze of the tabernacle of witness, & sayde vnto them: why do ye such thynges? for I heare your wicked deades of all these people. Oh, naye my sonnes: for it is no good reporte y I heare howe that ye make the Lordes people to trepasse. If one man synne agaynst another, *dayemen maye make hys peace: but yf a man synne agaynst y Lord* who can be hys dayleman? Not wythstandynge they hekened not vnto the voyce of their father, because the Lorde woulde slaye them. The childe Samuel profited & grewe, and was in fauoure bothe wyth the Lord, and also with men.

And there came a mā of God vnto Eli, and sayd vnto him: thus sayth the Lord. I appeared vnto the house of thy father, when they were in Egypte, in Pharaos house. And I chose thy father oute of all y trybes of Israel to be my priest, for to offer vpon myne altare, & to burne incense, & to *were an Ephod before me. And I gaue vnto y house of thy father al the offeringes of the children of Israel. Wherefore kyche ye agaynst my sacrifice and agaynst myne offeringe whiche I comaunde in the tabernacle, and honourest thy children aboue me, and make youre selues fatte of the fyrste frutes of all the offeringes of Israel my people. Wherefore the Lorde God of Israel sayth: I sayd that thyne house, and the house of thy father shoulde haue walked before me for euer. But nowe the Lorde saythe: y be fatte fro me: for the that worshyp me, I wyl worshyp, & they that despise me, shall be despised. Beholde, y dayes wyl come that I wyl cut of thyne arme, and the arme of thy fathers house, that there shall not be an elder in thyne house. And thou shalt se thyne enemye in the tabernacle, in al that shall please Israel, and there shall not be an elder in thyne house whyle the worlde standeth. Neuerthelesse, I wyl not destroy al thy males that come of the from my altare, to dase thy syght with al, and to make thyne hert melt. And al y multitude of thyne house* shall dye youge.

And this shall be a sygne vnto the, that shall come vnto thy. ii. sones, *Hophni & Phinehes: euen in one daye they shall dye bothe of the. And I wyl styre me vp a saythful* priest, y shall do as it is in myne hearte & in my mynde. And I wyl bylde hym a sure house. And he shall walke before myne anoynted, for euer. And they that are left in thyne house, shall come & crouche to hym for a lytell pece of spluer, & a cake of breade, & shall saye: put me I praye the in one office or other amōge the priestes, y I maye eate a morsel of breade.

in Siloh for a longe season: he yet calleth Samuel thre tymes, & sheweth hym what should befall on Eli.

And y<sup>e</sup> chyld Samuel ministred vnto y<sup>e</sup> Lord before Eli: & the woorde of the Lord was precious in those dayes, for there was none open vision. And it chaunced at y<sup>e</sup> tyme, y<sup>e</sup> Eli lay in hys place, & his eyes begā to waxe dyme, y<sup>e</sup> he could not se. And yet y<sup>e</sup> lāpe of God went out, Samuel layde him doune to slepe, in y<sup>e</sup> temple of y<sup>e</sup> Lord, where the arcke of God was. And y<sup>e</sup> Lord called Samuel: & he sayde: here am I, and he ran vnto Eli, and sayde: here am I, for thou calledest me. And he sayde: I called the not: goe agayne, & slepe. And he went & layde him doune to slepe. And y<sup>e</sup> Lord called once agayne: Samuel, & Samuel arose & went to Eli, & sayd: I am here thou dyddest call me. And he answered: I called the not my sonne. Goe agayne & take thy rest: but it was y<sup>e</sup> Samuel knewe the Lord, & y<sup>e</sup> y<sup>e</sup> woorde of the Lord was opened vnto him. And y<sup>e</sup> Lord wēt to & called Samuel the thirde tyme. And he arose, and wēt to Eli, & sayd: I am here, for y<sup>e</sup> hast called me. Thē Eli perceaued that the Lord had called the lad. And sayd vnto him, goe and lye doune: & yf he call the agayne, then say: speake on Lord, for thy seruante heareth. And Samuel wēt, & layd him down in his place. And the Lord came, & stode & called as before, Samuel Samuel. And Samuel said: speake on, for thy seruānt heareth the. And y<sup>e</sup> Lord sayd to Samuel: behold, I wyl do a thinge in Israel, that the eares of as many as heareth it, shall tingle. In that daye I wil performe to Eli, al y<sup>e</sup> I haue spoken concerning his house: I wyl begynne it, & ende it. For I haue tolde him y<sup>e</sup> I wyl iudge hys house for euer, for the wickednes whiche he knoweth, howe hys sonnes are vnglacious, & he was not wroth therewith. And therfore I haue sworne vnto the house of Eli, y<sup>e</sup> the wyckednes of Elies house shall not be purged with sacrifice nor offeringe, while y<sup>e</sup> worlde standeth. And Samuel lay til the mornyng, and then opened the doores of the house of the Lord.

But Samuel feared, to shewe Eli the vision. Then Eli called Samuel, & sayde: Samuel my sonne. And he answered: here I am. And he said: what is y<sup>e</sup> Lord hath sayd vnto the: se y<sup>e</sup> hide it not frō me. * The Lord do so, & so to the, yf thou hide any thing frō me, of al that he sayde vnto thee. And Samuel tolde him euerye whit, & hide it not frō him. And he answered: it is y<sup>e</sup> Lord, let him do what semeth hym best.

And Samuel grewe, and the Lord was with him, & lefte none of his woordes vnpurformed. And all Israel from Dan to Bersabe wylte that Samuel was truly made y<sup>e</sup> Lordes prophete. And the Lord appeared agayne in Siloh: for y<sup>e</sup> Lord opened him selfe to Samuel i Siloh, thowow y<sup>e</sup> word of y<sup>e</sup> Lord.

And the Philistines foughte, and Israell was put to the worlde and fledde, euery man into his tente. And ther was a mighty greate slaughter, so y<sup>e</sup> ther were ouer: thynowen of Israell. xxx. thousande fote men. And the arcke of God was taken, and the two sönes of Eli, Hophni, and a Phinehes were dead. And there ran a man of Benjamin out of the aray, & came to Siloh the same daye, with his clothes rente, and erth vpon his heed. And whē the mā came in, Eli sate vpo a stole by the way side lokynge: for his heart feared for the arcke of God. And the man came in and tolde it in the citie. And all the citie cryed.

When Eli hearde the noyse of the cryinge, he asked what y<sup>e</sup> noyse of y<sup>e</sup> tumult. And the man halted, & came & tolde Eli. Eli was foure score & eigh tene yere olde, & his sight fayled him, that he could not se. Dagon the god of the Philistines is caste flat before the arcke. The Philistines are plagued in the secret places. The inhabitants of Akaron refuse to rescue the arcke.

And the Philistines toke the arcke of God & caried it from the helpe stone, vnto Aldod, & brought it in to y<sup>e</sup> house of Dagon, & set it by Dagon. And whē they of Aldod were vp i y<sup>e</sup> morninge: beholde, Dagon a lay grouelinge vpon the earth before the arcke of the Lord. And they toke Dagon & set hym in his place againe. And they answered: fīue golden arlles with Emerodes, & fyue golden myce, accordyng to the nōbre of the Lordes of the Philistines. For it was one maner of plague y was on you all, & on youre Lordes to. Wherfore ye shal make images lyke to your arlles w Emerodes, and images like to your mice y destroyed youre land, & shal geue glōrye vnto the God of Israell: that he maye take his hande frome of you, and from youre Goddes, and from of your land. Wherfore shuld you harden your heartes as the Egyptians & Pharaō hardened their heartes: whiche for all that (when he had playde hys pageauntes with them) were sayne to let the people goe and departe.

Nowe therfore make a newe cart, & take two mealche kyne, on whose necke neuer came yocke. And tye the kyne in the carte, and bynge the calues home from thē. Then take y arck of the Lord & put it in the carte, & put the Tuelles of golde (whiche ye rewarde hym with for a trespass offeringe) in a forcer by the syde therof, & sende it awaye & let it go. And marke yf he go vp by the waye y leadeth vnto hys own coste, to Bethsames, thē it is he y dyd vs this great euell. But and yf he doe not, then it is not his hande y smote vs, but it was a chaunce y happened vs. And the men dyd euen so: they toke two kyne y gaue milcke, & tyed them in the carte, & kept the calues at home, & they layde the arcke of the Lorde vpon the carte, & the forcer w the mice of golde, & the images of the arlles with Emerodes. And the kyne toke the straight way to Bethsames, both one waye, & as they went, lowed, turning nether to the right hād ner to the lefte. And the Lordes of the Philistines wēt after them, vntyl they came to the borders of Bethsames.

And they of Bethsames were reping their wheate harvest in y valeye. And they lift vp their eyes, & spied the arck. And reioysed when they saw it. And the carte came into y groue of one Jehosua a Bethsamite, and stode stil there. Ther was there also a greate stone. And they claue the wodde of the carte and offered the kyne a burnt offeringe vnto the Lorde. And the Leuites toke downe the arcke of the Lord & the forcer y was thereby, wherin the Tuelles of golde were: & put them on the greab stone. And the mē of Bethsames sacrificed burnt sacrifice, & offered offering y same day vnto y Lord. And whē y. v. Lordes of the Philistines had sene it, they returned to Akaron the same day.

These are the goldē arlles with Emerodes which the Philistines gaue to as mendes for a trespass offeringe, to the Lorde: for Adod one: for Gaza one: for Iskalon one: for Geth one: & for Akarō one. And the goldē mice were accordig to the nōbre of al the cities of the Philistines, thowowe the fyue lordshippes: both of walled townes & of townes vnwalled: euen vnto the greate stone of lamētaciō, wherō they set doune y arck of the Lorde: whiche stone remaineth vnto unto this daye in the felde of Jehosua the Bethsamite. And he plagued the me of Bethsames, because they had sene y<sup>e</sup> arcke of y<sup>e</sup> Lord. And he slue of the people fiftie thousande & thre score & x. persons. And the people lamented, bycause the Lord had slayne so great a slaughter of the. And the men of Bethsames sayde: who is able to stande before the Lord so holy a God: & to whom shal he goe frome vs? And they sente messengers to the inhabitants of Cariath Jazrim, sayinge: The Philistines haue brought home agayne the arcke of the Lord: come downe & set it vp to you.

The. vii. Chapter.

The arcke is brought to Cariathiarim. The people wepe, for whiche Samuel maketh intercession to the Lord. The Philistines are smitten.

AND the men of Cariathiarim came, & set vp the arcke of y<sup>e</sup> Lord, & brought it into y<sup>e</sup> house of Aminadab in Gibeon & sanctified Eleazar his sonne, to waite vpon the arcke of the Lord. And while the arcke abode in Cariathiarim, the dayes multiplied y<sup>e</sup> it was. xx. yeres, & al Israel lamented after y<sup>e</sup> Lord.

Whē y<sup>e</sup> Philistines heard, y<sup>e</sup> the childre of Israel were gathered together to Mазphah, y<sup>e</sup> lordes of the Philistines went by agaynst Israel. And when the children of Israel heard y<sup>e</sup>, they were afrayde of y<sup>e</sup> Philistines, & sayde to Samuel: cease not to crie vnto y<sup>e</sup> Lord out together for a burnt offeringe, vnto y<sup>e</sup> Lord, & cryed vnto y<sup>e</sup> Lord for Israel: & y<sup>e</sup> Lord heard him. And as Samuel offered the burnt offeringe, y<sup>e</sup> Philistines came to fyght agaynst Israel. But the Lord thundred a great thunder that same day vpon the Philistines, & turnioyled them, that they were beaten before Israel. And the me of Israel issued oute of Mазphah, & pursued y<sup>e</sup> Philistines, & slue them, vntyl they came vnder Bathear. And the Samuel toke a stone & pitched it betwene Mазphah & Sen, & called the name thereof the stone of helpe, sayinge: thus farre hath the Lord holpe vs. And so y<sup>e</sup> Philistines were broughte vnder, y<sup>e</sup> they came no more into the costes of Israel: for y<sup>e</sup> hande of y<sup>e</sup> Lord was vpon the Philistines all y<sup>e</sup> dayes of Samuel. Therto the cities whiche y<sup>e</sup> Philistines had taken fro Israel, came agayne to Israel, euen from Ekaron to Geth, w<sup>al</sup> the costes of the same, whiche Israel plucked out of the handes of the Philistines. For ther was peace betwene Israel & y<sup>e</sup> Amorites. And Samuel iudged Israel al the dayes of hys lyfe, and went about yere by yere, to Bethel, Gylgal, and Mазphah, & iudged Israel in al those places, & came agayne to Ramath: for there was his house, & there he iudged Israel, & ther he bilt an altare vnto y<sup>e</sup> Lord.

¶ The. ix. Chapter.

¶ Saul the sonne of Cis leaeth his fatheres asses and is chosen kynge.

1. Reg. 14. 5
1. Par. 8. 10
 Now there was a mā of Beniamin named, * Cis the sōne of Abiel, the sonne of zeroz, the sonne of Bechorath, the sonne of Aphsah, the sonne of a mā that was a Jeminite, a mā of myght: þ same had a sonne called Saul, a goodly youg mā, so that amōg the childre of Israel, ther was none goodlyer then he, & was therto frō the shoulders vpwarde hyer then al the other people. And it chaūced that þ Altes of this Cis Sauls father, were lost: Then saide Cis to Saul his sonne: take one of the laddes with the & vp and go seke the Altes. And they wēt thorow mount Ephraim, & thorow the land of Salisa: & founde the not. Then they went thorow the lāde of Salim, & there they wete not. Then they wēt also thorow the land of Jemini, & they found the not. Then when they were come to the lād of zuph, Saul sayde to the youg mā that was with him: come let vs retorne, lest my father leue caring for the Altes, & take thought for vs. And he answered him: behold, ther is in this citie a worshipfull man of God, & all that he sayth, cometh to passe. Now then let vs go thither: peraduenture he shal shew vs what waye we may go. Then saide Saul to his lad: yf we go, what shal we bring the mā? for oure bread is al spēt out of oure hampers, and there is no nother present to bying the mā of god: what haue we? And the young man answered Saul againe, and sayde: I haue found about me the fourth part of a Siccle, that wyll we geue the man of God to tell vs oure waye.

Before tyme in Israel when a man went to seke an answer of God, thus wyse he spake: come, & let vs go to the * Seat. For he that is now called a prophet, was in þ olde tyme called a Seat. Then sayde Saul to his young man: well sayd of the: come, let vs go. And so they went vnto the citie where the man of God was. And as they were goig vp into the citie, they met with damoselles þ came out to draw water, & sayd vnto them: is there here a seat. And the maydes answered the: yea, behold, he goeth there before you. Make hast now, for he came this day to the citie, for þ people must offer this day in þ hill. Whē þe be come into the citie, so shall you finde hi, yet he go bp to the <sup>b</sup> hill to eate: for the people will not eate vntill he come, because he must blesse the offeringe. And thē eate they that be biddē to the feast.

Now therfore get you bp, for euē now shall ye fynde him. And they wēt bp to the citie. And whē they were come to the middes of <sup>p</sup> citie: behold, Samuel cam out against thē, for to go bp to the hill.

C <sup>Reg. 15. a</sup> * But the lord had tolde Samuel (i his eates a daye before Saul cam) saying: to morow this tyme I will sende the a mā out of the lāde of Bēiamin, hi shalt thou anoynte to be captaine ouer my people Israel, <sup>p</sup> he maye saue my people out of the hande of the Philistines: for I haue looked vpon my people, and their crye is come vnto me. When Samuel saw Saul, the lord answered hi: se, this is the mā whō I spake to <sup>p</sup> of.
This same shall raigne ouer my people.

Then went Saul to Samuel in the middle of the gate, and sayde: tell me I praye the, where about the sears house is, & Samuel answered Saul, & sayd: I am <sup>p</sup> sear, go bp before me vnto the hill, for ye shall eate with me to daye.
And to morow I will let the go erlye, & wyl tell the al that is in thine hert, and as for thine asses <sup>p</sup> were lost this daye thre dayes, care not for thē, for they are found. And mozeouer whose shall the bewtifull thinges of Israel be: belong they not to the, and vnto all thy fathers house? But Saul answered and sayde: am not I the sonne of a Ieminite, * of the smallest trybe of Israell, & my kynred the least of all the kynredes of the trybe of Benjamin, wherfore then spea-kest thou so to me?

And Samuel toke Saul & his lad, & brought them into the parler, & made thē syt in the chieftest place amonge thē that were biddē: which were bpō a thirtye persones. Thē sayde Samuel vnto the cooke: bryng forth the porciō which I gaue the, & of which I sayde kepe it with the. And <sup>p</sup> cooke toke bp <sup>p</sup> shoulder & brought it, & set it before Saul.
And Samuel saide: behold, that which is left: put it before the and eate, for I kept it for the of purpose, whē I called the people. And so Saul dyd eate with Samuel that daye. And whē they were come downe from the hill into the citie, Samuel comuned with Saul bpō the toppe* of the house: & they arose erlye.

And about the spryng of the daye Samuel called Saul vpon the toppe of the house, saying: bp, that I maye send the awaye. And Saul arose. And they wēt out at the dozes both of them, both he and Samuel. And when they were come almost out of the towne, Samuel sayde to Saul: byd the lad go before vs, and he went, but stande thou styll a whyle euē now, that I maye shewe the what God sayeth.

The. xiii. Chapter.

The Philistines are smytē of Saul and Ionathas. Saul beynā disobeyent to Goddes commaundemēt is chewed of Samuel that he shall not raygne.

Saul was as a childe of a yere olde, when he began to raygne. And when he had raygned two yeres ouer Israel, he chose hym thre thousand men out of Israel. Two thousand were with Saul in Machmas, and mount Bethel, and a thousande with Ionathas in Gibeah Benjamin. And the rest of the people he sent, euery man to his owne house. And Ionathas sue the Philistines in an holde they had in Gibeah, and it came to the Philistines eares. And Saul caused the trompet to be blowen thow out all the lande, sayinge: let the Cozues heare. And all Israel hearde saye, how that Saul had destroyed an holde of the Philistines, and how that Israel stanche vnto the Philistines. And all the people cryed after Saul to Gilgal.

Then the Philistines gathered the selues together to sygh: with Israel, thirtie thousande charetes, and sixe thousande horse men, with other people lyke the * sand by the seas side in multitude and came by, & pitched in Machmas eastwarde from Bethauen. And when the men of Israel saw the selues in a strayte, & that the people were ac-combzed, they hpd the selues in caues, in preuy holes, in rocks, denes & pites. And the Cozues went ouer Jordan vnto the land of Gad and Gilead. But Saul was yet in Gilgal, & all the people that folowed him were astounded. And he taryed seue dayes, as Samuel had appoynted. But Samuel came not to Gilgal, & the people skattered fro him. wherfore Saul sayde: bring burnt sacrifice to me and peace offering. And he offered burnt sacrifice. And as soone as he had made an ende of offerig burnt offerings: behold, Samuel came. And Saul wēt agaynst him, to salue him. The saide Samuel to Saul: what hast thou done? And Saul sayd, because I saw y the people skattered fro me, & that thou camest not * w in y dayes appoynted, & that the philistines gathered the selues together to Machmas: the saide I, the Philistines shall come doune vpo me to Gilgal, yet I haue made suppli-catio vnto y Lord. And therfore I toke a courage with me & offered burnt offerings. The sayde Samuel to Saul: * thou hast done follyhye and hast not kept the commaundemēt of the Lord thy God which he comaunded y. for at this tyme wold y Lord haue stablished thy kyngdome vpon Israel for euer. But now, thy kyngdome shall not cōtinue. * The Lord hath sought him a mā after his own hart, & hath comaunded him to be a captaine ouer his people: because thou hast not kept y which y lord comaunded y. fro Gilgal to Gibeah Benjamin. And Saul nombred the people þ were found with him, about a sixe hūdzred mē. And Saul & Jonathas his sonne, & the people that were found with the, had their abydyng in Gibeah Benjamin. But þ Philistines had pitched in Machmas. And there came out of the host of the Philistines thre cōpanies, to destroye: one cōpanye turned vnto the waye that leadeth to Ephrah, vnto þ lād of Saul. And another cōpanye turned the waye to Bethoron. And the thyrde cōpany turned to the waye of the cost that turned to the valey of zeboim towarde the wildernesse. But there was no smith thow out all the lande of Israel. For the Philistines thought, þ then the Chyres might make the swerdes oz speres. And therfore must all Israel go downe to þ Philistines, to mende euerye man his Chare, his mattock, his axe, oz his cycle: as ofte as the edges of þ cycles matrockes, doung forckes, and axes were blint, and also to mende their goades. And so in tyme of battell there was neither swerde nor spere founde in the hādes of any of the people that were with Saul & Jonathas: saue for Saul & Jonathas his sonne was there somewhat founde. And the Garison of the Philistines came out, and stode on the other syde before Machmas.

The. xliii. Chapter.

Jonathas cōpanied with his harnessebearer putteth the Philistines to flight. He tasteth the honeye whiche his father, vnkowynge to him, had forbidden the whole host. He shulde therfore haue bene slayne but the people deliuer hym.

And it fell on a daye, that Jonathas þ sonne of Saul sayd vnto his young man þ bare his harnes: come, & let vs go ouer to the watche men of the Philistines that are pounder on the other syde, and tolde not his father. But Saul taryed in þ vtmost parte of Gibeah vnder a pomegranet tree, that was i Machmas, and the people that were with him were vpo a sixe hundzed mē. And Ahiah the sōne of Abitob Iehabodes brother, the sonne of Phinehes, the sonne of Eli, was the Lordes preste in Siloh & bare an Ephod. But the people wist not that Jonathas was gone.

And in the waye ouer by whiche Jonathas sought to go ouer vnto the garison of the Philistines, were there two sharpe rockes, euē one on the one side, & the other on þ other side: the one called Bozez, & the other Seneh. And the one leaneth northward toward Machmas, and the other southwarde toward Gibeah. The said Jonathas to the young mā that bare his harnesse: come & let vs go ouer vnto the stāding of these vncircūcised, paraduēture þ Lord wil worke with vs: for the Lord is free to saue many oz with fewe. And his harnessebearer sayd vnto him: do all that is i thine hert: set þ forwarde: & se I am with the, as thine hert lusteth. ## The .xv. Chapter.

Saul is commaunded to slie Amaleck. He is disobedient to the voyce of God, and saurth the spoyle to offer it vnto the Lord: for whiche the Lorde reiecteth and casteth him awaye. Samuel moueneth for Saul.

Then sayde Samuel vnto Saul: * the Lord sent me to anoynt the kyng over his people Israell. Now therfore obeye thou the voyce of the wordes of the Lorde. Thus sayth the Lorde of hostes: I haue called to remēbraunce that whiche Amalech did to Israell, * howe they lape in wayte for thē in the waye, as they came out of Egypt. Now therfore go, and smyte p Amaleckites, and only destroye ye all that pertaineth vnto thē, and se thou haue no cōpassion on thē. * But slay bothe mā & womā, infāt & sucklyng, & oxe, shepe, camell & Asse.

And Saul tolde it p people, & nōbzed thē in * Telaim two hundred thousand foote men, & ten thousand mē of Iuda. And Saul came vnto a citie of p Amaleckites, & fought i a vale. But Saul sayd vnto the Kenites: go, & departe, & get ye doune fro among the Amaleckites, lest I destroye you with thē: for ye shewed mercy with Israell when they came out of Egypte. And p Kenites departed fro among the Amaleckites.

And Saul slue the Amaleckites fro Beila to Sur p lyeth before Egypt, & toke Agag p king of the Amaleckites alpye, & vtterlye destroyed all p people w the edge of the swerde. * But Saul & the people spared Agag, & they left of p shepe & of the oxē and * fat thinges, & the lābes & all that was good, & wolde not destroye thē. But all p was nought worth and flaggie, p they destroyed vtterlye. Thē came the worde of the Lorde vnto Samuel, saying: it * repēteth * me that I haue made Saul kyng. For he is turned fro me, & hath not perfozmed my cōmaūdemētes, wherfore Samuel was euell apaide, and cryed vnto the Lorde all nyght. And Samuel rose earlye, to mete Saul in the moynyng. And it was tolde Samuel that Saul was come to Carmel: and had set him bp a piller of triūphe. And was turned and departed and gone to Gilgall.

And whē Samuel was com to Saul, Saul sayde vnto him: Blessed be p in p Lord. I haue done the cōmaūdemēt of the lord. And Samuel answered: what meaneth thē the bleatinge of the shepe i myne eares, & the noyse of p oxē whiche I heare? And Saul sayde: they haue brought thē from the Amaleckites. For the people spared the best of p shepe & of the oxē, to sacrifice thē vnto p Lord thy god. And the rēnaūt we haue destroyed.

syghte, wast thou not made the head of the trybes of Israell? And the Lorde anoynted the kynge ouer Israell. And then the Lorde sent the on a iourneye, and sayde vnto the: se that thou vtterly destroye those synners, the Amaleckites and syghte agaynst them, vntyll ye haue vtterly destroyed the. And wherfore hast thou now not obeyed the voice of the Lorde: But dyddest turne to the praye and hast wrought wickednesse in the syght of the Lorde.

And Saul sayd vnto Samuel: yea, I haue obeyed the voyce of the Lorde, and went the way which the Lorde sente me, and haue broughte Agag the kinge of the Amaleckites. And haue vtterly destroyed the Amaleckites. And the people toke of the spoyle, shepe, oxen, and the chiefest of the thynges whiche shoulde haue bene destroyed, to offer vnto the Lorde thy God in Gilgall. Then sayde Samuel: hath the Lord as great pleasure in burnt sacrifices and offeringes as he hath that thou shouldest obeye his voyce? Beholde, to obeye is better then offeringe, and to geue hede is better then the fat of rammes. For rebelliousnesse is as the sinne of witchcraft, and stubbornesse is wickednesse and Idolatrye. Because therefore thou hast cast awaye the worde of the Lorde, therefore hath the Lord cast awaye the also, from beinge kinge.

Then sayde Saul to Samuel: I haue sinned, for I haue trespassed the mouth of the Lord, and thy wordes, because I feared the people, and obeyed theyr voyce. But nowe take awaye my synne, and turne agayne with me, that I maye worshippe the Lord. Then said Samuel vnto Saul: I wil not returne with the: for thou hast cast awaye the hydding of God & therefore the Lorde hath cast awaye the also, that thou shalt not be kynge ouer Israell. And as Samuel turned to go away, he caught the lappe of his coote, and it rente. Then Samuel sayde: the Lorde hath rent the kingdome of Israell from the this daye, and hath geuen it to a neighbour of thyne, that is better then thou. And therto he that geueth victoie to Israell, will not begyle nor repent: for he is not a man, that can repent.

Then he sayde: I haue sinned. But yet honoure me before the elders of my people, and before Israell, and turne agayne with me, that I maye praye vnto the Lorde thy God. And Samuel turned agayne and folowed Saul. And Saul prayed vnto the Lorde. Then sayd Samuel: Brynge ye hither to me Agag the king of the Amaleckites. And Agag came vnto him delicatlye. And Agag sayde: trulpe the bitternesse of death cometh on. And Samuel sayde: As thy sword hath made women childlesse, so shall thy mother be chyllesse amonge other women. And so Samuel hewed Agag in peces before the Lorde in Gilgall. And then Samuel departed to Ramath. And Saul went home to hys house to Gibeah Saul. But Samuel came no more to se Saul vntyll the daye of hys death. Neuertheless Samuel mourned for Saul, because the Lorde repented that he had made him kinge ouer Israell.

C The battell of the Philistines agaynſt Iſrael. Ayeſ tell David ouercometh great Goliath.

The Philistines gathered theyr hoſte to battell, and came together to Socoh in Iuda, and pytched betwene Socoh and Azekah, in the ende of Damin. And Saul and the menne of Iſrael came and pytched in Ockedale, and put them ſelues in aray, to fyght againſt the Philistines. And the Philistines ſtoode on an hyll on the one ſyde, and Iſrael ſtoode on an hill on the other ſyde, and a valeye betwene them.

them. And then came a man and stode in the myddes, oute of the tentes of the Philistines named Goliath, of Geth syxe cubites and an handbredeth long, and had an helmet of brasle vpon hys heade, and a coote of mayle about him. And the weyghte of his coote of mayle was syue thousande Cykles of brasle. And he had bootes of brasle vpon his legges, and a shilde of brasle vpon hys shoulders. And the shafte of his speare was lyke a weeners beame. And hys speare heade weyed. vi. hundred cykles of yron. And one bearing a shylde went befoze him.

And he stode & called vnto the hoste of Israell, and sayde vnto them: what nedeth that ye shoulde come out in aray to battell: am not I a Philistine, and you seruauntes to Saull: chose you a man, and let him come downe to me, yf he be able to fyght with me and to beate me then we wyll be youre seruauntes. But yf I can ouercome hym and beate him: then ye shalbe our seruauntes and serue vs. And the Philistine sayde: I haue defyed the hoooste of Israell this daye, geue me a man and let vs fighte together. When Saule and al Israell hearde those wordes of the Philistine, they were discouraged and greatlye afrayed. * And this David was the son of an Ephrathite of Bethlehem Iuda, named Isai, whiche Isai had eighte sonnes. And was an olde manne in the dayes of Saull among the people. And the thre eldest sonnes of Isai, went and folowed Saull to battell. And the names of his thre sonnes that went to battell, were: Eliab the eldest, and the nexte to him Abinadab, and the thyrde Samah, and David was y youngest. And when the thre eldest were gone after Saull, David wente & departed from Saull, to fede his fathers shepe at Bethlehem. And the Philistine came forth the euerye moornyng, and eueryng, and contynued fortye dayes.

I. Re. xvi. c.

And Isai sayde vnto David hys sonne: take for thy brethren this Ephra of parched cozne, and these ten loues, and runne to the hoste, to thy brethren. And carpe these ten freshe cheles vnto the captaine, and loke howe thy brethren fare, and fet out theyr pledges. And Saul and they and al the men of Israell were in Ocke valey fyghtynge with the Philistines. And David rose vp earlye in the moornyng, and lefte the shepe with a keeper, and toke & wente, as Isai had commaunded him, and came where the host laye. And the host was goinge out in aray, and shownted in the battell: for Israell and the Philistines had put them selues in araye, the one agaynste the other. Then David put the panyer from him, vnto the handes of the keeper of the vessels, and ranne into the hoste, and came & saluted hys brethren. And as he talked with them: Beholde, there stode a man in the myddes, Goliath the Philistine by name, of Geth, whiche came out of the aray of the Philistines, & spake after y maner aboue rehersted, that David hearde it. And all the men of Israell, when they sawe the manne, ranne awaye from him, and were sore afrayed. And euery man of Israell sayde: Se ye thys man that is come forth: euen to reuyle Israell is he come. * And to him that beateh hym wyl the kynge geue great ryches, and wyl geue hym hys doughter therto: yea, and make his fathers house fre in Israell.

Iosua. xv.

Then spake David to the men that stode by, and sayde: What shalbe done to the mā that beateh this Philistine, and taketh awaye the shame from Israell: for what is this vncircumcyled Philistine, that he shoulde reuyle y hoste of y liuing God: And the people answered as it is rehersted, sayinge: so shall it be done to the man that beateh hym. And Eliab, his eldest brother hearde when he spake vnto the men, and was angrye with David, and sayde: Why camest thou awaye, and with whō hast thou lefte those few shepe in the wilderness: I know thy pryde and the malyce of thyne herte, that thou arte come to se the battell. And David answered, what haue I nowe done: is there anye more saue a worde: And departed from by him into another fronte, and spake of the same maner, and the people answered him agayne, as before.

And they y hearde the wordes which David spake, rehersted them before Saull, which caused him to be fet. And David sayde to Saull: Let no mannes heart heart sayle him because of hi. Thy seruuaunt wyl go, and fyght w this Philis-tine. And Saul said to David againe, thou arte not able to go vnto this Philistine, to fyght with him. for thou arte but a lad, & he hath bene a man of warre euen from his youth. Then sayde Da-uid vnto Saul, as thy seruauant kepte his fathers shepe, there came a * Lyon, and lyke wyse a Beare, and toke a shepe out of the flocke. And I wente oute after hym a smot him, & toke it out of his mouthe. And when he arose agaynst me, I caughte him by the bearde, and smot him, and slue hym. For bothe a Lyon & also a Beare hath thy seruauante slaine.

And thys vncircumcised Philistine shalbe as one of them, for hys raylynge on the hoste of the luyng God. And David spake mozeouer, the Lorde that delpuered me oute of the handes of the Lion, & out of p handes of p Beare, he shal delpuer me also out of the handes of the Philistine.

Then sayd Saule to David go, and the Lorde be with the. And Saul put his rayment vpon David, and put an helmet of brasse vpon hys heade, and put a cote of maple vpon him, and girde David with his owne swerde vpon his rayment. And he assayed to go, for he neuer proued it. Then sayde David vnto Saul: I cannot go in these, for I haue not bene bled thereto, and put them of him, and toke hys staffe in his hande, & chose him fyue smothe stones oute of a broke, and put them in a shepardes bagge whiche he had, & in a poke, & his sling in hys had, & went to p Philistine.

And the Philistine came and drue nere to David, with the man that bare a shylde before him. And when the Philistine looked about and sawe David: he disdayned him, for he was but a ladde, roundye and goodlye to loke vpon. And the Philistine sayde vnto David: am I a dogge, that thou comest to me with a staffe: and he cursed David in the name of his Goddes. And he saide to David: come to me and I wyl gyue thy fleshe vnto the fowles of the ayre, and to the beastes of the felde. Then sayd David to the Philistine: thou comest to me w a swerde, a speare and a shylde: But I come to the in the name of the Lorde of hostes, the God of the hoste of Israell whome thou haste rayled vpon. This daye shall the Lorde delpuer the into my hande, and I shal smite the and take thyne heade from the, and I wyl geue the karcales of the host of p Philistines this daye vnto the fowles of the ayre, & to the beastes of the earth, & al p worlde shal know p ther is a god in Israel. And al this congregacion shall know: that p Lorde saueyth not with the swerde and speare. for the battell is the Lordes, and he shall geue you into our handes.

And when the Philistine arose and came and drue nie vnto David. David halted and ranne in aray euen agaynst the Philistine. And David put his had in his poke, and toke oute a stone and slange it, and smote the Philistine in hys forheade that the stone soncke into hys forheade, * and he felle grouelyng to the erthe. And so David ouercame p Philistine w a sling & a stone, & smot p Philistine & slue him. And because Da-uid had no swerd in his hande, he ran & stode vpon the Philistine, and toke hys swerde and drue it out of his sheath, and slue him, and cutte of his head therewith And whē the Philistines saw that thei champion was deade, * they fled. And the men of Israell and of Iuda arose, and howled, & folowed after the Philistines vntyll they came to the valeye and vnto the gates of Akaron. And the Philistines fel downe dead by the way, euen vnto Geth and Akaron. And then the chyldren of Israell returned frome chaunge after the Philistines, and robbed thei tentes. And David toke the heade of the Philistine, and brought it to Ierusalem: But he put his armour in his tente.

When Saul saw David go forth a-gaynst the Philistine, he sayde vnto * Abner the captaine of his host: Abner, whose sonne is this lad: And Abner answered, as trulye as thy soule liueth, I kynge, I cannot tel. Then sayd p kynge: Enquyre thou, whose sonne the younglynge is. And so when David was returned fro p slaughtre of p Philistine.
Abner toke him, & brought him before Saul, w the head of p Philistine in hys hande. And Saul sayed to hym: whose

The. xliij. Chapter.

The bonde betwene Dauid and Jonathas. Dauid goeth aboute to see Dauid. Dauid marreth Michol doughter of Saul.

And whē he had made an ende of speakynge vnto Saul, & soule of Jona-thas was knyt with the soule of Dauid. In so much that he loued him as hys owne soule. And Saul toke him that daye, and wolde let him go no more home to his fathers house. And Jonathas and Dauid bound them sel-ues the one to the other, for Jonathas loued him as hys owne soule. And Jonathas put of his owne coote that was vpon him, and gaue it Dauid, and ther-to hys mantel, his swerde, his boowe & his gyrdle. And Dauid wente oute to all that Saul sente him, and behaued hym selfe wysely. And when Saul had set him ouer his meyne of warre, he pleased all the people, and Sauls seruauntes therto.

And it happened as they went, when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Philistines, that women cam out of al cyties of Israel, syngyng and daunsyng, agaynste Saul, with tym-brelles, with ioye, and with fyddels. And the women that sange therto, and sayd: *Saul hath slayne his thousande, and Dauid his ten thousande. Then was Saul excedyng wroth, and the sayng displeased him, and he sayde: they haue ascribed vnto Dauid ten thousande, & to me but a thousande, and what can he more haue saue, the kingdome? wherefore Saul looked on yde of Dauid fro that daye forwarde. And it happened on the morowe that the euell spirite sent of God came vpon Saul, so that he prophesied in the myddes of the house. And Dauid played on the instrumente with his hande as he was daylye wont. And Saul had a speare in his hand, & houn-ted it entendyng to haue nayled Da-uid to the walle. But Dauid auoyded out of hys presence two tymes. For Saul was afearde of Dauid, because the Lorde was with hym, and was departed from Saul. And then Saul put Dauid from him, and made him a captayne ouer a thousande, and he wente oute and in before the people. And Da-uid was wysely in al þ he toke in hande, and the Lorde was with hym. Wherefore when Saul sawe that he was so excedyng wysely, he was afraide of hym. But all Israel and Juda loued Dauid, because he went out and in before them.

Then sayde Saul to Dauid. Beholde, my eldest doughter Merob, her I wyll geue the to wyfe: Only play the manne and fyghte the Lordes battelles. For Saul thought myne hand shall not be vpon hym, but the hande of the Philistines. And Dauid answered Saul: what* what am I, and what is my life, or the kynred of my father in Israel, & I shoulde be sonne in lawe to the kinge?
Howe bee it when the tyme was come that Merob Sauls doughter shoulde haue bene geuen to Dauid, he was geuen vnto Achish a Gheolothit, to wife, Howe bee it, Michol Sauls doughter loued Dauid. And when it was shewed Saul: the thyng pleased him wel. And he sayde: I wyll geue hym her that she may be a snare to him, to bring the had of the Philistines vpon him. And Saul sayde to Dauid: thou shalt thys day be my sonne in lawe agayne. And Saul commaunded his seruauntes, to come with Dauid secretlye, and saye: Behold the kynge hath a fauour to the, and al hys seruauntes loue the, be therfore the kinges sonne in lawe.

And Sauls seruauntes spake those wordes i the eares of Dauid. But Da-uid answered: semeth it to you a lyghte thyng to be the kynges sonne in lawe, when I am a poore man and of smalle reputacion? And Sauls seruauntes tolde him agayne, sayinge: of thys maner answered Dauid. The sayd Saul: this wise saye to Dauid: the kynge ca-reth for no nother dowry, but for an hūdred foreskynnes of the Philistines, to be aduenged of the kynges enemyes.
For Saul thought to make Dauid fall into the handes of the Philistines. The his seruauntes tolde Dauid these wor-des, and it pleased Dauid wel to be the kinges sonne in lawe. And shortly after Dauid arose with his mē and went, & a hū of the Philistines, two hundred men, and broughte theyr foreskynnes, and satisfiſſed the King therof to be his ſonne in lawe.* And ſo Saul gaue him Michol his doughter to wife. And whē Saul ſawe and vnderſtoode, howe that the Lorde was with Dauid, and that Micholl hys doughter loued hym, he was the more afrayed of Dauid, & became Dauids enemy for euer. And whē the Philiftines went out to warre, Dauid behaued him ſelfe wylſelver then al the ſeruauntes of Saul: ſo that his name was much ſet by.

The. xix. Chapter.

Saul commaundeth to ſee Dauid. Michol his wife ſauct h hym by a pꝑrie feate, and deceaueth her father. Saul is alſo among the prophetes.

A Then Saul communed with Jonathas hys ſonne, and with all hys ſeruauntes, that they ſhould kyll Dauid.* But Jonathas Sauls ſonne had a greate fauoure to Dauid, and tolde Dauid, ſaying: Saul my father goeth about to ſee the. Now therfore, take hede to thy ſelfe betimes, and abyde in ſome ſecret place and hꝑd thy ſelfe. And I wyl go out and ſtand by my father in the felde where thou art, & wil comen wyth my father of the, and yf I can perceaue ought I wyl tell the.

And Jonathas ſpake the beſte of Dauid vnto Saul his father, and ſaid vnto him: let not ꝑ kyng ſynne agaynſt his ſeruaunte Dauid, for he hath not ſynned agaynſt the, and his workes are to the warde very good. For he dyd put hys lyfe* in his hand and ſue the Philiftine, and the Lorde gaue a great victory to all Iſrael. And thou ſaweſt it, & thou reioyſedeſt: wherefore then ſhouldeſt thou ſinne againſt innocent bloud, and ſee Dauid for nought. And Saul harkened vnto the voyce of Jonathas, and ſware: as truly as the Lorde liueth, he ſhall not dye. Then Jonathas called Dauid, and ſhewed hym all thoſe workes, and brought hym to Saul. And he was in his preſens as in times paſt.

And the warre begane agayne, and Dauid wente oute and fought with the Philiftines, and ſue a great ſlaughter, and put them to flyghte. And the euell ſpyrite of the Lorde was vpon Saul as he ſat in his houſe hauinge a Jaueſ lꝑng in hys hande, and Dauid played with his hande. And Saul entended to naye Dauid to the walle with the Jaueſ lꝑng: But Dauid rydde hym ſelfe out of Sauls preſens, and he ſmote ꝑ ſpeare into the walle. But Dauid fled, and ſaued him ſelfe that ſame nyghte. Then Saul ſent meſſengers vnto Dauids houſe, to watche him, and to ſley hym in the moꝛnyng. But Michol hys wife tolde it him, ſaying: If thou ſaue not thy ſelfe this nyght, to morow thou arte a deade manne. And ſo Michol let Dauid downe thorow a windowe, and he wente and fled, and ſaued him ſelfe. And then he toke an Image and layed it in the bed, and put a pyllowe ſtuffed with goates heere vnder the heade of it, and couered it with a cloth. And whē Saul ſent meſſengers to fetch Dauid, he ſayd: that he was ſycke: The Saul ſent the meſſengers to ſee Dauid, ſaying: bꝛyng him to me, bed and al, that he may be ſlayne. And when the meſſengers were come in: Beholbe, there laye an Image in the bed, with a pyllowe of goates heere vnder the heade of it. Then ſayde Saul to Michol: why haſt thou mocked me ſo, and ſent away mine enemy, that he is eſcaped. And Michol answered Saul: he ſayde vnto me, let me go, or elles I wyl kyll thee. And ſo Dauid fled, and eſcaped, and wente to Samuel to Ramath and tolde hym all that Saul had done to hym. And he, and Samuell went and dwelt in Bat-oth.

And it was tolde Saul, ſaying: behold, Dauid is at Bat-oth in Ramath, then Saul ſent meſſengers to ſet Dauid. And when they ſawe a compaigne of prophetes a prophelyng, and Samuell ſtandynge faſte by them, the ſpyrite of God fel vpon ꝑ meſſengers of Saul, & they prophelyed to. And when it was tolde Saul, he ſente other meſſengers, & they prophelyed lyke wiſe. And Saul ſent meſſengers yet agayne the thyrde time, which prophelyed alſo. The wente

The. xx. chapter.

David beynge in Jeopardy of his lyfe complayneth to Jonathas. Jonathas loveth him euen as him selfe, & deliuereth him. A proper policy deuised betwixt them: by which David should know the intent of Dauid, and yet Jonathas be blamelesse.

AND David fled from Ratoth in Ramath, and went & sayde before Jonathas: What haue I done: wherein am I faulty? what is the synne that I haue committed before thy father, that he seketh my lyfe? And Jonathas answered hym: God forbyd, thou shalt not dye. For se my father wyll do nothing ether great or small, but that he wyll shewe it me. For why shoulde my father hyde this thyng frome me: there shalbe no suche thyng. And David sware agayne and sayde: thy father knoweth that I haue found a grace in thyne eyes, & therefore he thiketh, Jonathas shal not know it, lest he be sorow. For in very dede, euen as truly as y<sup>e</sup> Lord liueth, and as truly as thy soule liueth, there is but a step betwene me and death. Then sayd Jonathas vnto David: whatsoeuer thy soule desireth that I wil do vnto the. And David sayde vnto Jonathas: Behold, to morow is the fyrst daye of the morneth, and I shoulde syt with the king at meate. But let me go that I maye hyde my selfe in y<sup>e</sup> felde vnto this daye thre daies at euē. If thy father misse me, the saye: David asked leaue of me, that he might go to Bethlehem to his owne cytye, for ther is holde a perely feast for al his kinne. And if thy father say thus: it is wel done, then thy seruaut shal haue peace. But & if he be angry: then be sure y<sup>e</sup> wickednesse is vtterly concluded of him. And then thou shalt shew mercye vnto thy seruaut, *for thou hast made with me thy seruaut a bonde in y<sup>e</sup> Lord. Notwithstanding, yf there be in me any trespase, then slep me thy selfe, for what nedeth the to bryng me to thy father.

And Jonathas answered: God kepe that frome the, that I shoulde knowe, that wickednesse were concluded of my father, to come vpon the: & I shoulde not tel it the. Then sayd David, who shall tell me, if thy father aunswere cruelly? then sayd Jonathas to David, come, & let vs go oute into the felde. And they went out both of them into the felde.

And Jonathas sayde vnto David: the Lorde god of Israel, loke on it, whē I haue groped my fathers mynde, one tyme or other within thys thre dayes, that it stande well with David: and I then sende not vnto the and shew it the, the Lorde do so and so vnto Jonathas. But yf my father haue any pleasure to do the euell, I wyll shewe the also, and sende the awaye, that thou mayst go in peace. And the Lorde be with the as he hath bene with my father. And thou shalt performe vnto me y<sup>e</sup> mercy of the Lorde, not only whyle I lyue, but euen whē I am dead, & plucke not thy mercy away from my house for euer: so not when the Lorde hath destroyed the enemyes of David euery one from the face of the erthe.

And so Jonathas made a bond with the house of David, desyringe that the Lorde shoulde seke it out of the handes of Davids enemyes theyr wickednesse. And with other wordes Jonathas adured David, because he loued hym. For as his owne soule he loued hym.

Then sayde Jonathas to David: to morow shalbe the first daye of the mone. And thou shalt bee mysted, because thy place shal appere emptie. But this daye thre dayes come in anye wyse vnto the place where thou shalt hide thy selfe, when it is worckedaye: euen by the stone Esell. And I wyll shote thre arrowes by the one side therof, as though I shotte at a marke, and wyll sende after a ladde, and bydde hym go seke the the arrowes. If I saye vnto the ladde: se, y arrowes are on this syde the, byng them: then come thou: for it is peace & nothyng to do, as sure as the Lord lyueth. But and yf I saye thus vnto the younge fellow, beholde, the arrowes are beyond the, then go, for the Lorde hath sente the a waye. * And of thys which y and I haue spoken: behold the Lord is witnesse betwene the & me for euer. And so Dauid hyd him selfe in the feld. And when y new mone was come, y king sat him downe at meat, for to eate. And the kyng sat him downe after the olde manner, in his seate by the wall. And Jonathas arose, & Abner sat by Sauls side, & Dauids place was emptie. Neuerthelesse, yet Saul sayde nothyng at all that day. For he thought: some thyng had chauced him that he is not cleane. But on the morow which was y second daye of the mone, when Dauids place appered emptie. Saul sayde vnto Jonathas hys sonne: wherfore cometh not the sonne of Isai to meat, nether yester daye nor to day. And Jonathas aunswere d vnto Saul. Dauid asked licence of me to go to Bethlehem, sayinge: let me go, I pray the, for our kyntred holde an offryng in the cytpe, and my brother hath sent for me. Nowe therefore yf I haue found fauour in thine eyes, let me go, and se my brethren. And therfore he cometh not vnto the table of the kinge. Then was Saull angrie with Jonathas, & sayde vnto him: O froward and rebellious, thynkest thou I know not, how thou hast chosen the sonne of Isai vnto thine owne rebuke, and vnto the rebuke and shame of thy mother: for as long as the sonne of Isai lyueth vpon the erthe, thou shalt not be stablyshyd, nor yet thy kygdome, wherfore now sende a fet him vnto me, * for he is the chylde of death.

But Jonathas answered Saul his father, and said to him: wherfore should he dye: what hath he done? Then Saul cast a speare at him to hyt him, wherby Jonathas wist well, that it was vtterly determined of his father, to sleie Dauid. And so Jonathas arose frome the table in a great anger, and dyd eate no meate the seconde daye of the monethe, for he was sorie for Dauid, because hys father had done him shame. On y next mornyng Jonathas went out into the feld, at the tyme apointed with Dauid, and a lytle ladde with him. And he sayd vnto the boye: runne and fynde oute myne arrowes whiche I shote. And as y boye ran, he shot an arrowe beyond him. And whē the lad was come to the place whether Jonathas had shot the arrow, Jonathas cryed after hym, and sayde: the arrow is beyonde the. And he cryed after the lad: halt, make spede and stand not styll. And Jonathas lad gathered vp the arrowe and came to his master. But the lad wist nothyng of the matter: Onlye Jonathas and Dauid wiste it. Then Jonathas gaue hys wepons vnto the lad, & sayde vnto him: go & carrie them to the towne. And as sone as the lad was gone, Dauid arose out of a place that was towarde the southe, and fel on his face to the ground, and bowed him selfe thre tymes. And they kyssed cyther other and wepte together, but Dauid more abundantly. And Jonathas sayde to Dauid: go in peace, what soeuer we haue sworne bothe of vs in the name of the Lord, saying: the Lord be betwene the and me, and betwene thy seide & myne for euer. And he arose and departed. And Jonathas went into the towne.

Then answered Doeg the Edomite, which had the ouersight of þe seruautes of Saul, & said: I sawe the sonne of Iſai, when he came to Nob, to Ahimelech the sonne of Ahitob, whiche asked coun- sel of the Lorde for him, and gaue hym bitayles, and the swerde of Goliath the Philistine also. Then the kynge sent to cal Ahimelech the priest the sonne of Ahitob, and all his fathers house: that is to saye: þe priestes that were in Nob.

C And they came al to þe kyng. And Saul said: heare thou sonne of Ahitob. And he said: here I am my Lord. Then sayde Saul to him: why haue ye conspired a- gainst me, thou and the sonne of Iſai, in so much that thou haste geuen him by- taile, and a swerde, & hast asked counsel of God for him, that he should arple a- gainst me, and lye awayte for me as it is come to passe this daye. And Ahime- lech answered the kyng, and sayde: who is so faithfull among al thy seruautes as Dauid, and therto the kinges sonne in lawe, and goeth at thy bydding, and is had in honoure in thyne house: haue I this daye begonne fyrst to aske coun- sel of God for him: that be farre fro me (yf I had knowen it): let not the kynge put luche a thinge vnto his seruaunte, and on al the house of my father. For thy seruaunte knoweth nothyng of all this, ether lesse or more.

Then said the kynge vnto his fote men that stode a- bout him: turne, and sle the priestes of the Lorde, bothe because their hande is with Dauid, and because they knewe when Dauid fled, and shewed it not to me. But the seruautes of þe kyng would not moue theyr handes, to runne vpon the priestes of the Lorde. Then sayd the kyng to Doeg: turne thou, and smyte the priestes. But yet one of the sonnes of Ahime- lech the sonne of Ahitob, named Abia- thar, escaped and fled to Dauid, & shew- ed Dauid, how that Saul had slayne the Lordes priestes. And Dauid sayde vnto Abiathar: I wist it the same day, that Doeg the Edomite whiche was there woulde tel it Saul. And I am cause of the death of all the Soules of thy fathers house. Abyde with me, and feare not: he that seketh thy soule, shall seke mine, and with me thou shalt be in sauegarde.

What shal we the be, when we come to Keilah, to the hoste of þe Philistines. Then Dauid asked the Lorde agayne. And the Lord answered him, and said: vp, and go to Keilah, for I wyll deliuer the Philistines in to thyne handes.

And so Dauid and his men went to Keilah, and fought with þe Philistines and draue awaye their cattel, and slue a great slaughter of them. And so Dauid saued the enhabitors of Keilah. And it chaunced when Abiathar the sonne of Ahimelech fled to Dauid to Keilah, that he brought an Ephod in his hade.

And it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was come to Keilah. Then said Saul: God hathe deliuered hym into myne hande. For he is shut in, that he is come into a towne with gates and barres. And Davids younge men came and tolde Nabal al those wordes in þ name of David, and then stopped. And Nabal answered Davids seruantes, and sayd: What is David: and what is the sonne of Isai: there is plenty of seruantes now a dayes, that breake away euery man from his master. I shoulde take my breade, my water and my flethe that I haue kylled for my shepers, and geue it men whiche I wot not whence they be.

And Davids seruantes turned their waye and went agayne, and came and tolde him accordyng to all those saynges. Then David said vnto his men: gyde euery mā his swerde about him. And they gyrded euery man his swerde on, & David thereto gyrded on his swerde. And there folowed David vpon a foure hundred men, and two hundred abode by the stuffe.

But one of the laddes tolde Abigail Nabals wyfe, sayng: se, David sente messengers vnto oure master out of the wyldernesse to salute him, and he railed on the. And yet the mē were very good vnto vs, and dyd vs no displeasure, neither myssed we any thyng, as long as we were conuersant with them, when we were in the felde. But they were a wal of defence vnto vs bothe by nyght and also by daye, all the whyle we were with them keepyng shepe. Nowe take hede and se what thou haste to do, for it is concluded to do myschiefe vnto oure master and to all his household. And he is vnglacions to speake to. * Then Abigail made hast and toke two hundred lounes and two botelles of wyne & fyue shepe readye dressed, and fyue measures of parched corne, and an hundred bondelles of reasyngs, and two hundred frayles of fygges, and laded them on asses, and sayde vnto her younge men: go before me, and se, I come after you, and tolde her husbände Nabal nothing therof. And as she rode on her asse, and was commyng downe in a flade of the hyll, David and his men came downe agaynst her, and she met them.

And David sayde: in bayne haue I kepte all that this felowe had in the wyldernesse: so that noughte was myssed that pertayned vnto hym, for he hathe quyte me with euil for good. So and so do God vnto þ enemyes of David, as I wyll not leaue of all that pertayne to him, by the dawninge of the daye, oughte * that ysleth agaynst the walle.

When Abigail saue David, she hastened and lyght of her asse and fel before David on her face, and bowed her selfe to the ground, and fell at his fete, and said: Let this vnhappye dede be counted myne, my Lord, and let thyne hand mayde speake in thyne audience, and heare the wordes of thine handmayde. Let not my Lord regarde this vnthyfytte man Nabal, for as his name is, so is he: * Nabal is his name and folly is with him. But I thyne handmayde saue not the younge men of my Lord whiche thou sendest.

And nowe my Lord, as sure as the Lord lyueth and as thy soule lyueth, the Lord hath witholden the fro commyng to these bloude, and fro aduengyng thy selfe with thine owne hande. Furthermore I praye God that thyne enemyes and they that entēde to do my Lord euil, may be as Nabal. And now this blessing which thine handmayde hath brought vnto my Lord, let it be geuen vnto the yonge men that folowe my Lord. For geue the trespase of thine handmayde, that the Lord maye make my Lord a sure house, because my Lord fyghteth the battelles of the Lord, and there coulde none euil be founde in the in all thy lyfe. # Dauid spareth i. Samuel. Sauls lyfe.

Lozde God of Israel, which sent þ this daye to mete me. And blessed be thy be- haueour, and blessed be thou which hast kepte me this daye from commynge to thede bloude, and from aduengynge my selfe w myne owne hande. For in verpe dede, as sure as the Lozde God of Israel lyueth, which hath kepte me backe from hurtynge the, except thou haddest hasted and met me, there had not bene left vnto Nabal by the dawnyng of the day, a pysser agaynst the wal. And so Dauid receaued of her hande that she broughte him, and sayde to her: go in peace to thyne house. And se, I haue obeyed thy voice and haue receaued the to grace.

And when Abigail came to Nabal: beholde, he helde a feast in his house lyke the feest of a kynge, and Nabals hearte was mery within him, & he was droncke a good. Wherfore she tolde him naught, nether lytle nor more, vntil the morow day. But in the mornynge, when the wyne was gone oute of Nabal, hys wife tolde him these wordes, & his hart dyed within him, and he became as a stone, and vpo a ten dayes after þ Lord smote Nabal, that he dyed. And when Dauid hearde þ Nabal was deade, he said: blessed be the Lozde þ hath iudged the cause of my rebuke of the hande of Nabal, & hath kept his seruaunte from euil, and hath turned the wickednesse of Nabal agayne vpon his owne heade. And Dauid sent to commẽ w Abigail, to thyntent to take her to his wyfe. And when the seruauntes of Dauid were come to Abigail to Carmel, they spake vnto her, sayinge: Dauid sent vs vnto the, to take þ to his wife. And she arose, and bowed her selfe on her face to the erth, and sayde: Beholde, let thy hande mayde be a seruaunt to c washe the fete of the seruauntes of my Lord. And Abigail hasted, and arose, and gat her vp vpon an Asse, with fyue damoselles of hers, that went at her fete, and went after the messengers of Dauid, and was his wyfe. Dauid also toke Abinoã of Jezrahel, & they were bothe his wiues. But Saul gaue * Michol his doughter Dauids wyfe, to Phalti the sonne of Laïs of Gallim.

The Notes.

a. Blessyng for rewarde or present, after the maner of the Hebrewes. Blessinge &c.

b. The meanyng is. The lyfe of my Lord Dauid shalbe so perserued of the Lozde, as it were in the bondel of Gods prouision, in which are al þ haue lyfe: And the lyfe of his aduersaries shalbe caste in the rowlynge of Gods iudgemente as it were with a synge, and so horryblye whpyled, & without hope of rest that they shal not knowe whether to turne them, tyll they be consumed.

c. By this washyng of fete is signified that he would be so gentel and so scrutable to Dauid, þ he would not refuse to washe the fete euen of his seruauntes Timo. v. b. By this &c.

The xxvi. Chapter.

Saul slepeth in his tent. And Dauid taketh away his speare and a creule of water, that stode at is heade.

After þ came the ziphites vnto Saul to Gibeã, sayinge: Dauid hydeth him selfe in þ hil of Hachilah euen before the wyldernesse. Then Saul arose, and wēt to the wyldernesse of ziph, and thre thousande chosen men of Israel with him, for to seke Dauid in the wyldernesse of ziph. And Saul pytched in the hyl of Hachilah whiche lyeth before the wyldernesse, by þ waies syde. But Dauid dwelte in the wyldernesse. And when he sawe that Saul came after him into the wyldernesse, he sent out spyes and vnderstode, þ Saul was come of a suertie.

Wherfore Dauid arose and went to the place where Saul had pytched, and behelde þ place where Saul laye, with * Abner the sonne of Ner his chiefe cap- tayne. For Saul laye within a rounde bakke, & þ people pytched rounde about him. Then answered Dauid, and spake to Ahimelech the Hethite, and to Abisai the sonne of Zairiah, and brother to Joab, sayinge: who wil go downe with me to Saul to þ host? and Abisai said: I wyl go downe with the.

And so Dauid and Abisai came to the people by night. And beholde, Saul laye slepyng with in a rounde bancke, and his speare pytched in the grounde at his heade, Abner and the people ly- inge rounde aboute him. Then sayde Abisai to Dauid: God hath closed in thyne enemye vnto thyne hande this daye. Nowe therfore, let me smyte hym a felowshyppe with my speare to the erthe, euen one stroke, and I wyl not smyte hym the seconde tyme.

But David said to Abisai: destroy him not, for who can laye his hande on the Lordes anoynted, and be gyltlesse? And David sayde furthermoze: as sure as the Lorde lyueth, the Lorde shal smyte him, or his daye shal come to dye, or he shall descende into battel and there perishe: but the Lord kepe me fro laying myne hande vpon the Lordes anoynted. Now then take a felowshyp the speare that is at his heade, and the crewse of water, and let vs go. And David toke the speare and the crewse of water that were at Sauls heade, & they gat the awaye, & no man saw or wist it or awoke. For they were al a slepe, because the Lord

C had sent a flomber vpon the. Then David went ouer to the other syde, & stode on the top of an hil a farre of (a greatespace beyng betwene them) and cryed to the people, and to Abner the sonne of Ner, saying: hearest thou not Abner? & Abner answered, and sayde: what arte thou that cryest to the kyng? & David said to Abner: art not thou a mā, & who is lyke the in Israel? But wherfore hast thou not kept thy Lorde the kyng? For there came one of the folke to destroye the kyng thy Lord. It is not good that thou hast done. As truly as the Lorde liueth, ye are worthy to dye, because ye haue no better kepte the Lordes anoynted. And now se where the kynges speare is, and the crewse of water that were at his heade.

Then Saul knew Davids voyce, and said: * is this thy voyce my sonne David? and David sayde: it is my voyce, my Lorde o kyng. And he sayd therto: wherfore doth my Lorde persecute hys seruaunt: for what haue I done: or what euell is in myne hāde? Now heare therfore (my Lorde the kyng) the wordes of thy seruaunt. If the Lorde haue stirred the vp agaynst me, he shal smite the sauoure of sacrifice. But & yf they be the chyldren of men, cursed be they before the Lord. For they haue cast me out from abydyng in the inheritaunce of the Lorde, saying: hence and go serue other Goddes. And yet I hope my bloude shal not fall to the erth before the face of the Lorde, though the kyng of Israel become out to hunt a flee, as men hunt the partridges in the mountaynes.

Then said Saul: I haue synned, come agayne my sonne David, for I wil do thee no moze harme, because my soule was precious in thyne eyes this daye. Beholde, I haue played the fole, & haue erred exceedinge muche. And David answered and sayde: Beholde, the kynges speare, let one of the younge men come ouer, & fet it. The Lorde rewarde euery mannes ryghteousnesse and sayth: for the Lorde deliuered the into my hande this daye, but I woulde not laye myne hāde vpon the Lordes anoynted. And as thy lyfe was much set by this time in myne eyes: so be my lyfe set by in the eyes of the Lorde, that he deliuer me out of all tribulacion. And Saul sayd to David: Blessed art thou my sonne David, for thou shalt be a doer, & also able to brynge to an ende. And so David wēt his way, and Saul turned to his place agayne.

David fleeth to Achis kyng of Geth, which geneth him zikeleg to dwell in. He killeth the Philistines. And when Achis demanded agaynst whom he had coued, he geneth him a sorel answer and deceaureth hym properly.

David thought David in his hert: I may perishe one daye or other by the handes of Saul. There is no better for me, then to flee into the lande of the Philistines, that Saul of very dyspayre to fynde me, may cease to seeke me any moze in al the coostes of Israel: for so I may escape his hāde. And David arose, & he & the syxe hundred men that were with him wēt vnto Achis, the sonne of Maach, kyng of Geth. And David dwelt w Achis at Geth, bothe he & his men, euery mā w his houtholde, & David with his two wiues: Ahinoam the Jezrahelyte, and Abigail Nabals wyfe of Carmell. And when it was tolde Saul that David was fled to Geth, he sought no moze for him. And David said vnto Achis: If I haue founde grace in thine eyes, let me haue a place in some towne in thefeldes, that I may dwell there. For what shoulde thy seruaunte dwell in the heade cite of the kyngdome with the. Then Achis gaue him zikeleg the same daye for whiche cause zikeleg pertaineth vnto the kynges of Iuda vnto this day. And David and his men went and ranne vpon the Geshurites, the Gertizites and y<sup>e</sup> Amalekites: which nacions were from the begynnyng the enhabiteres of the lande, as men go to Sur, & so forth to Egypt. And David smote the lande, and lefte nether man nor woman a liue, and toke the shepe, the oxen, the asses, camelles, and clothes, and remoued and came to Achis. And Achis sayde: haue ye not bene a rounge this daye? And David answered: yes in the south of Iuda, and in the south of the Jezrahelites, and in the south of the Kenites. And David saued nether man nor woman alyue, to bynge tydynges to Geth, for feare lest they shoulde tel on them, saying: so dyd David, and so is his maner al y<sup>e</sup> whyle he dwelte in the contrey of the Philistines. And Achis beleued David, saying: he hath made him selfe to stinke vnto his people Israel, and therfore he shal be my seruaunt for euer.

The xxviii. Chapter.

The Philistines moue warre agaynst Saul and the Israelites. Saul requireth counsell of God but hath no answer: and then seeketh after an enchaunter, whiche rapely hym by the spirite of Samuel

And it chaunced in those daies, that y<sup>e</sup> Philistines gathered their host together to warre, entendyng to fight with Israel. And Achis sayde to David: Be sure, thou shalte goo out wth me in the host, and thy men also. And David said agayne to Achis: the<sup>r</sup> thou shalte knowe, what thy seruaunt ca<sup>n</sup> do. And Achis said to David: Then I wyl make y<sup>e</sup> a keeper of my heade for euer.

* Samuel was then deade, and all Israel had lamented him, and buryed him in Ramath his owne citie. * And Saul had put y<sup>e</sup> women y<sup>e</sup> had spirites of prophesie & the Sorcerars out of the lade. And the Philistines gathered together, and came, and pitched in Sunam. And Saul and al Israel gathered together and pitched in Gelboe: And whē Saul saw the hoste of the Philistines, he was aftraied, and his hert was sore astonied. And Saul asked* counsell of the Lord: But the Lord answered him not, nether by dreame nor by y<sup>e</sup> Urin, nor * yet by prophetes.

And Saul chaunged his clothes, and put on other rayment, & then went he and two men with him, & they came to the wyfe by nyght. And he said: prophesie vnto me by the spirite, & bynge me him by whome I shall name vnto the. And y<sup>e</sup> wyfe said vnto him: Beholde, thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath destroyed the women that had prophesyng spirites, & the Sorcerars out of the lade. Wherefore the<sup>r</sup> lai<sup>e</sup>st thou a net for my soule to kyll me? And Saul swore to her by the Lorde, saying: As suerly as the Lord lyueth, there shal no harme chaunce the for this thing. Then sayde the wyfe: whom shal I fetch vnto the? & he said: Bynge me by Samuel. When the woman saw Samuel, she cryed with a loude voyce, and spake to Saul, saying: why halte thou mocked me? for thou arte Saul. And the kynge said vnto her, be not a frayde: But what seyst thou. And the wyfe said vnto Saul: I se* a God ascending by out of the erth. And he said: what faciō is he of? And the womā said: there cometh by an olde man with a mantel vpo<sup>n</sup> him. And Saul perceaued that it was Samuel, & stouped with his face to the groude, and bowed him selfe. And Samuel said to Saul: why hast thou vnyquited me, to make me be brought by? And Saul answered: I am sore encombred, for the Philistines make war agaynst me, & God is departed from me, and answered me no more, nether by prophetes, nether by dreames. And therfore I haue called the, to tel me what I shall do. Then sayde Samuel: wherefore doest thou aske of me? whyle the Lord is gone from the: and is thine enemye, the Lorde wyl do to the as he said by my hande. for the* Lorde hath rent the kyngdome out of thyne hande, and geue it thy neyghboure David, because thou obeydest not the voyce of the Lorde, nor executedst his fearce wthath vpo<sup>n</sup> y<sup>e</sup> Amalekites. Abinoā the Jezrahelite, and Abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite. And David was in a shrowde strayte: for the people intended to stone hym, by cause the heartes of al the people were vexed for their sons & their daughters

And he wente and the fyre hundred men y<sup>e</sup> were wth hym, & they came to the Crier Beloz, where a part of thē abode. But David & foure hundred men followed: but two hundred abode behinde, beyng to wery to goe ouer the ryuer Beloz. Then they fōude an Egyptyan in the felde, & broughte hym to David, & gaue him breade to eate, & water to dryncke, & gaue him a fewe figgs & ii. clousters of reasinges. And whē he had eatē, his spirites came agayne to him: for he had eatē no bread, nor dryncke no water in .iii. dayes, & .iii. nightes. The David sayde vnto hym: to whō belongeth thou, & whēre arte thou: and y<sup>e</sup> lad answered: I am an Egipcian and seruante to an Amalekite: And my master left me behynde, because it is .iii. dayes agone y<sup>e</sup> I fel sick: we came a rōunge bpō the southe of Crethis, & bpō thē of Juda & on the southe of Caleb. And we burnt zikeleg wth fyre. And David sayd to hym: canst thou bringe me to thys companye? And he sayde: I were vnto me by God, y<sup>e</sup> thou wylte neither kyl me, nor deliuer me in to the handes of my maister, & I wyl bring the vnto them. And when he had brought hym: see, they lay scatered al abrode bpō the erth, eatynge & drynckynge, & tryumphynge ouer all the great praye y<sup>e</sup> they had caryed away out of the land of the Philistines, & out of the lande of Juda.

And David layde vpon thē from the twylyght vntyl the euen on the morow: so y<sup>e</sup> there escaped not a mā, saue foure hundred yonge men, whiche rode awaye bpō camels and fledde. And David recouered all y<sup>e</sup> the Amalekites had caryed awaye, & his two wiues: so y<sup>e</sup> there was no person lacking smale or great, sonne or daughter, or of the spoyle of al that they hadde taken awaye, David brought al againe. And David toke al the shepe, and the oxen. And they draue the catel befoze, and sayde: this is Davids pray. And thē David came to the two hundred men y<sup>e</sup> were to wery to folow David, which they made to abyde at the ryuer Beloz. And they came to mete David, and the people y<sup>e</sup> were wth hym. And when David came to the people, he saluted them. Thē answered all the wycked & the vnchrystes (of the men y<sup>e</sup> went wth David) & sayde: by cause they went not wth vs, therefore shal none of the praye that we haue recouered, be geuen vnto them, saue to euerye man hys wyfe and hys chyldren: whiche let them cary away and be walkynge.

Then sayd David: ye shall not doe so (my brythre) wth y<sup>e</sup> the Lorde hath geuen vs, & hathe preserved vs, & deliuered the cōpanye y<sup>e</sup> came agaynst vs, in to our handys. For who shulde herke vnto you in this mater: but as his parte is y<sup>e</sup> goeth & fighteth, so good shal hys parte be, that carieth by the stuffe, they shal parte it a lyke. And so from y<sup>e</sup> day forwarde: was that made a lawe and a custome in Israel, and dureth to thys day. When David came to zikeleg, he sent of his pray vnto the elders of Juda & to hys frends, sayng: se, there is a blessinge for you, of y<sup>e</sup> spoyle of the enemies of the Lord. He sent to them of Bethel: to thē of south Ramath: to thē of Gether: to thē of Aroer: to thē of Sephamoth: to thē of Esthamo: to thē of Rachal: to thē of the cities of y<sup>e</sup> Jerhamelitz: to thē of y<sup>e</sup> cities of y<sup>e</sup> Kenitz: to thē of Haramah: to them of Borasā: to them of Athach: to them of Hebron, & to all places where David & hys men were wont to haunte.

David is i. Samuel. annoynted

and fasted vntyll euen, for Saul and Jonathas hys sonne, and for the people of the Lord, and for the house of Israel, because they were ouerthrowen with the swerde.

Then sayd David vnto the younge mā þ brought him tidings, where arte thou: and he sayde: I am the sonne of an altaute an Amalekite. And David said vnto him: how is it that thou wait not afraide, to laye thyne hande on the Lordes annoynted, to destroy him: And David called one of his younge men, & sayd: go to, and runne vpon him. And he smote hym þ he dyled. Then sayde David vnto hym: þ thy bloude be vp on thyne owne heed. * for thyne owne mouth hath testified agaynst the, saying: I haue slayne þ Lordes annoynted.

And David sang this sōge of mourtynynge ouer Saul and ouer Jonathas hys sonne, & bad to teache the children of Israel the staues therof. And beholde, it is writtē in þ boke of þ rightuous. The glōrye of Israel is slayne vpo þ hie hylles: oh how were þ mightie ouerthrowē. * Tel it not i Geth: nor publyshe it in the streates of Ascalon: lest the daughters of the Philistines reioyse, & that þ daughters of the vncumciled triumph therof. Ye mountaynes of Gelboe, vpon you bee neither dew nor rayne, nor felde whence heauen offeringes come. for there þ childes of þ mightie were caste from them: the shylde of Saul, as thoughe he had not bene annoynted with oyle. * The bowe of Jonathas and the swerde of Saul turned neuer backe agayne emptye, from the bloude of the wounded, & fro the fat of the mightie warriours.

Saul and Jonathas louely & pleasant in their lyues, were in their deathes not deuided, men swifter then Eagles, & stronger then Lyons. Ye daughters of Israel, wepe ouer Saul, which clothed you in purple, & garnētes of pleasure, and * brodered youre raymente with ornaentes of golde. # Joab killeth ii. Kinges. Abner Fol. xlvij Saul went out of Mahanaim, to Gibeon. And Joab y<sup>e</sup> sone of zaruiath & the seruautes of Dauid went out & mette them by the Pole of Gibeon. And they satte downe, the one parte on the one syde the Pole, and the other on the other syde. And Abner sayde to Joab: let the younge men arysle and playe before vs. And Joab answered: be it. The<sup>r</sup> there arose & went ouer: twelue of Benjamin by nombze, whiche pertayned to Isbolet the sonne of Saul, and twelue of the seruautes of Dauid. And they caught eche his felowe that came agaynst hym, by the head, and thruste hys swerde in hys syde, and so felle downe all atonce. Wherefore the place was called Helath zurim whiche is in Gibeon. And there beganne an excedyng cruell battell that same daye. But Abner and the men of Israel were put to the worlde of the seruautes of Dauid.

That is, thefeld of y<sup>e</sup> strong or myghtye.

Ge. xliii.

And there was thze of the sonnes of zaruiath there: Joab, Abisai & Asahel: which Asahel was as swyfte of fote as a wylde Roo, and folowed after Abner, and * turned neither to the ryght hand nor to the lefte, from Abner. Then Abner looked behynde hym, and sayde: arte thou Asahel? And he sayde, yea. Then sayde Abner: turne the ether to the ryght hande or to the lefte, & catche one of the younge men and take thee hys ipoyl. But Asahel would not departe fro him. And Abner sayd agayne to Asahel: tourne from me, for I were loth to smite the to y<sup>e</sup> grounde. For the how shulde I holde vp my face before Joab thy brother: howe be it he wolde in no wyse departe.

ii. Re. xx. d

* Then Abner with the hynder ende of the speare smote him vnder the short rybbes, that the speare came oute behynde hym: that he fell downe in the place, and dyed there. And as manye as came to y<sup>e</sup> place where Asahel fel doune and dyed, stode styl. But Joab & Abisai folowed Abner tyll the sunne went downe. And whē they were come to the hyll Amiah that lyeth before Giah, in y<sup>e</sup> waye that goeth thorowe the wyldernes of Gibeon, the children of Benjamin gathered themselues together after Abner on a plūpe & stode styl on the top of an hyll. The Abner called to Joab, and sayde: shall the swerde deuoure without ende? knowest thou not, y<sup>e</sup> bitternesse is wonte to come in the latter ende: how long shal it be, per thou byd the people retorne fro folowynge their bzythze? And Joab answered: as truely as God lyueth, yf thou haddest so sayde, then euen in the morninge had y<sup>e</sup> people departed, eche from folowynge hys brother. And * therewith Joab blew a trompet, and all the people stode styl, and pursued after Israel no more, nor fought no more. And Abner and hys men walked all that nyght by y<sup>e</sup> wylde felde, & went ouer Jorda, & past thorow al Bethhorō and came to Mahanaim.

ii. Re. xx. d

And Joab retourned fro after Abner, & gathered al the people together. And there lacked of Dauid seruautes nyntene persons, and Asahel. But the seruautes of Dauid hadde slayne of Benjamin and of Abners men, thze hundred & thze score mē. And they toke vp Asahel, & buryed hym in the sepulchze of hys father in Bethlehem. And Joab and his men went all nyght, and came in the dawninge to Hebron.

The. iii. Chapter

Abner cometh to Dauid & bzyngeth hym hys wyfe Michol. Joab killeth Abner. Dauid bewepeth hys death, and curseth Joab.

Here was longe stryfe betwene the house of Saul, & the house of Dauid. But Dauid waxed stronger and stronger, & the house of Saul waxed weaker & weaker. * And Dauid had children bozne hym in Hebron: hys eldest sone was Amnon of Ahinoam the Jezrahelite: y<sup>e</sup> seconde Theleab of Abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite: the thirde Absalom, the sone of Maachah y<sup>e</sup> doughter of Tholmai the kynge of Gessur: the fourthe Adoniah the sonne of Hagith: the fift, Saphatiah the sone of Abital: the. vi. Jethrae by Egla Dauids wyfe: these were bozne to Dauid in Hebron. And as longe as there was battel betwene the house of Saul, and the house of Dauid, Abner helde vp the house of Saul. And Saul had a concubine named Riphah, the doughter of Aiah. And Isbolet sayde to Abner: Wherefore lyest thou with my fathers concubynes?

hyme: Then was Abner very wroth for þ word of Isboeth, & sayde: am I not a dogges head, which agaynst Juda haue shewed mercy this daye vnto the house of Saul thy father, and to hys brethren & frendes, & haue not deliue-red them into þ hand of Dauid: seyng thou fyndest a fault in me this day for a woman: * So do God to Abner and so therto: except that as the Lord hath sworn to Dauid, I so doe to hym, and byng the kyngdome from the house of Saul, & set vp the throne of Dauid ouer Israell, and ouer Juda, euen fro Dan to Bersabe. And he coulde geue Abner neuer a woorde to answer, by-cause he feared hym.

And Abner sent messengers to Da-uid forthwith, sayinge: whole is the land: and he sayd therto: make a bode

And Dauid sent messengers to Is-toke her fro her husbāde: Phaltiel the sonne of Laïs. And her husbāde went w her, & came wepyng behynde her, tyl they came to Bahurim. Then sayd Abner vnto hym: go and returne. And he returned. And Abner had communication with the elders of Israell, sayinge: ye haue longe gone about þ Da-uid shuld be kyng ouer you. Now the do it: for þ Lord hath sayd of Dauid, by þ hand of my seruaūt Dauid, I wil saue my people Israell, out of the han-des of þ Philistins, and out of the hand of all their enemies. And lyke wordes had he with Benjamin, & then wente to tell in the eares of Dauid in Hebrō al that Israell was content with, & the whole house of Benjamin. And when Abner was come to Dauid to Hebron and twentye men wyth hym. Dauid made him and the men that were wyth hym a feest. Then Abner sayde vnto Dauid: I wil bp and go gather al Israell vnto my Lorde the kyng, & they may make an appoyntment with the, & thou mayst be kyng ouer al that thyn heart desireth. And so Dauid let Abner departe, and he went in peace.

And see, the seruauntes of Dauid & Joab came from chaspyng & robbers & brought a great praye with them. But Abner was not with Dauid in Hebrō:
 for he had sente hym awaye to departe in peace. When Joab and all the hoste that was wyth hym were come, men tolde Joab, sayng: Abner the sonne of Ner came to the kyng, & he hath sente hym awaye, that he is gone in peace.
 Then Joab went to the kyng, & sayd: what hast thou done? See, Abner came vnto the, why hast thou set him away, that he shoulde scape quyte? Thou mightest knowe Abner þ sonne of Ner, that he came to flatter with the, and to know thy conuersacion & behauoure, & to knowe all that thou doest. And when Joab was come oute from the kyng, he sent messengers after Abner, whiche brought hym agayne from the well of Sirah vnwetyng to Dauid. And whē Abner was come agayne to Hebron, Joab tooke hym a syde in the gate, to speake with hym gilefullye, and there smote hym vnder the thort rybbes þ he died, for þ blude of Asahel his brother.
 And when it afterwarde came to Da-uids eare, he sayde: I and my kyngdom are gyltlesse before the Lord for e-uer, concerninge þ bloude of Abner the sonne of Ner. It fall therfore on þ heed of Joab, & on all hys fathers house: þ the house of Joab be neuer woute one or other þ hath rüning issues, or wout lepers, & goers on crouches, & that fall on the swerde, & that lacke bread. And the cause why Joab & Abisai slue Abner, was, that Abner had slayne their brother Asahel at Gibeon in battell.
 And Dauid sayde to Joab, & to all the people þ were w hym, rent youte clothes, & put on sacke clothe, & mourne before Abner. And kyng Dauid hym selfe folowed þ bere. And whē they had buryed Abner in Hebron, þ kyng lyft vp hys voyce, and wepte ouer the se-

 13 David how that the Lord had blessed the house of Obed Edom and all y<sup>e</sup> per-14 tapned vnto him, because of the Arcke of God, he went and brought the Arcke of God from the house of Obed Edom, vnto the cytie of David with gladnes.
 15 And euer when they that bare the Arcke of the Lord, had gone syre passys, he of-16 fered an oxe and a fat shepe. And Da-uid daunced before the Lord with all his might in a lymnen Ephod girde vnto 17 him. And David and all the house of Israel brought the Arcke of the Lord with shawting and trompet blowyng.
 18 And as the Arcke of the Lord came into the citie of David, Michol Sauls 19 doughter looked thorow a wyndow and saw kyng David spyng & daunce before the Lord, & therfore dyspyled him in her hert. And whē they had brought in the Arcke of the Lord, and had set it euen in his place, euē in the tabernacle that David had prepared for it: Da-uid offered burntofferings and peace-20 offerynges before y<sup>e</sup> Lord. And as sone as David had made an ende of offering burntofferings and peaceofferin-21 ges, he blessed the people in the name of the Lord of hostes, & gaue among all y<sup>e</sup> folke, euē among the hole multitude of Israel, as well to the wemē as mē, euē 22 eue one a Cake of breed, and a pece of fishe & a flacket of wyne. And so y<sup>e</sup> people departed euery man to his house.
 23 Then David returned to salute his household. And Michol the doughter of Saul came out against him, & sayd: Oh howe glorious was the kyng of Israel to daye, whiche scrifte him selfe to daye before the eyes of the maydens of his seruantes, as a lyght brayned felowe is wont to stripe him selfe.
 24 But David sayd againe to Michol, I wil make sporte before the Lord which chose me before thy father, & before all his kynne, comaundyng me to be ruler ouer al his people Israel. And therfore 25 will I playe before the Lord. And I wilbe yet moze hyle then so, and wilbe meke in myne owne syght: and shall for 26 all that of the very same mayde seruaun-

The .viij. Chapter.

David of a good entent, entredyng to bylde an house vnto the Lord, is forbydden of God. He prayeth that the promyses of God maye be fulfilled.

And in * procelle as the king dwelt in his house after that the Lord had geuen him rest 28 rounde about fro all his ene-myes, he sayd vnto Nathan y<sup>e</sup> prophete beholde, I dwell in an house of Cedar trees, but y<sup>e</sup> Arcke of god dwelleth in the myddes of * curtaynes. Then sayd Na-29 than vnto the kyng: go & do all that is in thyne hert, for the Lord is with the.
 But that same nyght, the woord of the Lord came vnto Nathan, sayng: go, & tell my seruauit David, thus sayth the Lord: shalt y<sup>e</sup> go bylde me an house to dwell in? For I haue not dwelt in any house sence y<sup>e</sup> tyme I brought the children of Israel out of Egypte, vnto 30 this daye: but haue walked in a tēt and in a tabernacle. In any waye where I went among all the children of Israel, spake I one worde with any of the tribes of Israel (sence I commaūded the iudges to fede my people Israel) sayng: why bylde ye not me an house of Cedar tree? Now therfore, so saye vnto my ser-31 uauit David: thus sayth the Lord of hostes: * I toke the out of a sheperdes cote, from folowyng shepe to be a ruler ouer my people Israel. And I was 32 the in all that thou wentest to, and haue destroyed all thyne enemyes out of thy syght, & haue made the a great name, lyke vnto the name of the great men of the worlde. And I wyll appoynt a pla-33 ce for my people Israel, and wyll plant it and they shall continue in one place and shall moue no moze, nether shall wycked people trouble them any 34 moze as they did at the begynnyng, and sence

saue no house ii. Samuel.

sence the tyme I commaunded Judges to be ouer my people Israel, and I wil geue the rest from all thynne enemyes. And the Lorde tellyth the, that he wyl bylde the an housholde.

12 And when thy dayes be fulfilled, and thou layd to a rest with thy fathers, the I wyl set by thy seede after the, which shall procede out of thy bodye, and wil stablyshe his kyngdome. And he shall bylde an house for my name, and I wil stablyshe the seate of his kyngdome for euer. I wyl be his father and he shall be my sone: in so muche that *yl he synne, I wyl but rebuke hym wyth suche a rodde as me be rebuked with, and with suche plage, as the chyldren of men be plagued with. But my mercye will I not take awaye from him, as I toke it fro Saul, whom I put downe before the.

16 And thynne house & thy kyngdome shall endure without ende after the, and thy seate shall be stablyshed for euer. And when Nathā had tolde Dauid all these woordes and all this vision. Then wēt kyng Dauid and set him downe before the Lorde, and sayde: what am I, Lord Jehouah, and what is my kynne: that thou shouldest haue brought me thys farre forth? And is this a small thyng in thy syght Lorde Jehouah, but that thou shouldest speake also of thy seruantes house for a great while to come: is this a law among me Lord Jehouah?

20 And what can Dauid saye moare vnto the, sayng: * thou knowest thy seruānt Lord Jehouah? Euen for thy wordes sake, & accordinge to thine owne hert hast thou done all these greate thynges to make the knowe vnto thy seruānt.

22 * wherfore thou art great. O Lorde God: there is none like the, nether is there any God saue thou accordig to all that we haue heard with oure eares.

23 And what one people in the erth is like thy people Israel: which god wēt & deliuered to be his people, & to make him a name, & to shewe the great & terrible thynges in the erthe, before thy people * which he redemedst to he out of Egypt, eue fro the people & from their Gods.

24 And thou hast ordeyned thy people Israel to be thy people for euer. And thou lord, art their God. And now (lord God) the thing thou hast sayd of thy seruānt

& of his house, make it good for euer, & do as thou hast sayde. And let thy name be great for euer, that men maye saye, the Lord of hostes is the god of Israel: and let the house of thy seruānt Dauid be stablyshed before the for thou Lorde of hostes, God of Israel, hast tolde in the eare of thy seruānt, sayng: I wyl bylde the an house. And therefore hath thy seruānt founde in his harte, to praye this prayer vnto the. And now Lord Jehouah thou art the God, and thy wordes must be true: for thou hast tolde this goodnesse vnto thy seruānt. And now go to and blesse þ house of thy seruānt, that it maye contynue for euer before the. For thou Lord Jehouah hast sayde, that of thy blessing the house of thy seruānt shall be blessed for euer.

The. ix. Chapter.

David restoreth all the felces of Saul, to Miphiboseh the sonne of Ionathas.

Mhe sayd David: is there yet any man lefte of the house of Saul, that I maye shew him mercye for Ionathas sake? And there was of p household of Saul, a seruauant named * zibah, which was called vnto David. And the kyng sayd vnto him: art thou zibah. And he sayde: thy seruauant is the man. Then sayd the kyng, remayneth ther yet any man of the kynred of Saul, whō I maye shew the mercye of God vpo: And zibah said vnto the kyng: * Ionathas hath yet a sonne whiche is lame on both fete. And the kyng sayd vnto him: where is he? And zibah sayd vnto the kyng: behold, he is in the house of Machir: the sonne of Amiel in Lodaber. Then kyng David sent, and fette him out of the house of * Machir the sonne of Amiel, out of Lodaber. Now when Miphiboseh the sonne of Ionathas the sonne of Saul was come vnto David, he bowed hym self and fell on his face. The sayd David: Miphiboseh? And he answered: Behold thy seruauant. And David saide: feare not, for I wyll surely shewe the kindnesse, for Ionathas sake, and will * restore the all the felces of Saul thy father, & thou shalt eate meate on myne owne table all wape. And the other bowed him selfe and sayde: what is thy seruauant that thou shouldest vouchesafe to loke vpon suche a deed dogge as I am.

Then the kyng called vnto zibah Sauls young man, sayyng vnto him: I geue vnto thy masters sonne all p pertayned to Saul and to all his kynne. Se therefore that thou & thy sonnes, & thy seruantes tyll the lande for him, bringe in, that thy masters sonne maye haue fode to eate. For Miphiboseh thy masters sonne shall eate meate all wape vpon my table. For this zibah had fittene sonnes & twentye seruantes. Then sayd zibah vnto the kyng: all that my Lorde hathe sayde vnto his seruauant, thy seruauant shall do. For (sayde the kyng) Miphiboseh must eate vpon my table, as one of the kynges sonnes. This Miphiboseh

The .x. Chapter.

The messengers of David are spitefully and vllanously entreated of the kyng of Moab: wherby the kyng David auengeth.

It happened after this, that the kyng of the children of Ammon died, and Hanō his sonne raigned in his steade.

2 Sam. x. a

Then said David: I wil shew kindnesse vnto Hanō & his sonne of Nahas, * as his father shewed kindnesse vnto me. And ther vpon David sent to comfort him by the hand of his seruauntes, ouer & death of his father. Now when Davids seruauntes were come in to the land of & children of Ammon, the Lordes of the chyldren of Ammon saide vnto Hanon their Lord: thinkest thou that David dothe honoure thy father, because he hath sent to comfort the? Naye, he hath rather sent his seruauntes vnto the, to searche the cytie and to spie it out, euen to ouerthrowe it.

2 Sam. x. a

Wherfore Hanon toke Davids seruauntes, and shaued of the one halfe of euerye mannes berd, and cut of their garmetes eue in the myddle, eue harde by the buttockes of them, and sent them awaye. When it was tolde David, he sent against the (for they were men exceedingly a shamed) & said: tarie at Jericho vntill your beardes be growen, & then retorne. And when the children of Ammon saw, that they stancke vnto David, they sent and hired the sonnes of Bethzeheb and of the Sirciens of Zobah, xx. thousand fote mē, and of king Maachah a thousand men, and of Itob twelue thousand men. And whē David hearde of it, he sent Joab and all & host of strong men. And the chyldren of Ammon came out, and waged battell before the gate, and the Sirciens of Zobah, of Rehob, Itob and Maacah were by them selues in the felde.

When Joab saw that the front of the battell was before and after, he chose of al the best of Israel, and put them in arraye against the Sirciens. And the rest of the people he deliuered into & had of Abisai his brother, whiche put them in arraye agaynst & chyldre of Ammon. And he said: yf & Sirciens ouercome me, then succoure me. But yf & chyldre of Ammon be to good for &, I wil come & succoure the, quyte & like a mā, & let vs fight lustely for our people, & for & cities of our god. And & lord do what semith best in his eyes. And forthwith Joab proceeded & the people & was w hym in to battell against the Sirciens, which fled before him. And whē the chyldre of Ammon saw that the Sirciens were fled, then fled they also before Abisai, & entered into the citie. And so Joab returned fro the chyldre of Ammon & came to Jerusalem. And whē the Sirciens saw & they were put to & worlde before Israel, thei gathered the together. And Hadadezer set & brought out the Sirciens, that were beyonde the ryuer. And the host of them came, and Sobah the captayne of the host of Hadadezer before them.

C

And when it was shewed David, he gathered all Israel & passed ouer Jordan and came to Helam: where the Sirciens put them selues in arraye against David and fought with hym, how be it the Sirciens fled before Israel. And David destroyed seuen hundred charrettes of them, and fourty thousand horsemen, & smote Sobah the captayne of his host, that he there dyed. And whē all the kynges that were seruauntes to Hadadezer saw that they were put to the worlde before Israel, they made peace with them and serued them. And so the Sirciens feared to helpe the chyldren of Ammon any moze.

2 Sam. 19. c

And at euen he wēt out to lye on his

and went not doune to his house.
Wherfore on the morow David wrote a letter to Joab and sent it by Urias.
And he wrote in the letter, saying: put Urias in the forefront of the battell where it is indost strōg, and come back from him p̄ he may be smitten to death.
And as Joab beseged the citie, he assigned Urias vnto a place where he wist that strong men were. And the men of the citie came out and fought wyth Joab. And there were certen ouerthro-of David, & Urias p̄ Hethite dyed also.

Then Joab sent and tolde David al

The .xii. Chapter.

David is reproued for the slaughter of Urias, & then repenteth. The childe conceived in adoultre dyeth.
After it, is Salomon borne.

And the Lorde sent Nathan vnto David. And he cā vnto him, and said vnto him: there were two mē i one citie, & rich & a poore. And the riche had exceedinge great aboundaunce of shepe and oxen.

g. ii. But

But the poore had nothinge, saue one lytle labe whiche he bought & nozished vp. And it grew vp w him and his children, and did eate of his owne meate, & draske of his owne cuppe, & slept in his bosome, & was as dere vnto him as his doughter. And there cā a straüger vnto the riche man. And he coulde not finde in hys heart to take of his owne shepe, noz of hys beestes to dresse for þ straüger þ was come vnto him. But toke þ poore mannes lambe, and drested it for the mā that was come to him. And Da-uid was exceeding wroth with the man, and said to Nathan: as surely as þ Lord liueth, þ felow þ hath done this thing, * is the childe of death: and shal restore the lambe * foure folde, because he dyd thys thyng, and because he had no pytie. Then Nathan said to David: thou art the man. Thys saith the Lord God of Israel: I * annointed the kyng ouer Israel, and rydde the out of the handes of Saul. And I gaue the thy maisters house and thy masters wiues into thy bosome, & gaue thee þ house of Israel & of Iuda, and wolde (yf that had bene to lytle) haue geuen the twyse somoche moare. Wherfore hast thou despyled the commaundement of the Lorde, to do wickednesse in his syght: thou hast kylde Urias the Hethite with þ swerde, and hast taken his wyfe to thy wyfe, & hast slaine him with the swerde of the children of Ammon.

Now therfore the swerde shall neuer depart from thyne house, because (saith the Lorde) thou hast despyled me and taken the wyfe of Urias the hethite, to be thy wife. Thus sayth the Lorde: be-holde * I wil styre vp euell agāst the, euē of thine owne house, and wyl take thy wiues before thine eyes, and geue them vnto thy neyghboure, which shal repe with the * in the syght of þ sunne.
And thou didest it secretly, yet wil I do this thing before all Israel, and in the open sunne lyght.

Then said David vnto Nathan: * I haue synned against the Lorde. And Nathan saide againe to David: the Lorde hath put awaie thy synne, thou shalt not dye. Now be it, because I doig this dede, thou hast geuen the enemies of the Lorde a cause to rayle, the child that is borne the, shall dye surely. And Nathan departed vnto his house.

And the Lorde stroke þ childe þ Urias wife bare David, and it sickened. And David besought God for the bove, and fasted, & wēt in, & laye all nyght vpon þ erthe. And þ elders of his house arose, and went to him, to take him vp from þ erth. But he would not, nether yet eate

And it happened the seuenth daye, þ the childe dyed. But the seruauntes of David durst not tell him that the child was dead. For they saide: se, while the childe was yet alyue, we spake vnto him, and he wolde no herken vnto oure voice. Howe moche moare then will he bepe him selfe, yf we tell hym that the child is deed: But David saw his seruauntes whispering, and therby perceaued that the child was deed, & saide vnto his seruauntes: is the child deed, And they said yea. Then David arose fro the erth, and washed and anointed him self, and chaunged his apparell, & went into the house of the Lorde, and prayed, & after cam to his owne house, and bad that they shoulde set meat before him, & he did eate. The said his seruauntes vnto him: what is this that þ hast done: Thou fastedest & wepest for thy childe, while it was a liue, & as sone as it was dead, þ diddest ryse vp, and dyddest eate meate. And he answered: while the child was a lyue, I fasted, and wepte. For I this thought: who cā tell whether God will haue mercie on me, that þ child may liue. * But now seying it is deed, wherfore shuld I fast: can I bryng him againe any moare: I shall to me. And David comforted Beth-whose name was called * Salomon, and the Lorde loued hym. And he sent

The. xiii. Chapter.

Ammon Davids sonne despoyleth his sister Chamar.
Absalom therfore kylleth Ammon and after death awaye for feare of his father.

And it chauced that Absalom Davids sonne had a sayre sister named Chamar, whom afterwarde Ammon another sonne of David loued. And this Ammon was so bexed that he fell sycke for the loue of his sister Chamar: for it thought hym harde to come by hys purpose of her, sepyng she was yet a virgyn. But Ammon had a companyon called Jonadab, the sonne of Samah the brother of David: which Jonadab was a very wyse man. And he sayd vnto hym: how cometh it that thou beyng the kynges sonne art thus consumed euery morning: mayst thou not tell it me? And Ammon answered him: I loue Chamar my brother Absaloms sister. The said Jonadab vnto him: lye on thy bedde, & sayne thy selfe sycke. And when thy father is come to se the, saye vnto him: Oh, let my sister Chamar come, and geue me meate, and dresse it in my syght, that I maye se it, and eate it of her hande.

And Ammon laye downe and made him self sicke. And whẽ the kyng was come to se him, Ammon said vnto him: Oh let Chamar my sister come, & make me a couple of frytters in my syght, þ I maye eate of her had. And David set home to Chamar, saying: go to thy brother Ammons house and dresse hym meate. When Chamar came to her brother Ammons house he laye. And she toke flour, & made paste, & made frytters in hys syght, & did bake the, & toke a platter & powred the out before hym.

And Ammon wolde not eate, but comaũded to haue out al me fro him. And they went all out from him. Then said Ammon vnto Chamar: bryng the meate into the chãbre, þ I maye eate of thyne hand. And Chamar toke the frytters, which she had made, & brought the into the chãbre to Ammon her brother: & set the before hym to eate. And he toke her & saide vnto her: come lye w me my syster. And she answered him: nay, my brother, do not force me, for it ought not to be so in Israel, do not this folly.
* For whither shal I go w my chame-re? And thou shalt be as one of the soles in Israel. But speake vnto the kyng, and he shal not denye me vnto the.

Howe be it, he wolde not herke vnto her voyce, but was to stronge for her & * forced her, & laye w her. And the Ammon hated her excedinglie: so þ the hate wherwith he hated her, was greater the the loue, w whiche he before loued her. And he said vnto her: bp & awaye.
The he said vnto him: þ hast no cause.
This great cruelnesse þ thou puttest me away, passeth þ other þ thou diddest vnto me. Neuerthelesse, he wolde not heare her, but called his lad þ wayted vpon him, & saide: put her out at þ dores fro me, & bolt þ doze after her. And she had a kirtell of diuerse coloures vpon her: for w suche were þ kinges douchters (þ were virgines) appareled, made straite vnto them. Then his seruaunt brought her oute at þ dores & locked þ dozes after her. And Chamar put althes on her heed, & ret her gaye kirtell that was on her, & put her hand on her heed, and so went: and as she wet, cried.
Then Absalom her brother saide vnto her: hath Ammon thy brother bene with the? Howe then be still my sister: for he is thy brother. And let not this thing greue thine hert. And so Chamar remained discomforted in her brother Absaloms house. And kyng David heard of all these thynges and was very wroth. And Absalom sayde vnto hys brother Ammon nether good ner bad. Now be it, Abfalom hated Ammon because he had forced his sister Thamar.

sem. xxvi. c.
nd. 3. 8. c.

And it happened two yere after that Abfalom had a shepe sheryng in Baal Hazor, besydes the tribe of Ephraim, & had all the kynges sonnes, & he came to the king and sayd: behold thy seruauit hathe a shepesheryng, let þ kyng & his seruantes come with thy seruante. And the king said vnto Abfalō: Oh naye my sonne, let vs not go euerpe one of vs þ we be not chargeable vnto þ. And Abfalom laye soze vpon him: how be it, he wolde not go, but blessed him. Thē said Abfalom: yf thou wilt not come, thē let my brother Ammō go with vs. And the king answered him: what nedeth it that he go with the. But Abfalō made suche instace, that he let Ammō go with him, and all the kynges childzen.

Then Abfalō comaunded his young men, saying: make when Ammons hert is mery with wyne, and whē I byd you smyte Ammon, then kill him: feare not, for it is I that byd you, be holde therfore, & playe the lusty bloudes. And the young men of Abfalom serued Ammō, euē as Abfalom comaunded them. And all the kynges sonnes arose, & toke eche mā his shule and fled. And whyle they were yet in the waye, tydings came to Dauid that Abfalom had slayne all the kynges sonnes, so that none was left a lyue. Thē the kyng arose, and tare his garmentes, and laye a long on the erth: and all his seruantes stode by wyth their clothes rent. Then Jonadab the sonne of Samah Dauids brother answered & sayd: let not my Lord suppose that they haue slayne all the young mē the kynges sonnes, saue Ammon only is deed. For that hath bene euer in Abfaloms mouth sence he forced his sister Thamar: Now therfore let not my lord the kyng take the thing so greuouse, to thyncke that all the kynges sonnes were deed, when Ammon only is deed.

ii. Reg. iii. c.

But Abfalom fled. And the young mā that kept the watche lyfte vp his eyes & loked aboute. And behold, ther came moche people by a waye þ was behinde hys backe a longe by an hylls syde. Then sayd Jonadab vnto the kyng: behold, the kynges sonnes are come, and as thy seruauit sayd, so it is. And as sone as he had lesse speakyng: beholde, the kynges sonnes came, and lifte vp their voyces, and wepte. And therto the kyng and all his seruantes wept exceedingly. But Abfalom escaped and wēt to Cholmai the sonne of Amihud kyng of Gesur. And the kyng mourned for his sonne continually. And so Abfalom escaped and went to Gesur, & was there thre yeres. And by that tyme the kyng turned his mynde from pursuyng Abfalom. For he had left mournynge for the death of Ammon.

¶ The xiiii. Chapter.

By the wysdome of the woman of Thekoa Abfalom is calld. The comely nest: & sonne of Abfalom. Abfalom seyth Joabs counseil. His father kylleth him.

When Joab the sonne of Zaruiah perceaueth þ the kynges hert was turned agayns to Abfalom, he sent to Thekoa, and ret hence a wyse woman, and sayde vnto her: sayne thy selfe to be a mourner, and put on mournyng apparell. And anoynt not thy self with oyle. But beas a woman that had longe tyme mourned for the death of some boye. And go to the kyng, and speake of this maner vnto hym. And so Joab taught her what she should saye.

And when the wyfe of Thekoa was come to speake with the kyng, she fell on her face to the grounde and byd obey, saunce and sayd: helpe me O kyng. And the kyng sayde vnto her: what ayleth the: and she answered. I am a wedowe, and myne husbände is dead. And thy hadmayde had two sones which fought together in the felde (where was no man to go betwene them) and the one slawe the other. And beholde, the whole kintred arose agaynst thy handmayde and sayd: * deliuer vs him that smote his brother: þ we maye kyll him for the * soule of his brother whome he slue, for we wyl destroye the heyre also. And so they shall quenche my sparkle which is left, that he shall styre vp nether name oz issue vpo the erth vnto my husbāde. And þ kyng sayd vnto þ wyfe: go home to thyne house, & I wyl geue a charge for the. And the womā of Thekoa sayd vnto the kyng. My Lord o kyng this trespase

Then sayd she: let the kyng remember hys Lorde God, that the next of the bloude gather not on heapes together to destroye, and that they slay not my sone. And he sayd: as sure as the Lord lyueth, * there shal not one heere of thy sonnes heade fall to the erthe.

D Then the woman sayd: let thine hand mayde speake one worde more vnto my Lorde the kyng, and he sayd: saye on. And the woman sayd wherfore then hast thou determined on thys lame maner against þy people of God: that the king shoulde speake this thyng and be faultye therin, so that the kyng shoulde not let home agayne hys banished. For we muste nedes dye, and perye as water spryt on the grounde, whiche cannot be gathered vp agayne: and God wyl not take awaye the lyfe, but fynde the meanes that the banished be not utterly expelled from him. And now concerning that I am come to speake of this thyng vnto the kyng my Lord, in the presence of the people: thy handmayde thought: surely I wyl speake vnto the kyng, peradventure the kyng wyl heare the request of his handmayd. And the king shal heare his handmayde, and deliuer her out of the hand of the mā that wold haue destroyed me, and my sonne also, oute of the enheritaunce of God. Then thyne handmayde sayde: I praye God that the worde of my Lorde the kyng maye be * immutable. For my Lord the kyng is as an Angell of God, in hearinge of good or bad: and therefore the Lorde thy God be with the.

Abſalom maketh inſurreccyon againſt his father. Dauid is fayne to flee for feare of him.

After thys Abſalom gat *him charettes & horſes and fifty men to runne before him. And thereto he vſed to riſe by erly in the mornyngeſ and to ſtande by the wayes ſide that led to the gate of the cytie. And all the men of Iſrael that had complayntes and came to the kyng for Iudgement, he called vnto hym and ſayd: of what cytye arte thou? And when the other answered: thy ſeruaunt is of ſuch a tribe of Iſrael. Then ſayde Abſalom vnto hym: ſee, thy matter is good and ryghteous, and yet no manne is deputed of the kyng to heare the. Then Abſalom ſayde mozeouer: Oh, that I wer a iudge in the lād, and that all men whiche haue pleyes & matter in the lawe, ſhoulde come to me. For I woulde do them iuſtice. And alſo when any man came nye to hym to do him obeſſance, he put forth his hande & toke hym to hym and kyſſed hym. And on thys maner dyd Abſalom to all Iſrael that came to the kyng for Iudgemente, and therewith *ſtale the heartes of the men of Iſrael. And Abſalom ſent alſo for Ahithophel the Gilonit Dauidſ conſeller, & ſet him out of his cyty Giloh, when he ſacrificed ſacrifices. And ther was wrought ſtrōg treaſon. And the people dyne to Abſalom in greate multytude. And there came a meſſenger to Dauid, and ſayd: the heretiges of the men of Iſrael are turned to folowe Abſalom. Then ſayde Dauid vnto all his ſeruauntes that were with hym, at Jeruſalem: vp, and let vs flee, for we ſhall not elſe eſcape frome Abſalom. How muche more then wape thys sonne of Ieremi do it: Suffre him therfore to curse, for the Lorde hathe bydden him: haplye the Lorde wyll loke on my wepyng eyes and wretchednesse, & do me good for his cursynge thys day. And thus as Dauid and his men went by the waye, Semei went alonge on the hilles syde ouer agaynst him, and cursed as he wente, and threw stones at hi, and caste dust. And the kyng and all that were with him came wery, and refreshed them selues there.

And Absalom and all the people of the men of Israel came to Jerusalem, and Ahithophel was with him. And as soone as he was come: Husai the Arachite went vnto Absalom and sayd vnto him: God saue the kyng, God saue the kyng. And Absalom sayde agayne to Husai: is this the kyndnesse thou owest to thy frende? Why wentest thou not with him? And Husai sayde vnto Absalom: naye not so, but whome the Lord and this people and all the men of Israel chole, his wyl I be, and with hym wyll I dwell. And forthermore, vnto whome shall I do seruice, but euen to his sonne? And as I was seruante before with thy father, euē so shall I be with the. Then spake Absalom to Ahithophel: geue counsell what is best for vs to do. And Ahithophel sayde vnto Absalom: get thee in vnto thy fathers concubines whiche he hathe lefte to kepe the house. for when al Israel shall heare, that thou haste made thy father to syncke, then shall the handes of all that are with the, bee stronge. And so they pitched Absalom a tente vpon the toppe of the house. And he went in vnto his fathers concubynes in the sight of al Israel.

The houses were there that

And the counsell of Ahithophel which he counceled in those dayes, was as a man had asked counsell of Soth: euen so was all the counsell of Ahithophel, bothe vnto Dauid and also vnto Absalom.

The .xxij. Chapter.

Ahitophel, seeing his counsell disallowed of Dauid, forsaken, hangeth him selfe.

Then Ahithophel sayde vnto Absalom: let me chose oute I praye the twelue thousande men. And I wyll by and folow after Dauid by nyght. And I will come vpon him while he is wery, and weake handed, and wyll feate hym, that all the people that are with hym shall see. And so wyll I synpte the kyng on the lpe, and wyl bynge agayne all the people vnto the. And when all these men which thou sekest are turned to the, all the people shall haue reste. And the sayinge pleased Absalom well, and all the elders of Israel. Then sayde Absalom: call also Husai the Arachite, and let vs heare his sentence. When Husai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake vnto hym, saying: Ahithophel hathe geuen suche counsell: whether it be best we do after his saying, or not tel thou?

Then sayde Husai to Absalom: the counsell that Ahithophel hathe geuen, is not good at thys time. For (sayde Husai) thou knowest thy father, and the menne that are with hym, howe that they bee stronge menne. And they be chased in theyr myndes, euen as a Beare robbed of her whelpes. And thy father is a man practised in warre, and wyll not lpe a nyghtes among the comen people. Beholde, he lurked now in some caue, or in some other place. And therto though some of his men be ouerthrowen at the fyrste brunte: yet they that heare it wyll thyncke the people foloweth Absalom be put to the worse. By the reason wherof the best men thou haste whose heartes are as the hertes of Lyons, shall synke there at. For al Israel knoweth that thy father is a man, the people answered: naye, for * yf we flee, oure aduerſaries wyll not care for vs: nether thoughe halfe of vs were ſlayne, ſhall they regarde vs. But thou were worthe tenthouſande of vs. And therto it is better that thou bee readye to ſuccoure vs out of the cypre. Then ſayde the kynge: what ſemeth you beſt, that wyll I do.

B And the king ſtoode by the Gates ſide, and all the people came oute by hundredes and by thouſandes. And the kynge commaunded Joab and Abiſai, and Ethai, ſayinge: intreate me gently my ſonne Abſalom. And all the people hearde when the kynge gaue al the cap- taines charge ouer Abſalo. And y people weente oute into the felde agaynſte Iſraell, and the battel was in the wode of Ephraim. where the people of Iſraell were put to the worſe before the ſer- uantes of Dauid, and there was a great ſlaughter that daye, euen of twē- tye thouſand menne. And the felde was fought in dyuerſe places, all abroade vpon the earth. And the woodes deuou- red moo people that daye, than dyd the ſwerde. And it chaunced Abſalom to come before the ſeruautes of Dauid, ryding vpon a Mule which caried him vnder y thycke bowes of a great Ocke. And his heade caughte in the Ocke, & he was lyft betwene heaue & earth, & the Mule y was vnder hi wēt his way. And one that ſaw it tolde Joab, ſayinge: be- holde, I ſaw Abſalo hange in an Ocke: & Joab ſayde vnto him that tolde him: lo, ſaweſt thou him? And why dideſt not thou there ſmyte hym to the grounde, that I ſhould haue geuen the ten ſicles of ſyluer, and a ſoudyours gyrdle.

And the mā answered Joab: though I had a thouſande ſycles of ſyluer told in my hande, yet woulde I not ſtretch- out my hand againſt the kynges ſonne. For we heard with our eares when the king charged the, Abiſai and Ethai, ſay- ing: ſpare me the lad Abſalom. More- ouer though I had leoparded my life & done falſly therto, yet coulde nought of all the matter haue bene hyd frome the kynge: yea, and thou thy ſelfe wouldeſt be againſt me. The ſayd Joab: * I may not ſtande taryng with the.

And therewith he toke thre ſpeares in his hande and thruſte them into the heart of Abſalom, whyle he was yet a- lyue on the bodye of the tree. And ten ſeruautes that bare Joabs wepons, turned and ſmot Abſalom, and ſue him: * Then Joab blew a trompet, and the people returned from folowing Iſrael: for Joab ſpared the people. And they toke Abſalo, and caſte him into a great pyt that was in the woode, and caſte a myghtye greate heape of ſtones vpon him. And all Iſraell fled euerye man to his tente. And thys Abſalom yet in his * lyfe time, toke and reared vp a pyller, whiche is yet in kynges dale. For he ſayde: I haue no male childe. And ther- fore to kepe my name in remembraunce do I it. And he called y pyller after his owne name. And it is called vnto thys day, Abſaloms pyller.

Then ſayde Ahimaaz the ſonne of Sadock: let me runne I praye the, and beare the kynges tydings, how that the Lorde hathe iudged hym quite of the handes of all his enemyes. And Joab ſayd vnto hi: thou arte no man to beare tydings to daye: thou ſhalte beare ty- dinges a nother tyme: but to daye thou ſhalte beare none, becauſe the kynges ſonne is dead. Then ſayd Joab to Chu- ſi: go, and tell the kinge, what thou haſt ſene. And Chuſi bowed him ſelfe vnto Joab, and ranne. Then ſayde Ahimaaz the ſonne of Sadock agayne to Joab: come what come wyll, let me runne I praye the after Chuſi. And Joab ſaide: wherfore ſhouldeſt thou run my ſonne: for and thou runne thou gettyſt no re- ward: wel, come what wyl let me runne. And he ſayde vnto him: runne. Then Ahimaaz ranne by the playne waye and ouerranne Chuſi.

And Dauid ſat betwene the two ga- tes. And the watche man went vp to the rouſſe ouer the gate vnto the walle, and liſte vp his eyes, and ſawe: and behold, there came a man runnyng alone. And the watche manne called, and tolde the kynge. And the kynge ſayde: yf he come alone, there is tydynges good in hys mouthe. And he came and drewe nye. And the watchman ſawe a nother man runnyng, and called vnto the porter, & ſayde: beholde, there cometh a nother runnyng alone. And the kyng answered red: he is also a tydynges byrnger. And the watchman sayde: me thynketh the runnyng of the formost is lyke the runnyng of Ahimaaz the sone of Sadock. And the kinge sayde: he is a good man, and comineth with good tidinges. And Ahimaaz called and saide to the kinge: good tydynges, and bowed him selfe to the erthe vpon his face before the king, and sayde: blessed be the Lord thy God, which hath shut vp al the me that lyft vp their handes against my Lord y king. And y king sayd: is the lad Absalom safe? And Ahimaaz answered: I saw a great do, whē the kinges seruaunt Joab sent me thy seruaunt. But I wotte not what it was. And the kyng sayde: turne and stande here. And he turned & stode styll.

That is at worst.

G

And beholde, Chusi came and sayde: tydynges my Lorde the kyng, y Lorde hath quytte the thys daye oute of the handes of all that rose against the. And the kyng sayd to Chusi: is the lad Absalom safe? And Chusi answered: the enemyes of my Lorde the kyng, and all that ryle agaynst thee, to do the hurte, be as thy lad is. And the kyng was moued, and wente vp to a chamber ouer y gate, and wept. And as he went, thus he sayd: my sone Absalom, my sonne, my son, my sone Absalom, would to God I had dyed for the Absalom, my sonne, my sone.

The. xix. Chapter.

David is restored to his kingdome, and broughte agayne to Jerusalem.

And it was tolde Joab, howe that the king wept and mourned for Absalom. And the victorie was turned that day into mourning vnto all the people. for the people hearde saye that daye, howe the kyng sorowed for his sonne, and the people wente stealyng awaye that daye from goynge into the citty, as people confounded steale awaye, when they flee in battell. And the king hyd his face and cryed with a loude voice: my sonne Absalom, Absalom my sonne my sonne.

And Joab went into the house to the kyng, and sayd: thou hast shamed thys daye the faces of all thy seruauntes, whiche this daye haue saued thy lyfe, & the liues of thy sonnes & daughters, & the lyues of thy wyues, and concubines, in y thou louest thine enemyes & hatest thy frendes. Thou haste declared this day, that thou carest nether for thy Lordes nor seruauntes. for this day I do perceaue, if Absalom had lyued, & all we dyed this day, y then it had pleased the well. Now therfore, bp, & come out, & speake kindly vnto thy seruauntes, I swere by y Lord, except y come out, ther wil not tary one man w the this night. And that wil be worse vnto the, then al y euil y fel on the from thine pouth vnto this houre. Then y king arose, and sat downe in y gate. And it was told vnto al y people, how the king sat in the gate. And then al the people came before the kyng. But Israell fled euery manne to his tente.

And all the people were at stryfe thorow out al the tribes of Israell, saying: the king deliuered vs out of the hande of oure enemyes. And he deliuered vs out of the hande of the Philistines. And now he is fled out of the land for Absalom. But Absalom whome we anoynted ouer vs is dead i battel. Now therfore why are ye so styll, that ye bring not the kyng agayne? And king David sent to Sadock and Abiathar the priestes, saying: speake vnto the elders of Iuda, & saye: why shoulde ye bee the laste that shoulde byrnge agayne the kyng to his house, seing y such tidinges is come fro al Israell vnto y king, euē to his house: ye are my brethren, my bones and my fleche: wherfore then shoulde ye be laste that shoulde come to byrnge the kyng home agayne? And saye to Amasa: arte thou not my bone and my fleche? And God do so to me and so therto: excepte thou be captayne of the host to me for euē in the roume of Joab. And he bowed the hertes of all the men of Iuda, as a man would bow the hert of one mā: so that they sent worde to the kyng, y he shoulde retorne w al his seruauntes. And the king returned and came to Iordan. And Iuda came to Gilgall, for to go agaynst the kyng, to conueye him ouer Iordan. And Semei the sonne of Ge-ra, the sonne of Jemini, whiche was of Bahurim, halted & came with y men of Iuda against king David, & a thousand men of Benjamin with him, & ziba the seruaunt of the house of Saul, and his xv. sonnes and twenty seruauntes with him.

a boote to carye ouer the kynges hous-holde, and to do him pleasure.

D And Semei the sonne of Gera fell befoze the kyng (as he was come ouer Jordan) and sayd vnto him: let not my Lorde impute wickednes vnto me, nor let him not remember the wickednesse that thy seruaunte did (when my Lorde the kyng departed out of Ierusalem) that the kyng shoulde take it to herte.
For thy seruaunt dothe know, how that I haue done amysse. And therefore be-holde, I am the fyrste this day of al the house of Ioseph, that am come to mete my Lord the kyng. But Abisai the sonne of Zaruiah answered, and sayd: shal Semei not die for that cause: which cursed the Lordes anoynted? And the kyng said: what matter is betwene you and me ye sonnes of Zaruiah, that ye shoulde this daye bee aduersaries vnto me? There shal no manne dye this daye in Israell: for I know, the I am this day kyng ouer Israell. And the kyng said vnto Semei: thou shalt not dye, & swaie vnto hym.

E *And Hiphiboseh the sonne of Saul cam alloto mete the kyng, & had nether dressed hys fete, nor shauen his beerde, nor washed hys clothes from the tyme the kyng departed, vntyl he came againe in peace.
And when he was come to Ierusalem toward the kyng, the kyng sayde vnto hym: wherfore wentest not thou with me Hiphiboseh? And he sayd: my Lord, O kyng, my seruaunt deceaued me. For thy ser-uaunt said: the I woulde haue mine Asse saddled to ride thereon, for to go to the kyng, because thy seruaunt is lame. And Si-ba hath the therto falsely complayned on thy seruaunt vnto my Lord the kyng. But my lord the kyng is as an Angel of god: do therfore what semeth beste in thyne eyes. For al my fathers house were but dead men vnto my Lorde the kyng: & yet didest thou put me among them the I eate at thine owne table. What right there-foze haue I yet, to cry any moze vnto the kyng? And the kyng sayd: it nedeth the not to speake any moze, for I haue said: that thou and Ziba shall deuide the landes betwene you. And Hiphiboseh said vnto the kyng: yea, let him take all: for so much as my Lord the kyng is come in peace vnto his owne house.

And Berselai the Gilcadite came fro Rogelim, and went ouer Jordan w the kyng, to accompane him ouer Jordan: which Berselai was a very aged man, euen foure skore yeres olde, & had prouided the kyng of sustenance, while he lay at Mahanaim: for he was a man of very great substance. And the kyng sayde vnto Berselai: come thou with me, the I may fede the with me in Ierusalem. But Berselai said vnto the kyng: of what age am I of, the I shoulde go with the kyng in to Ierusalem? I am this day foure skore yere olde: & therfore cannot decerne sauery from villauery, nether hath thy seruaunte pleasure in the I eateth or drinketh: nor yet delectaciō in the songes of men or women. It is no nede the thy ser-uaunt be a burthen vnto my lord the kyng: let thy seruaunt go a litle way ouer Jordan w the kyng: for whi shoulde the kyng reder me such a reward? But let thy seruaunt turne back againe, the I may dye in mine owne citie, by the graue of my father & mother. But lo, here is thy seruaunte Chamaam: let him go with my Lord the kyng, & do to him, what shal please thee.

And the kyng answered: Chamaam shal go with me. And I wyl do to him the the shalt be content with. And therto what soeuer thou shalt require of me, the I same wil I do for the. And al the people went ouer Jordan. And when the kyng was come ouer Jordan, he kissed Berselai, & toke his leaue of him, & he wente backe againe vnto his owne place. And then the kyng wente to Gilgall, & Chamaam went with him. Now all the men of Juda wer at the byyinginge ouer of the kyng, and but halfe the men of Israell.

Wherfore al the men of Israell came to the kyng, and sayde vnto him: why haue our brethren the men of Iuda stolen thee awaye, and haue broughte the kyng and his housholde, and al Dauides menne with him ouer Jordan? And all the menne of Iuda answered the men of Israell: for the kyng is nere of kinne to vs: wherfore be ye angrie for that matter: thyncke ye that wee eate of the kynges cosse, or that the kyng geueth

The. xx. Chapter.

Seba the sonne of Bochri capteyth Israel agaynst David. Joab kylleth Amasa treytously. The heade of Seba is deliuered to Joab. Davids rescuers are nombred.

ANd there happened to be an unthyriftye felowe named Seba, the sonne of Bochri a man of Gemini, whiche blew a trompet, and sayde: we haue no parte in David, nor enherytaunce in the sonne of Iſai, O Israel, let vs departe therfore euery man to hys tent. And all Israel went from David and folowed Seba the sonne of Bochri. But the men of Iuda claue faste vnto the kynge, from Iordan to Ierusalem.

And when David was come to his house to Ierusalem, he toke the tē wyues his concubynes that he had lefte behynde him to kepe the house, and put them in warde, and ministred all thynges vnto them: but laye no more with them. And so they were enclosed vnto the daye of the death of them, and liued a wydowes lyfe.

Then said þ king to Amasa: cal me the mē of Iuda together w in thre dayes, & present thy selfe here. And Amasa went to gather þ men of Iuda together: but taried longer then þ time which was appointed him. Wherfore the kynge sayd to Abisai: nowe shall Seba the sonne of Bochri be worlde to vs then Absalom.

Take thou therfore thy Lordes seruantes and folowe after him: lest he get him walled cyties, and escape vs. And there wente oute after him Joabs men, and the Gethites & the Shelethites, & þ mē of might. And they departed out of Ierusalem to folow after Seba þ sonne of Bochri. And when they were come to þ great stone in Gibeon, Amasa met them. And Joab had his garment that he had about him, gird vnto him, and had gyrded therō a knyfe ioynd fast to his loynes, in suche a maner that (as he wente) it fell some tymes oute. And Joab sayde to Amasa: are all thynges in rest and peace my brother? And Joab toke Amasa by the chymme with þ right hande, as though he would haue kylled hym. And Amasa toke no hede to the knyffe that was in Joabs hande, with which Joab smote him in þ short rybbes, and ihed oute his bowelles to the grounde, and smote hym but one stroke, and he dyed.

And then Joab and Abisai hys brother folowed after Seba the sonne of Bochri. And one of Joabs men þ stode by him, sayd: what is he that he would be as Joab, and what is he that would be vnto David in stede of Joab? And Amasa laye walowynge in bloude in the myddes of the waye. And there was a mā, that saw al the people stande styl. And when he saw that al that came by him stode styl, he rowled Amasa oute of the waye into the felde and cast a clothe vpon him. And as sone as he was tombeled out of the waye, all þ people went after Joab, to folowe after Seba the sonne of Bochri.

And he went thorow all the trybes of Israel vnto Abel, Bethmaacah and all Barim. And the people gathered vnto him, and went also after him. And they came & beleged hym in Abel Bethmaacah. And they cast by a bancke agaynst the cytye. And it was beleged. Al þ people that was with Joab labored busely to ouerthrowe the wal. Then cryed a wyse woman out of þ cytie, heare, heare, byd I praye you Joab that he come hither, & I maye speake with hym. When Joab was come, the woman sayde: arte thou Joab? And Joab answered: þ am I. And she sayde to him: heare the wordes of thy handmayde. And he sayde: I am readye to heare. And she sayde: it hath bene a comen sayinge in þ olde tyme, men must aske of Abel, and then go to and finishe the worcke. Abel is one of the quyetest and saythfullest cyties that are in Israel. And thou goest about to destroye a cytie that is as a mother in Israel. Why deuourest thou the inheritance of the Lorde.

And Joab answered and sayde: God forbid, God forbid it me, that I should ether deuoure or destroy it. The matter is not so: But there is a man of mounte Ephraim (Seba the sonne of Bochri by name,) which hath kylte by his hande

The .xxi. Chapter.

Thre deare peres. The vengeance of the spynes of Saul lyghthe on his. vii. sonnes, whiche are hanged. Foure great battelles, whiche David had agaynst the Philistines.

Then there fel an honger in þe daies of David thre peres, yete by yete. And David enquired of the Lorde. And the Lorde answered: it is for Sauls sake, and þe house of bloude, because he slue the Gibeonites. And the king called the Gibeonites, & said vnto them. Now these Gibeonites are not of the * children of Israel, but a remnaunt of the Ammorites, and the children of Israel sware vnto them. And yet Saul sought to sleigh them, for a zeale þe had to the chyldren of Israel and of Juda. Wherfore David sayd vnto them: what shall I do for you: and wherwith shall I content you that ye maye * blesse þe heritage of the Lorde?

And the Gibeonites said vnto him: we haue no matter of syluer or of golde with Saul or with his house: nether haue we any man that we would kyll in Israel. Then he sayd: what say ye that I shall do for you? And they sayd vnto the kyng: the man that consumed and imaged to brynge vs to nought, him we ought to destroye, that noughte of him continue in anye of the coostes of Israel, let seven men of hys sonnes be delyue red vnto vs, that we maye hange them vp vnto the LORDE, in Gibeah of Saul the lordes electe. And David sayde: I wyll geue them you.

But the kyng had compassion on Miphiboseh the sonne of Jonathas, the sonne of Saul, because of the Lordes othe, that was betwene them: that * is to say betwene David & Jonathas the sonne of Saul. But he toke þe two sonnes of Kezphah the doughter of Achish (whiche he bare vnto Saul,) Armoni and Miphiboseh, and the fyue sonnes of Micho (the doughter of Saul) whiche he bare to Achiel the sonne of Berselai the Molathite, and delyuered them vnto the handes of þe Gibeonites, whiche hanged them in the hyll before the Lorde. And they fell all seven together, in the fyrste dayes of heruest: euen in the begynnyng of Barley heruest.

And Kezphah the doughter of Achish toke sackclothe and spred it vnder her vpon the Rocke, euen from the begynnyng of haruest, vntyl raigue dropped vpon them out of heauen: and suffered nether the byrdes of the Ayre to fal on them by daye, nor beastes of þe felde by nyght. And when it was tolde David what Kezphah the doughter of Achish the concubine of Saul had done, he went and toke the bones of Saul and of Jonathas his sonne, of þe men of Jabes in Gilead, which they had stole fro the strete of Bethsan, where the Philistines had haged the in þe dayes when the Philistines had slayne Saul in Gilboa. And he brought thece þe bones of Saul and þe bones of Jonathas hys sonne, & they set away the bones of them that were hanged, & buryed the w the bones of Saul & Jonathas his sonne in the contrey of Benjamin, in zela, in the sepulchre of Cis his father. And when they had performed all that the kyng commaunded, God was then at one with the lande.

And the Philistines had yet againe warre with Israel. And David wente downe, and his seruauntes with hym, and fought with the Philistines. And David waxed fayntie, & fel bi of * Nob one of the sonnes * Haraphah (whose speare heade wayed thre hundred sicles of Brasle, and was gyrded with a newe swerde) thought to haue slayne David.

But Abisai the sonne of zacariah succoured him, & smote the philistine, and kylled him. Then the seruautes of Dauid sware vnto him, sayinge. * Thou shalt go no more out with vs to battel, that the lyght of Israel be not put out. And there was yet after this, battell with y philistines at* Rob, in whiche Sobochai the Husathite slewe Saph one of the sonnes of Haraphah.

And there was yet the thirde battell in Rob, with the philistines, where Elhanan y sonne of the Jaere Drgim, a Bethlehemite slewe one Goliath a Gethite: the staffe of whose speare was as great as a weeners cloth beame.

And there was yet battell in Geth, where was a man of a size and had on every hande. vi. fyngers, and on every fote. vi. toes. xliiii. in all. And was also of the kindred of Haraphah in Geth, and despyed Israel. And Jonathas the sonne of Samach the brother of Dauid slewe him. These foure were of the sonnes of Haraphah in Geth, & were ouerthrowe by the hande of Dauid and by the handes of his seruautes.

The. xlii. Chapter.

The Lanticle or songe of Dauid for the delyuerance from his enemyes.

And Dauid spake the wordes of this song vnto the Lorde, what tyme the Lorde had delyuered him out of the handes of all his enemyes, and out of the handes of Saul.

And he sayde: the Lorde is my a rocke, my castel, and my delyuerer. God is my strength, and in him wyll I truste: my shilde and the hozne that defendeth me: myne hie holde and refuge: O my Sauiuer, saue me from wronge.

* I wyll prayse and cal on the Lorde, and so shal be saued from myne enemyes. For the waues of deeth haue closed me aboute, & the floudes of Belial haue feared me. The cordes of hel haue compassed me aboute, & the snares of deeth haue ouertaken me. In my tribulacion I called to the Lorde, and cryed to my God. And he hearde my voyce oute of his temple, & my crye entred into hys eares. And the erth trembled & quoke, and the foundacio of heuen moued and shoke, because he was angrye.

Smoke went vp out of his nostrelles, and consumynge fyre out of his mouth, that coles were kyndled of him. And he bowed heuen, and came downe, & darcknesse was vnderneath his fete. And he rode vpo Cherub & flew: & appered vpo the wynges of the wynde. And he made darcknesse a tabernacle rounde aboute him, with water gathered together in thicke cloudes. Of the bryghtnesse, that was before him, coles were set on fyre.

The Lorde thundred from heuen, and the most hye put out his voyce. And he shotte arrowes, and skatered them: and hurled lyghtenynge & turmoyled them. And the bottome of the sea appered, and the foundations of the world were sene, by the reason of the rebukynge of the Lorde, and thozow the blastynge of the breath of his nostrelles. He sente from an hye and fet me, and plucked me oute of myghtie waters.

He delyuered me from my mightie enemye, and from them that hated me, and were to stronge for me. When they had compassed me in the day of my tribulacion, the Lorde stayed me vp. And he brought me out into rowmeth, and delyuered me, because he delyted in me.

* The Lorde rewarded me accordynge to my ryght wysnesse: and accordynge to the purenesse of my handes he dealte w me. For I kept the wayes of the Lorde, and dyd no wyckednesse forsakynge my God. But I had all his lawes in my syght, and turned my face from none of his ordynaunces. But was pure vnto himwarde, and kept my selfe from wyckednesse.

And the Lorde dyd to me agayne, accordynge to my ryghteousnes, and after my purenesse that I had in his syghte. With the holpe thou shalt be holy, and with the man that is vncorrupte, thou shalt be vncorrupte. With the pure thou shalt be pure, and w the froward thou shalt be frowarde also. And the pooze people that are in aduersite, thou shalt helpe. And on the proude shalt thou caste thyne eyes. Thou arte my lyght O Lorde: and the Lorde shal lyght my darcknesse.

With thy helpe I wyll runne thozow an hoste of men, and by the ayde of my sayde to Joab the captayne of his host: go abroade I praye the, thorowe out al the trybes of Israel, euen from Dan to Bersabe and nombze the people, that I maye knowe the nombze of them. And Joab sayde vnto the kynge: I beseeche that the Lorde thy God, make the people as many moo as they be: yea, & an hundred tymes so many mo, and that the eyes of my Lord the kyng may se them. But howe is it that my Lord the kyng hath a luste in this thyng? Notwithstandynge the kynges wordes preuailed against Joab, and against al þe captaynes of the hoste.

Then Joab and the captaynes of the host, wente out from the presens of the kynge, to beue the people of Israel. And they passed ouer Jordan, & pitched in Arzer on the ryghte syde of the citie that lyeth in the middes of the valley of Gad and so forth to Jazer. And then they went to Gilead and to the nether lande of Hodesi, and from thence to Dan Jaan, and aboute to Sidon, and came to the stronge towne of Tyre, and to al þe cities of the Heuites and of the Cananites, and then wente oute to the South of Juda, euen to Bersabe. And so when they had bene abrode thorowe out al the lande, they returned to Jerusalem agayne, at the ende of nyne monethes and twentie dayes. And the Joab deliuered vp the rekenynge of the nombze of the people vnto the kynge. And there were founde in Israel eyght hundred thousande men of myght that drewe swerdes. And the men of Juda were fyue hundred thousande men.

And Dauids heart smote him, after that he had nombred the people. And he sayd vnto the Lorde: I haue synned exceedingly in that I haue done. And now Lorde take awaye the trespass of thy seruauent: for I haue done very folishe ly. And when David was vp in a moornyng, the worde of the Lord came vnto the prophete Gad, Dauids sear, sayinge: go and say vnto David, this sayeth the Lorde. And the Lorde sente a pestilence in Israel from the moornyng vnto þe ende of þe tyme appoynted. And theredied of the people betwene Dan and Bersabe. lxx. thousande men. And whē the Angel stretched out his hande vpon Ierusalem to haue destroyed it, the Lord had compassion to do that euil and sayde to the Angell that destroyed the people: it is sufficient: let thyne hande cease. And the Angel was at the threshynge place of Arefnah the Jebusyte. Then spake David vnto the Lorde (when he sawe the Angel that smote þe people,) & said: loo, it is I that haue sinned, and I that haue done wyckedly. But these shepe, what haue they done? let I praye the thine hande be on me and on my fathers house.

And Gad came the same day to David, and said vnto him: go vp and reare an aultare vnto the Lord in þe threshing flowre of Arefnah the Jebusite. And David (accorpyng to the sayinge of Gad) went vp as the Lorde commaunded. And when Arefnah looked, and sawe the kynge, and his seruantes comyng towarde him, he went oute: and bowed him selfe to the kynge, flat on his face to the grounde, and sayde: wherfore is my Lorde the kynge come to his seruante? And David said: to bye þe threshynge flowre of þe, for to make an aultare vnto the Lord, that the plage may cease from the people.

And Arefnah sayde vnto the kynge: let my Lorde the kynge take and offer what semeth him good in his eyes: Be sholde here be oxen for sacrifice, and heasdes, and the other instrumentes of the oxen for wood. And the Damosel was exceedynge fayre, and cheryshed p kyng and ministred to him: But the kyng knewe her not.

But Adoniah the sonne of Hagith exalted him selfe, sayinge: I wil be kyng. And he gat him a charet and horsemen * and fyfthe men to runne before hym. And his father rebuked hym not at any tyme, nor sayd so much to hym, as why doest thou so. And he was therto a goodly man, and his mother bare him nexte after Absalom. And he communed with Joab the sonne of zacariah, & with Abiathar the priest. And they holpe Adoniah. But Sadock the priest, Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada, Pathan the prophet, Semei and Rei, and all p men of myght which were with David, fauoured not Adoniah. And Adoniah sacrificed shepe and oren, and fatlynges at the stone of zoheloth, whiche is faste * by the well * of Rogel, and bad al his brethren the kynges ionnes, and all the men of Iuda the kynges seruautes. And beholde whyle he yet talked with the kyng, Nathan the prophet was come. And they tolde the king, saying: here cometh Nathan the prophet. And when he was come before the kyng, he made obeysaunce vnto the king vpon his face vnto the ground, and said: My Lord o kyng, hast thou said, Adoniah shal raygne after me, & he shall sit vpon my seate? for he is gone downe this daye, and hath offered oxen, fatlinges, & shepe aboundantly, and hath called all the kynges sonnes and the captaines of the host, & Abiathar the priest. And se, they eate and drinke before him and saye: God saue kyng Adoniah. But me thy seruauant and Sadock the priest, and Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada, and thy seruante Salomon he hath not called. Is this thyng done of my Lord the kyng, and yet woldest not shewe me thy seruauant, who shoulde sit on the seate of my Lord the kyng after him?

Then sayde kyng David: cal me Sadock the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada. And when they came before the kyng. The kyng said vnto them: take w you the seruantes of your Lord, and let Salomon my sonne vpon myne owne Mule, and carye him downe to Gihon.

And let Sadock the priest, & Nathan the prophet anoynte him there, to be kyng ouer Israel. And then blowe ye with trompettes, and saye: God saue kyng Salomon. And then come vp after him, and let him come and sit vpon my seate. For he shal be kyng in my steade. And him I haue comaunded to be captayne ouer Israel and Juda. And Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada answered the kyng, and said: Amen, and so I praye God that the Lord God of my Lord the kyng say so to. And as the Lord hath bene with my Lord the kyng, euen so, I praye God that he may be with Salomon, and that he make his seate gloriouiser then the seate of my Lord kyng David.

And so Sadock the priest & Nathan the prophet, and Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada, and the Crethites and Phelethites went downe, and let Salomon vpon kyng Davids Mule, & brought him to Gihon. And Sadock the priest toke an horne of oyle oute of the tabernacle, & anoynted Salomō. And al they of the people blew trompettes, and al they said: God saue kyng Salomō. And Adoniah and al the gesses that were with him, hearde it, euen as they had made an ende of eatyng. And when Joab hearde the sounde of the trompet, he sayde: howe happeneth it that there is suche a noyse in the cytie? And as he yet spake, se, Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar the priest, came. And Adoniah sayde: come in, for thou arte a lustye bloude, and byngest good tydynges. And Jonathas answered and sayde to Adoniah: Verely our lord kyng David hath made Salomō kyng. And the kyng sent w him, Sadock the priest, & Nathan the prophet, & Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada, & the Phelethites, & they haue set him vpon the kyngs Mule. to the kyng.

And ther vpon Bethsabe went vnto kyng Salomon, to speake vnto hym for Adoniah. And the kyng rose vp agaynste her and bowed hym selfe vnto her: and satte hym downe on his seate.

And there was a seat set for the kyngs mother. <sup>Mark. x. c</sup> And she sat on his right side. Then she sayde: I must desire a litle petition of the: I praye the saye me not naye. And þe kyng sayd vnto her: aske on my mother: for I wil not say the naye. And she sayd: let Abisag the Sunamite be geuen to Adoniah thy brother to wyfe. And kyng Salomon answered, & sayd vnto his mother: why doest thou aske Abisag the Sunamite for Adoniah: but rather aske for hym þe kyngdome, seinge he is mine elder brother: euē for him aske it & for Abiathar the priest, & for Joab the sonne of Zaruiah. Then kyng Salomon sware by the Lorde, sayinge: <sup>a</sup> God do so to me, & so thereto yf Adoniah haue not spoken this word agaynste his owne life. Now therfore as surely as the Lorde lyueth, which hath stablished me, and set me on the seat of Dauid my father, & whiche hath made me an house as he promysed me, Adoniah shal dye this day. And kyng Salomon sent by the hande of Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada, and smote hym that he dyed.

And vnto Abiathar the priest, sayd the kyng: gette the to. And toth vnto thyne owne felde, for þe arte worthy of death: but I wyl not at this tyme kyll the, because thou barest the arck of the Lorde Jehouah before Dauid my father, and bycause thou suffrest with my father in all hys afflictions. And so Salomon put away Abiathar fro be- ynge priest vnto the Lorde: to fulfyl the wordes of the Lorde which he spake ouer the house of Eli in Siloh. Then tithynges came to Joab: for Joab had tourned after Adoniah but not after Salomon. Wher vpon he fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde and caughte <sup>a</sup> handfast on the hornes of the altar. And it was tolde kyng Salomon, how that Joab was fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde and stode by þe altar. Then Salomon sente Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada, saying: goe & smite hym. And when Banaiah was come to the tabernacle of the Lorde, he sayd vnto hym: thus sayeth the kyng, come out. And he sayde, naye: but I wyl dye euē here. And Banaiah broughte the kyngs worde, sayinge: thus sayde Joab and thus he answered me.

And the kyng sayde: do euē as he hath sayde: smyte hym, & burie hym, & take away the bloude (whiche Joab shed causelesse) frome me and from the house of my father. And þe Lorde bring his bloude vpo hys owne head, for he smote two men ryght wyser and better then he, and slue them with the swerde, my father vnwetyng: euē Abner the sōne of Ner, captayne of the host of Israel, and Amasa þe sonne of Jether captayne of the hooſte of Iuda. And their bloud retorne vpon the head of Joab, and on the head of hys seede for euē. <sup>f</sup> And prosperite be vnto Dauid, & vnto hys seed, and vnto his house, and vnto hys seate, of the Lorde for euē.

And Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada went vp, and smote him, & slue him, & buried him in hys owne house in the wildernesse. And the kyng put Banaiah the sōne of Jehoiada in his rowme ouer the hooſte, and put Sadocke the priest in the rowme of Abiathar.

Then the kyng sent and called Semei, and sayde vnto him: buylde the an house in Ierusalem, & dwel there: & see that thou goe not once thence any whither, for be thou sure of it, the day thou goest out & passest ouer þe ryuer of Cedron, thou shalt dye for it, & thy bloude shall be on thyne owne head. And Semei sayde vnto the king: it is wel said: as my lord the kyng hath sayde, so wyl hys seruaunte doe. And Semei dwelt in Ierusalem manye a day. And it chaūced at the end of thre yeres that two of the seruauntes of Semei rāne awaye vnto Achis sonne of Maacah kyng of Geth. And one tolde Semei, sayinge: se, thy seruauntes be in Geth. And Semei stode vp, and saddled hys asse, and gat him to Geth to Achis, to seke hys seruauntes, and came & brought them agayne from Geth.

But it was tolde to Salomon, how that Semei had gone frome Ierusalem to Geth, and was come agayne. And

And thou answeredest me: it is good tydynges that I haue hearde. Why then hast thou not kept the oth of the Lorde, and the comaundement that I commaunded thee.

And then the kinge sayde to Semei: *thou remembrest all the wyckednesse which thyne heart knoweth, that thou diddest to Dauid my father. The Lord therfore render agayne thy wickednes vpon thyne owne head: & kinge Salomon be blessed, & the seate of Dauid be stablyshed before the Lorde for euer. Salomon taketh Pharaos doughter to wyfe. The Lorde apereth to hym and geueth hym wysdome. The plentyng of þe two harlottes who shoulde owe the lyuage childe: and Salomons sentence therein.

When Salomon drewe affinite with Pharaos king of Egypt, and toke Pharaos doughter & brought her in to the city of Dauid, vntil he had made an ende of byldynge hys owne house, & the house of þe Lord, & the walles of Ierusalē rōūde aboute. Only þe people sacrificed in aulters made on hylles, because there was no house bylt vnto þe name of þe Lord, vntil those dayes. And Salomon loued the Lorde, and walked in the ordinaunces of Dauid his father, saue only that he sacrificed & offered incense vpon aulters in hylles. *And þe kinge went to Gibeon, to offer there: for þe was a great offerig place. And there Salomon offered a thousande burnt offerings vpon þe aulter. And in Gibeon the Lorde appeared to Salomon in a dreame by nyghte. And God sayd: aske what I shall geue the. And Salomon sayd: thou hast shewed vnto thy seruaunte Dauid my father greate mercye, accordynge as he walked before the in truth, & in righteousness, & playnesse of hearte with the. And thou hast kept for hym this great mercie, þe thou hast geue him a sonne, to syt on hys seate: as it is come to passe thys daye. *And nowe Lorde, my God, it is thou that hast made thy seruaunte kyng in steade of Dauid my father. *And I am a yōge lad & wote not how to order my selfe. And thy seruaunt is in the middes of thy people, whiche thou hast chosen, a people that are so manye that they cā not be told nor nōbzed for multitude. *Geue therefore vnto thy seruaunte an vnderstandynge hearte, to iudge thy people, & to decerne betwene good & bad. For who is able to iudge this thy so weyghtie a people?

And it pleased the Lorde well, that Salomō had desired this thing. Wherfore God sayd vnto him: because thou hast asked this thing, & haste not asked long lyfe, neither hast asked riches, nor the liues of thyne enemies, but hast asked the discrecion to vnderstāde equite. Se, I haue done accordynge to thy petition: and behold, I haue geuen the a wise and an vnderstandynge heart, so þe there was none like the before the, neither after the shal any aryse lyke vnto the. And therto I haue geuen the that which þe askedest not, both riches, & honoure: so that there shal be no kyng lyke the al thy dayes. And yf thou wilt walke in my wayes, to kepe myne ordinaunces and comaundemēt, as Dauid thy father dyd walke, I wyll lengen then thy dayes also. When Salomon awoke, this was hys dreame. *And he came to Ierusalē & presented him selfe before the arcke of the testament of the Lorde, and offered burnt offerynges and peace offerynges, and made a feast to all his seruauntes.

Then came there two women, that were harlottes vnto the kyng, & stode before him. And the one of the sayd: oh my lord: I & thys woman dwell bothe in one house. And I was deliuered of a childe wher in the sayde house. ¶ Hym Hiram sendeth Cedar timbre to þe byldynge of the temple. The descripcion of the worckes.

¶ And Hiram kinge of Tye sent his seruauntes vnto Salomon, for he had hearde, þe they had anoynted hi king in þe rowme of his father. *And therto Hiram was euer a louer of Dauids. *And Salomon set agayne to Hiram, sayng: þe knowest of Dauid my father, how he coude not bylde an house vnto þe name of þe Lordhis God, for war whiche he had on euery syde, vntyl the Lord had put the vnder þe soles of his fete. But nowe the Lord my God hath geue me rest on euery syde, so þe there is nether aduersarpe, nor any euell plage.

And therfore I am disposed to byld an house vnto the name of the Lorde my God, as he promysed Dauid my father, sayinge: thy sonne which I wyll put vpon thy seate for the, he shal bilde an house vnto my name. Nowe then comaunde þe they hewe me Cedar trees in Libanon. And let my seruauntes be wthine, & I wil geue þe hire of the seruauntes, in all suche thynges as thou shalt appoynte, for thou knowest that there are not amonge vs, that can skyl to hewe timbre, lyke vnto the Sidonys.

When Hiram heard the wordes of Salomon, he reioysed greatly, & sayd: Blessed be the Lorde thys daye, whiche hath set Dauid a wyse sonne ouer this myghtye people. And Hiram sent agayne to Salomon, sayinge: I haue accept the request whiche thou sentest to me for, & wyll satisfie all thy luste, concernyng timbre of Cedar trees and fyre. My seruauntes shal bynge the fro Libanon to the sea. And I wyll conuey the by thyp vnto the place þe thou shalt sende me worde, and wyll cause the to be discharged there, that thou mayst receyue them. And þe shalt do me thys pleasure agayne, to minister fode for myne house. And so Hiram gaue Salomon Cedar trees, & fyre trees, as muche as he desired. And Salomon gaue Hiram twentie thousand quarters of wheate to fede his household withal, & xx. buttes of pure oyle. And so much gaue Salomon to Hiram yere by yere.

And the Lord gaue Salomon wisdome as he promysed hym. And there was peace betwene Hiram and Salomon, & they were confedered together. And kynge Salomon reysed a tribute thowowe out all Israel. And the tribute was thirtie thousande men, which he sente to Libanon, x. thousande a moneth by course, so þe they were, i. moneth in Libanon, & ii. monethes at home.

The frame & forme of þe temple porche and aulter. &c.

AND it came to passe, the foure hūdrēd & foure score yere (after the childre of Israel were come out of þe lāde of Egypt) * & þe in þe fourth yere of the raigne of Salomon vpon Israel, & the seconde moneth called * zif, þe he * began to bylde þe tēple vnto þe Lorde. And þe house whiche Salomon bylte for the Lorde, was thre score cubites long and twentye brode, & thyrtye cubites hye. And the * porche that was before the bodie of the temple, was twentie cubites lōg, after þe measure of þe bredeth of the house, & ten brode, euen at þe verye ende of þe house. And he made vnto the house windowes to open and shutte.

And vnder þe walles of the house he made galaries rounde aboute, bothe rounde aboute the temple and also the quere. And so made syde rōnde about. And the nethermoste galarie was .v. cubytes brode, & the myddle galarie vi. And the thirde. vii. cubites brode. For he made the walles without wher on the beames lay, euer thinner & thinner, so that they were not fastened in the walles of the house. And the house was bylte of stone, made perfecte all readye yer it was broughte thither, so that there was neither hammer oz axe ether anye tole of yron heard in the house, whyle it was in byldynge.

B And the doore of the middle galarie was in þe ende of þe house on the righte syde. And men went by with windyng steares into the myddle galarie, and out of the middle into þe thyrde. And so he bylte the house, and finished it, and roufte it with beames of Cedar timber, made holow and ioyned together. And then he bylt chambers ouer al the temple of fyue cubytes heygth, & coupled the house together with beames of Cedar.

And the worde of the Lorde came to Salomon, sayinge: concernynge the house whiche thou art in byldynge, yf thou wylte walke in myne ordinaunces, and execute my lawes, and kepe all my commaundementes, to walcke in thē: Then wyl I make good vnto thee, my promysse * whiche I promysed Dauid thy father. * And I wyl dwel amonge the children of Israel, and wyl not forsake my people Israel. And so therfore Salomon bylte the house and finished it, and syled the walles of the house within, with ribbes of Cedar tre: euen from the pauemente vnto þe rouffe dyd he syle it within, and borded the floure of the house with planckes of firre.

And he syled twentie cubytes in the ende of the temple bothe floore & walles, wth bordes of Cedar, and dressed it within to be the quere & place most holye. And þe first house, that is to say, the body of þe tēple wout, was fourtie cubites longe. And the Cedar of þe house within, was karued wyth knoppes, & grauen with floures, & all was Cedar timber, so that no stone was sene. And the quere þe was within the temple, he prepared to set there the arcke of þe appoyntment of the Lorde. And the quere before, was .xx. cubytes longe, and twentie in bredeth, & twentie in height. And syled it with pure golde, and borded the aulter with Cedar.

And Salomon siled the house within also with pure golde. And he made golden barres runne along the quere, whiche he had couered with gold. And the whole house, he ouerlayde wyth golde, vntyll he had ended it. And the aulter that was in the quere, he ouerlayde with golde also.

And within the quere he made two * Cherubins of oliue tre, tē cubites hye a pece, and euery wyngē fyue cubites longe: so that frō the vttermoost part of þe one wyngē vnto the vttermoost part of the other, were ten cubytes.

And the other Cherub was ten cubytes hye also: so that both Cherubes were of one measure and one syle. The heygth of the one Cherub was ten cubites, & so was it of the other. And he put the Cherubes in the middle of the inner house. * And the Cherubes stretchyd their wynges, so that the one wyngē of the one touched the one wal, and the one wyng of the other touched the other wall. And the other two wynges of the touched one another in the myddes of the house. And he ouerlaped the Cherubes with golde.

And all the walles of the house rounde aboute, he garnyshe w worke of Cherubes and paulme trees, and graue floures, bothe within the quere, and wythoute in the temple. And the floure of the house he couered w golde bothe within the quere and also wythoute the temple. And in the enterpyng of the quere he made two dozes of olyue tree, wyth the bypper and two syde postes fyue square. And the two dozes of olyue tree, he graued the w grauing of Cherubes, and paulme trees: and graued floures, and couered them with golde, and layde golde ouer the Cherubes and also the paulme trees. And in like maner vnto the doze of the temple, he made postes of olyue tree. iiii. square, and two dozes of fyre tree, and ether doze wyth two foldyng leues, & graued theron Cherubes paulme trees, and floures, and couered them with golde made playne by a cuelar.

And then he bylte the inner courte wyth thre rowes of hewed stone, and one rowe of Cedar woode.

In the fourthe yere of hys raygne was the foundation of the house of the Lorde layde, euen in the moneth of *zif, and in the xi. yere of the moneth *bul, which is y. viii. moneth, it was fulfilled in all that pertayned therto, & fashioned as it shuld be in al poyntes: and so was he. vii. yere in byldyng of it.

The. vii. Chapter.

The byldyng of the house of Salomon. The house of Pharaos daughter. The forme of the pylars of brasse, of the brasse Sea. &c.

AND Salomon bilt his owne house in. xiii. yere space, and ful finished it. And he bylte the house of the woode of Libanon, an hundred cubites longe, and fiftie brode, & thyrtye hie, foure square with rowes of Cedar pylars, & Cedar beames alonge vpon the pylars. And y. rouffe was Cedar aboue an hie vpon the beames that laye an hie on the pylars, whych pylars were fourtye and fyue in nobre, fyftene on a row, and y spaces betwene the pylars were one agaynste an other thre folde. And all the doozes wyth syde postes were foure square, one agaynst another thre folde.

And he made a porche of pylars fyfte cubites longe, and thyrtye cubites brode: and yet a porche before that w pylars, and a thycke pylar before that. Then he made a porche to syt and iudge in, fylled with Cedar thorow out al the pauimētes. And hys owne house (where he kepte resydence in another courte wythoute the porche) was of the same worcke. And then Salomon made an house for Pharaos daughter, whiche he had taken to wyfe, lyke vnto that porche.

And all these thynges were of ryche stones hewed after a measure, and sawed wyth sawes within & wythoute, euen frome the foundation vnto that wheron the beames were layde, and on the out syde therto towarde the greate courte. And the foundation was of ryche stones, and y mightie great stones, of ten cubites, & of eyghte. And aboue were ryche stones hewed accordyng to the same lyse, and also with Cedar. And the greate courte rounde aboute was with thre rowes of hewed stones and one rowe of Cedar planckes. And lyke wyse was it in the ynnier courte of the house of y Lorde, & of the porche of the temple. * And kyng Salomon sent and fet one Hiram out of Tyre, a wise sonne of the trybe of Nephtalim, his father beyng of Tyre. Which Hiram was a craftes man in brasse, and * full of wysdome, vnderstandyng and connyng, to woorkke all maner of woorkke in brasse. And he came to kyng Salomon, and wroughte al hys woorkke. He caste two * pylars of brasse, of. xviii. cubites a pece hie, and a stryng of. xii. cubites myghte compassse ether of the aboute. And he made two heed peces of molten brasse, to set on the toppes of the pylars, of fyue cubytes longe a pece, w garlandes of broded woorkke, and whopes of chayne woorkke for the heed peces that were on the pylars. vii. for the one & vii. for y other. And he made the pylars, and for ether of the heed peces a garland with two two rowes of pomegranetes to couer the wal. And the heed peces that were on the toppes of þe pyllars were wrought with lilies in þe porche the space of foure cubites of them. And þe pomegranetes aboue & benethe on the wrethen chaynes that compassed the middle of the heed peces were in nombze two hundred on ether heed pece. And he set vp the pyllars in the porche of the temple, and when he had sette vp the ryghte pyller, he called þe name therof Jachin, and when he had set vp the left pyller he called the name thereof Boaz. And the toppes of the pyllers were thus wrought with lilies, and so was their workmanshpype finished.

* Then he cast a sea of brasle, ten cubites wyde from brim to brim & round in compasse, and fyue cubites hye. And a strynge of .xxx. cubytes might compassed it about, and vnder the brim of it as it were apples compassed and embzased the sea of ten cubytes wyde in two rowes caste wyth it when it was cast. And it stode on twelue oxen: of which the thre looked North, the thre Weste, the thre South, & the thre East, & the sea on hie vpon them, & al their hynder partes were inwarde. And it was an hand breadeth thicke, and the brim wrought lyke the brim of a cuppe with floures of lilies. And it contayned * two thousande Bathes.

it. par. iiii. a

And he made ten botomes of brasle, foure cubytes longe, & foure cubytes brode a pece, & thre hye. And the worck of the botomes was on thys maner, that þe sydes were as it were flat bordes betwene the ledges. And on the flat bordes betwene the ledges were lyons, oxen and Cherubes. And vpon the ledges that were aboue: and benethe the lions & oxen, was ioyned pendat worke. And euerye botome had foure brasen wheles, whose axeltrees were also of brasle. And in the foure corners were vnderfettlers vnder the lauatozpe caste eche ouer agaynst hys felowe.

And the stalcke of the lauatozpe was in the myddle of the botome one cubite hye, and a cubyt and an halfe rōude, and it had knoppes there on in þe bare places whiche were foure square not rōunde. And vnder þe sydes were foure wheles and their axeltrees ioyned fast to the botome. And the heygth of euery whele was a cubyte and an halfe. And the workemanshpype of the wheles was lyke the worke of a charet whele. And the axeltrees, the nanelles, spokes and shaftes were all molten. And the foure vnderfettlers in the foure corners were of the verpe botomes.

And vnder the stalcke of the lauatozpe in the myddes of the botome was there a rōunde fote of halfe a cubyte hye. And thereon playne places and ledges of the self. And he graued in the playne and also on the ledges, Cherubes, Lyons and paulme trees, euerye where rōunde aboute. And on this manner he made the tenne botomes caste worck: al of one measure, and one lise. Then he made tenne lauiers of brasle, contaynyng fouertye Bathes a pece, and they were of foure cubytes a pece, for euery one of þe botomes a lauer. And he put fyue of those botomes on the ryghte corner of the temple, and other fyue on the lefte: And putte the sea on the ryghte corner of the temple Eastwarde and towarde the South.

And Hiram made pottes, Houelles, and basons, and so finished all the worcke that he made kyng Salomon for the house of the Lorde: That is to saye, two pyllars, and two skalpes of the heades that were on the toppes of the two pyllars, and foure hundred pomegranetes vpon two wrethes, two rowes on ether wrethe, to couer the two skalpes of the heades that were on the toppes of the two pyllars: And the ten botomes of brasle with ten lauiers vpon them: and a sea with twelue oxen vnder it: And pottes Houelles and basens. And all these vesselles whych Hiram made to kyng Salomon for the house of þe Lorde were of bryght brasle. And in the playne of Jordan dyd the kyng caste them: Euen in the clape of the earthe betwene Socoh and zarthā. And Salomon left al the vesselles brylliant, for the exceadinge abundaunce of brasle that was in them.

* And Salomon made all the vesselles that pertayned vnto þe house of the Lorde: The aulter of golde, and the table of golde wheron the shewe bread

And so was ended all the worke that kyng Salomon made for the house of the Lord. And the * Salomō brought in the thynges whiche Dauid his father had dedicated in syluer, golde and other vesselles, and put the to the treasure of the house of the Lord.

The. viii. Chapter.

The Arcke is borne in to the temple. A Cloude fylleth the temple. The Temple is blessed.

Then * Salomon gathered the elders of Israel, all the heedes of the trybes and auncient Lordes of y childre of Israel, vnto him to Ierusalem, to byngge by the Arcke of the apoyntment of the Lord, * oute of the cytie of Dauid, which is Sion. And all the men of Israel assembled vnto king Salomō, to the feast that falleth in the moneth * Ethanim, which is the seuēth moneth. And when all the elders of Israel were come, y prestes toke by the Arcke of the Lord, and brought it and also the tabernacle of witnesse: and all the holpe vesselles that were therein. And the prestes & the Leuites brought them by. And kyng Salomon, and all the congregacion of Israel, that were assembled, and wēt with him before the Arcke, byd offer shepe and oxen, that coulde not be tolde nor nōbred for multitude.

And so the prestes brought the Arcke of the apoyntment of the Lord vnto his place: eue into the quere of the temple, and place most holy, vnder the wynges of the Cherubes. For y Cherubes stretched oute their wynges ouer the Arcke, and couered bothe it, and also y staues therof a hye vpon it. Now be it the staues were so longe that the endes of the appered out of the holy place before the quere, but were not sene without. And there they be vnto this daye. And there was a nothyng in the Arcke * save the two tables of itone whiche Moses put there at Horeb, when the Lord made an appoyntment with the chyldren of Israel after they were come out of Egypt.

And whē the prestes were come out of the Holy place, then a cloude fylled the house of the Lord, that the prestes coulde not endure to minister, because of the cloude: for the glorie of the Lord had fylled the house of the Lord. Then spake Salomon: the Lord sayd, * that he wolde dwell in darkenesse. I haue bylt the an house to dwell in, & an habitacion for y to abide in for euer. And the kyng turned his face, & blessed all the congregacion of Israel, all the cōgregacion standyng. And he sayde.

Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, which hath fulfilled * with his * hand, that he spake with his mouthe vnto Dauid my father, sayinge: frō the daye I brought my people Israel out of Egypt, I chose no cytie amonge any of the tribes of Israel, to buyld an house, that my name myghte be there: But I haue chosen * Dauid, to be ruler ouer my people Israel.

And it was in the hert of Dauid my father, to bylde an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel. But the Lord God sayde vnto Dauid my father: in y it was in thyne hert to bylde an house for my name, thou dydest well, that thou wast so mynded. Nevertheless y shalt not bylde the house, but thy sonne that shal come out of thy loynes, he shall bylde an house for my name. And the Lord hath made good his word that he spake. For I stode by in the rowme of Dauid my father, and sate on the seate of Israel, as the Lord promised, and haue bylt an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel. And I haue prepared therein a place for the Arcke, wherein the couenaunt of the Lord is, which he made with oure fathers, after he had brought them out of the land of Egypt. And Salomon stode before the aultare of the lord in y sight of al y cōgregaciō of Israel, & stretched out his handes to heuē, & sayde: * Lord

Salomon iii. Kynges.

God of Israel, there is no God like the in heuen aboue, or in the erthe benethe, that kepest appointmēt & mercye w thy seruaūtes that walcke before the w all their hertes: which also hast kepte with thy seruaūtes Dauid my father, & thou promisedst him. Thou spakest with thy mouthe, & hast fulfilled w thyne hand, as it is come to passe this daye. And now lord God of Israel, kepe with thy seruaunt Dauid my father, that & promisedst him, saying: * thou shalt not be without one or other before me, sitting on the seate of Israel: How be it yf thy childzen shall take hede to thei wayes & they walcke before me, as thou hast walcked before me. Now then (O lord God) of Israel, let thy worde be stable which thou spakest vnto thy seruaunt Dauid my father.

But in dede can God dwelle on the erthe: Beholde * nether heuē, nor heuen aboue all heuens are able to contayne the: how muche lesse thē this house that I haue bylt: but loke to the prayer of thy seruaunt, and his supplicacion (O Lord my God) to geue an eare vnto the voyce and prayer whiche thy seruaunt prayeth before the this daye, that thyn eyes maye be open vpon this house, night and daye, and vpon the place, (of which thou hast sayd: * my name shall be there:) that thou herke vnto the prayer which thy seruaunt shall praye in this place. And herken vnto the supplicaciō of thy seruaunt and of thy people Israel, which they shall praye in this place: And heare thou vp vnto heuen thy dwelling place, & when & hearest, haue mercye. * And yf any man trespace agaynst his neybour, and his neybour * take an adiuraciō to adiure him with all, & the adiuraciō come before thyn aultare at this house, then herken thou vp to heuē, & worke and iudge thy seruaūtes, that thou condēpne the wycked to bring his waye vpon his head, & iustifie the righteous, to geue him accordynge to his rightwisnesse. * When thy people Israel be put to & worste before thei enemyes, because they haue synned agaynst the, & afterwarde turne agayne to & prayse thy name, & praye & make supplicaciō vnto & i this house: the heare thou vp to heuen, & be mercifull full vnto & synne of thy people Israel, & bring the agayne vnto the lād, which thou gauest vnto their fathers.

* If heauen be shut vp, that there be no rayne, because they haue synned agaynst the: yet yf they praye i this place, and prayse thy name and turne from their synnes, thorow thy shourgyng of them: then heare thou vp to heauē and be mercifull vnto the synne of thy seruaūtes and of thy people Israel, that thou shewe them a good waye to walke in, & geue rayne vpon thy lād, that thou hast geuen vnto thy people to enheryt.

If there chaunce darth in the land, pestilence, blastynge, or wytherynge of corne, or that the frutes be deuoured of Grasshoppers or Caterpillers, or yf their enemyes belege them in the lande and in their owne cyties, or whatsoeuer plage or sycknesse chaunce: * then heare thou vp to heauen thy dwelling place, all the prayers and supplicaciōs that shall be made of all men thorow out all the people Israel, whiche shall knowlege euery man the plage of his owne hert, and stretche forth his hādes vnto this house, and be mercifull, and worke, and giue euery man accordynge to his wayes (euen as & onely knowest euery mannes hert, for thou knowest the hertes of all the childzen of Adam) that they maye feare the as longe as they lyue vpon the erth which thou gauest vnto their fathers. * And when Salomon had made an ende of praying all this prayer, & supplication vnto the Lorde, he arose from before the aultare of the Lorde, and stoode kneeling on his knees, and stretchyng of his handes bp to heauē & stode & blessed all the cōgregacyon of Israel with a loude voyce, sayinge: Blessed be the Lorde that hath geuen reste vnto his people Israel, accordyng to all that he promised: * so y there is not one worde

And the Lorde our God be with vs, as he was with our fathers, and forsake vs not nether leue vs: but that he bowe our hertes vnto hym, to walcke in all his wayes, & to kepe his commaundementes, ordinaunces and customes, which he commaunded our fathers. And these my wordes which I haue prayed before the lord, be nye vnto the Lorde our God, daye and nyght, that he defende the cause of his seruauant, and of his people Israel euermore, that all nacyns of the erth maye knowe that the Lorde, he is God and none but he. And I praye God that your hertes maye be sounde with the Lorde our God, to walke in his ordinaunces and to kepe his lawes as we do this daye.

And the kyng & all Israel with him, offered offerynges before the Lorde. * And the peaceofferynges that Salomon offered vnto the Lorde, were. xii. thousande oxen & an hundred a twenty thousand shepe: And so the kyng & all the childe of Israel dedicated y house of the Lorde. And the same daye y kyng halowed the myddle of the courte, that is before the house of y Lorde: for there he offered burnt offerynges, & meate offerynges, & the fat of the peaceofferynges, because the brasen aultare y was before the lord, was to lytle to receaue the burnt offerynges, & meate offerynges, and the fat of the peaceofferynges.

And Salomon helde that same tyme an hye feast and all Israel with him, a myghtie congregacion, euen from the costes of Hemath vnto the ryuer of Egipte, before the Lorde our God, * seue dayes, and yet seue dayes, that is, xiiii. dayes. And the. viii. daye he sent y people awaye. And they blessed the kyng & went vnto their tetes ioyously, and glad in herte for all the goodnesse that the Lorde had shewed vnto Dauid his seruauant, and to Israel his people.

And when kyng Salomō had made the house perfecte, he made shippes in Azion Gaber, whiche is belyde Cloth, on the byncke of the red sea, in the lād of Edom. And Hiram sent by shippe also of his seruauntes, that were shipmē, & expert in the sea, with the seruauntes of Salomon. And they went to Ophir, and fet from thence gold, to the summe of. iiii. hundred and. xxii. talentes, and brought it to Salomon.

AND y<sup>e</sup> quene of Saba heard of the wysdome of Salomon (concernyng the name of the Lorde) & came to proue him with rydelles. And she came to Ierusalem with a mightie great multitude of Camelles that bare swete odoures, & golde excedyng muche, and p̄cious stones. And when she was come to Salomō, she comuned with hym of all that was in her hert. And Salomō expounded her all her questions, so that there was not one thyng hyd from the king, which he expounded her not.

And when the quene of Saba had sene all Salomōs wisdome, & the house that he had bylt, & the meate of his table, & the spttynge of his seruauntes, & the standing of his seruitoures & theire apparell, & his buttelers, and his sacrifice that he offered in the house of the Lorde, she was astounded. Then she sayd to the kyng: the word I hearde in myne owne lande of thy dedes and wisdome, is true. How be it I beleued it not, tyll I came & sawe it with myne eyes. And se, the one halfe was not tolde me: for thy wisdome and goodnesse excedeth the fame whiche I hearde. Happy are thy men: and happye are these thy seruauntes, which stande euer before the, and heare thy wisdome. And blessed be the Lorde thy God, whiche had a lust to the, to set the on the seate of Israel, because the Lorde loued Israel for euer, & therfore made the kyng, to do equite and ryght wisnesse.

And she gaue the kyng an hundred and. xx. talentes of golde, and of swete odoures excedyng muche, and p̄cious stones. There came neuer after suche aboundance of swete odoures as the Quene of Saba gaue to king Salomō. And therto the * shippes of Hiram that brought golde from Ophir, brought from Ophir great plenty of * Almuge tre, & p̄cious stones. And kyng Salomō made of the Almuge trees pillers in the house of the Lorde, & in the kynges palace, & made harpes & psalteries for syngers. There came no more suche Almuge tre, nor was anye more sene vnto this daye. And kyng Salomon gaue vnto the Quene of Saba all her desyre that she asked of him: besydes that he gaue her with his owne hande. And so she returned vnto her owne countrey with her seruauntes.

l.iii. And

Rehoboam, iii. Kynges Jeroboam

And they sent & called him: and so Jeroboam and all the congregacion of Israel came, and spake vnto Rehoboam, sayinge: thy father made oure yocke greuous, but now make thou the greuouser seruice of thy father and his sore yocke which he put vpon vs, lyghter, and so we will serue the. And he sayde vnto them: depart yet for the space of thre dayes, and then come agayne to me. And the people departed.

And kyng Rehoboam toke counsell with the olde men that stode before Salomon his father, while he yet liued, & sayd: what counsell geue ye, to answer this people with all? And they sayde vnto him: If thou shalt be a seruaunt vnto this people this daye, & serue them and answer them & speake kynde wordes to them: they will be thy seruauntes for euer. But he leste the counsell, that the olde men had geuen him, and counceled with the yonge men, & were nourished vp with him, and had wayted on him.

And he sayde vnto them: what counsell geue ye, to answer this people with all, whiche haue communed wth me, sayinge: make the yocke whiche thy father dyd put vpon vs, lyghter. And the yonge men that were brought vp with him, answered him, sayinge: this people that haue sayde vnto the: thy father made oure yocke heuie, make thou it vs lyghter: thus answered they.

My lyttle synger shalbe wayghtier than my fathers loynes. And now where as my father put a greuous yocke vpon you, I will make it heuier. For where my father corrected you with scourges, I will chastise you with scorpions. And when Jeroboam: and all the people were come to Rehoboam the thyrde daye, as the kyng apoynted them, sayinge: come to me agayne this daye thre dayes the kyng answered the people churlyshly, and leste the aduise that olde men gaue him: and spake to them after the counsell of the yonge men sayinge: My father made youre yocke greuous, but I will make it greuouser. For where my father chastised you with whippes, I will chastise you with scorpions. And so the kyng hearkened not vnto the people: for & turning awaye was which the Lord sayd by Ahiah the Silonite vnto Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat.

And when all Israel saw that the kyng regarded them not, the people answered the kyng a gayne, sayinge: we haue no parte in Dauid, nor inheritaunce in the sonne of David. * To youre tentes therefore Israel, and nowe se to thine owne house Dauid. And so Israel departed vnto their tentes. Howe be it, ouer the chyldren of Israel whiche dwelt in the cite of Iuda, dyd Rehoboam raigne still. Then kyng Rehoboam sent Adoram the receauer of the tribute. And all Israel stoned him to death with stones. But kyng Rehoboam made spede and gat him vp to his charet & fled to Ierusalem. And so Israel departed fro the house of Dauid vnto this daye. And when all Israel heard that Jeroboam was come agayne, they sent and called him vnto the congregacion, and made him kyng ouer Israel: so there folowed the house of Dauid, but the trybe of Iuda only. * And when Rehoboam was come to Ierusalem, he gathered all the house of Iuda and the trybe of Benjamin an hundred and foure skore thousande of chosen men and good warryours, to fyght against the house of Israel, and to bringe the kyngdome agayne to Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon.

Then came the worde of the Lord vnto Semeiah the man of God, sayinge: speake vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Iuda, and vnto all the house of Iuda and Benjamin, and the remnant of the people, and saye. Thus saythe the Lord: go not vp, nor yet fyght agaynst youre brethren the chyldren of Israel, but retorne euerie man to his house, for this doinge is of the Lord. And they obeyed the worde of the Lord and returned and departed accordyng to the worde of the Lord. Then Jeroboam bylt Sichem in mount Ephraim, and dwelt therein. And went from thence * and bylt Phanael.

And Jeroboam thought in his hert: nowe myght the kyngdome retorne to the house of Dauid agayne. For yf this people shall go vp and do sacrifice in the house of the Lord at Ierusalem, then shall their hertes turne agayne vnto their theit Lorde Rehoboam kinge of Iuda. And so shall they kyl me and go againe to Rehoboam king of Iuda.* Whereupon the kinge toke counsell, and made two calues of golde and sayde vnto the people: ye shal not nede to go any moze to Ierusalem.* Beholde, your gods O Israell whiche brought you out of the lande of Egipte. And he put the one in Bethel, and the other in Dan. And that doing was a cause of sine. And the people wente befoze the one as far as Dan. And he made houses of hylaulters* and made of y lowest of the people preestes, whiche were not of the sonnes of Leui. And Jeroboam made a feaste the .xv. daye of the .viij. moneth, lyke vnto the feaste that was in Iuda, and offered on the aultar. And so dyd he in Bethell, to offer vnto the calues that he had made. And he put in Bethel the preestes of the hylaulters, whiche he had made. And he offered burnt offeringe vpon the aulter, whiche he had made in Bethell, the .xv. daye of the .viij. moneth, whiche he had imaged of his owne hearte: and made a solempne feast vnto the chyldre of Israell, and wente vp to the aulter to burne sacrifice.

The xliij. Chapter.

Jeroboam sacrificyng vnto Calues is reprehended of the Prophete. His hande dyeth by whyle he putteth it out against the prophet. The Prophet is kyled and buried.

And beholde, there came a man of God out of Iuda (with y word of God) to Bethel, as Jeroboam stode by the aulter to offer, and cried against the aulter at the comaundemente of y Lord, and said: O aulter, aulter, thus saith y Lord. Behold, a childe shall bee bozne of the house of Dauid, (Josiah by name)

* which vpon the shal offer the pziestes of the hylaulters y sacrifice vpon thee, and shall burne mens bones vpon thee. And he gaue the same tyme a signe, sayinge: thys is the signe of y the Lord hath promised. Beholde, the aulter shal rent, & the ashes y are in it shal fal oute.

And when the kinge heard the saying of the manne of God (which he cryed against the aulter in Bethell) he stretched out his hande from the aulter, sayinge: holde him. And his hande which he put forth toward him, dyed bp, that he coulde not pull it in againe to him: & the aulter claue, and the ashes ran out of the aulter, accordyng to the token which the manne of God had geuen at the commaundement of the Lorde. And the kinge answered, and sayd vnto the man of God: * Oh praye vnto the Lord thy God & make intercessio for me, that my hande maye be restored me againe. And the man of god besought the Lord and his hande came to him againe, as well as befoze.

Then sayde the kyng vnto the man of God: come home with me, and refrefh thy selfe, and I wyll geue the a reward. But the man of god answered the king, yf thou wouldest geue me halfe thynne house, I woulde not go with the: nether woulde I eate meate or dryncke water in this place. For so was it charged me, eate no breade nor dryncke water, nor turne againe by y same way thou wentest. And so he went a nother waye and returned not by the waye he came to Bethell. And there dwelte an olde prophet in Bethel, whose sonnes came and tolde him all the workes, that the man of God had done that daye in Bethell, and the wordes whiche he spake vnto the kinge, they tolde theyr father also. And their father sayde to them: what waye went he: for his sonnes had sene what waye the man of God went, which came from Iuda. Then sayde he to his sonnes: saddle myne Ass. And they saddled him an Ass. And he gat him bp thereon, and wente after the manne of God, and founde hym syttinge vnder an Ocke, & sayde vnto hym: arte thou the manne of God that camest from Iuda: And he sayd, yea.

Then he sayd to him: come home with me, and eate breade. And the other said againe: I maye not returne with the, to go with the, nether maye I eate breade or dryncke water with the in this place. For it was sayde to me by the commaundement of the LORD, eate no bread, nor dryncke water in thys place, nor turne againe by the waye thou wentest. And the olde prophet sayde vnto him: I am a prophet as well as thou, and an Angell spake vnto me with the word

And he cryed vnto the manne of God that came from Iuda, saying: thus sayth the Lord: because thou hast disobeyed the mouth of the Lord, and hast not kept the commaundement which the Lord thy God commaunded the, but camest backe againe, and hast eaten breade, and dranke water, in the place in which he had thee thou shouldest eate no breade nor drinke water: therefore thy carcas shall not come vnto the sepulchre of thy fathers.

iii. reg. 17. f.

And when he had eaten breade, and drinke, he sadled an Asse for the prophete which he had brought agayne. And as he journeyed, a Lyon met hym by the waye, and flue him, and his carcas laye a longe in the waye, and the Asse stode thereby, and the Lyon stode by the coorse also. And men that passed by, sawe the carcas cast a longe in the waye, and the Lyon standinge thereby, and went & told it in the towne wher the olde prophete dwelte. And when the prophete was broughte him backe againe fro the way, hearde therof, he sayd: it is the ma of God: which disobeyed the mouth of the Lord. And therefore the Lord hath deliuered him vnto the Lion which hath rent him and slayne hym, accordyng to the worde of the Lord, which he sayd to him. And he sayde to his sonnes: saddle me an Asse: and so they dyd. And he went and founde the bodye cast alonge in the waye, and the Asse and the Lion standinge therby. And the Lion had not eate the carcas nor hurt the Asse. And he toke vp the body of the man of God and put it vpon the Asse, and brought it againe, & came to the city of the old prophete to lament hym, and to burye hym. And he laid his body in his owne graue, and lained ouer him, Oh my brother.

chre wherin the man of God is buried, & lay my bones by his. * For the saying which he cried at the bidding of the Lord against the aulter in Bethel, & againste all the houses of hilaulters whiche are in the ctyes of Samaria, shall come to passe.

4. reg. 23. b.

Howe be it, for all that, Jeroboam turned not from his wicked waye: but turned away and made of the lowest of the people preestes of the hilaulters. Whosoener woulde, he killed their handes, & they became preestes of the hilaulters. And this doing was sine vnto the house of Jeroboam, euen to destroye it, and to put it awaye from of the face of the erthe.

The. xliij. Chapter.

Jeroboams wyfe asketh counsell of Ahiah the prophet, which propheseth vnto her the death of her child & the destruction of all the Reaulme. Jeroboam dyeth. Sesak king of Egypte robbeth the house of the Lord. Rehoboam dyeth and Abiam succeedeth him.

That tyme Ahiah the sonne of Jeroboam fell sicke. And Jeroboam said vnto his wyfe: by a felowship, and chaunge thine apparell, that thou be not knowen to be the wyfe of Jeroboam, and get thee to Siloh. For there is Ahiah the prophet which told me that I shoulde be kynge ouer this people. And take with thee ten loues and cracknelles, and a cruse of honye, and go to him: for he wil tel the what shal come of the ladde. And Jeroboams wyfe dyd so: she arose, and wente to Siloh and came to the house of Ahiah. But Ahiah coulde not see, for his eyes were waxen dymme for age.

Howe be it al Israell shal mourne him, and burye hym, for thys onely of all Jeroboam shal come to the sepulchre, because in hym there is founde goodnesse towarde the Lord God of Israell in the house of Jeroboam.

Moreouer, the Lorde shal stryke him by a kyng euer Israell which shal destroye the house of Jeroboam in that daye. And what is that that is nowe in hande: And the Lord shal smyte Israell, as a rede that groweth in the water is shaken, and wyll wede Israell oute of thys good lande (whiche he gaue to theyr fathers) and will skatter them beyond Euphrates, because they haue made them groues, to angre the Lord. And he wyll geue Israell by, because of the synnes of Jeroboam, wherewith he dyd synne, and made Israell synne thereto.

And Jeroboams wife arose and departed and wente to Thersah, & by that she was come to the thersholde of the doore, the lad was deade. And all Israell buried him, & lamented hym, according to the worde of the LORD whiche he spake by the hande of hys seruante Ahiah the prophet. And the reste of the dedes of Jeroboam, howe he warred, and howe he raygned, are wytten in the booke of the stories of the kinges of Israell. And the dayes whiche Jeroboam raygned, were. xxiij. yere. And then he rested with his fathers, and Nadab his sonne raygned in his steade.

And Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon raygned in Iuda, & was. xli. yere. I olde when he beganne to raygne, and raygned. xlii. yere in Ierusalem (the citie whych the Lorde had chose out of all þ trybes of Israell, to put his name ther.) His mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite. And Iuda wroughte wickednesse in the syght of the Lorde, and angred him aboue al that theyr fathers dyd, with theyr sinne whiche they synned. For they also made them hyl aulters, and Images, and groues on euery hye hil, & vnder euery grene tree. And thereto there was a stues of male chyldren in þ land, & they did according to all the abhominacions of þ nations whiche þ Lord cast out before the chyldren of Israell. And þ fiftie yere of king Rehoboam came Sisack kinge of Egypt by to Ierusalem, & toke awaye the treasures of the house of þ Lorde, & the treasures of the kinges house, and al þ was to bee had. And he toke awaye the shildes of gold which Salomõ made. In whose steade kyng Rehoboã made brassen shildes, and put them in the keeping of the captaynes of þ garde, which waited at the doore of the kinges house. And as ofte as the kinge wente into the house of þ Lord, they of his garde bare them, and euer brought them againe into the garde chamber.

The rest of the Actes of king Rehoboam, and all he dyd, are wytten in the booke of the Actes of the kinges of Iuda. And there was warre betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam al theyr lyues. And Rehoboam layde him to rest with hys fathers, and was buried with hys fathers in the cytie of Dauid. And hys mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite. And Abiam hys sonne raygned in his steade.

The rest of the dedes of Baasa, and what he dyd, and his power, are wyrtten in the booke of the histories of the kynges of Israel. And Baasa fell on slepe with hys fathers, and was buryed in Therzah. And Elah his sonne raigned in his steade. And therto thow the Prophet Jehu the sonne of Hanani, the word of the Lorde came agaynst Baasa, and agaynst hys house, because of all the wyckednesse that he dyd in the sight of the Lorde, (in angeringe hym with his workes of his handes) that he should be lyke the house of Jeroboam, because he had kylled Nabat.

The. xvi. yere of Asa kyng of Iuda beganne Elah, the sonne of Baasa to raigne ouer Israel in therzah, and continued two yere. And his seruaunt Zimri capitaine of halfe his charettes, conspired agaynst him, as he was in Therzah drynckynge of stronge dryncke, in the house of Arza stuarde of hys house in Therzah. And Zimri came and smote him, and kylled hym the. xviij. yere of Asa kyng of Iuda, and raygned in his steade. And as sone as he was kyng, and sat on his seat, he stue al the house of Baasa, and lefte not a piler agaynst a wall.

And thereto he stue all hys kynne and frendes, and so Zimri destroyed al the house of Baasa, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde whiche he spake to Baasa thow Jehu the Prophete, for all the synnes of Baasa and synnes of Elah his sonne, wherwith they synned and made Israel synne, to angre the Lorde God of Israel with their vanities. The rest of the dedes of Elah and all he did, are wyrtten in the chronicles of the kynges of Israel.

The. xvij. yere of Asa kyng of Iuda, Zimri raygned. viij. dayes in Therzah, the people beseging Gebethon a cite of the Philistines. And whē the people that laye in the seage, hearde saye howe Zimri had conspired, and how he had slayne the kyng also: then all Israel made Zimri (the captayne of the men of warre) kyng that same daye ouer Israel euen in the hoste. And Zimri departed from Gebethon, and all Israel with hym, and beleaged Therzah. And when Zimri saw that the city must nedes be taken, he went into the palaice of the kynges house, and set the kynges house afyre vpon hym selfe and there dyed, for hys synnes whiche he synned, in doynge wyckednesse in the syghte of the the Lorde, and for walkynge in the way of Jeroboam and in his synnes whiche he dyd, and made Israel sinne.

C The reste of the Actes of Amri, and the treason that he wrought, are wyrtten in the boke of the chronicles of the kynge of Israel. Moreover that same season was Israel deuyded in twayne, for halfe the people folowed Thebni the sonne of Gineh, to make him kynge. And the other halfe folowed Amri. But the people that folowed Amri, preyayled against them þe folowed Thebni the sonne of Gineh. And so Thebni dyed, and Amri raigned.

F The .xxxi. yere of Asa kynge of Iuda, beganne Amri to raygne ouer Israell. .xii. yere, and he ruled. vi. yere in Thersah. And he bought the hill of Samaria of one Semar for two hundred talentes of syluer, and buylt in the hyll, & called the name of the city which he had buylt Samaria after the name of Semar, the Lord of the hyll. And this Amri wroughte wickednesse in the eyes of the Lorde, worse then all that were before hym, and walked in all the wayes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, and in his synnes, wherwith he made Israell synne, to angre the Lord God of Israell with theyr vanyties. The reste of the actes of Amri, which he did, and his power that he bled, are wyrtten in the chronicles of þe kinges of Israell. And Amri layde hym to, reste wyth hys father, and was buryed in Samaria, and Ahab hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

C The .xxxviii. yere of Asa kynge of Iuda, beganne Ahab the sonne of Amri to raygne ouer Israel, and raygned in Samaria. .xxii. yere. And he dyspleased the Lord aboue al that wer before him. For it semed him a light thing to walke in the sinne of Jeroboam þe sonne of Nabat. But toke Jezabell the doughter of Ethbaal kyng of the Sidonites to wife, and went and serued Baal, and bowed vnto him. And he rered an aulter to Baal in the house of Baal, whiche he had made in Samaria. And Ahab made a groue, and proceeded farther in angeryng the Lord God of Israell, then all the kynge of Israell that were before hym.

In hys dayes Hiel of Bethell bylte Jericho. And it cost him Abira his eldest sonne when he layed the foundacion, and his youngest sonne Segub, wher he set vp the gates, agreynge vnto the word of the Lord which he spake by Josua the sonne of Nun.

And he went, & dyd accordig vnto the worde of Lorde: he went and dwelt by the brooke Barith that lyeth before Jordan. And the rauens broughte hym breade and fleshe euery morninge, and euery euynge, and he drancke of the brooke. And it chaunced after a while that the brooke dried vp, because there fell no rayne vpon the earth. Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto him, saying: * vp and get thee to Sarephtha a cite of Sidon, and dwell there. Beholde, I haue commaunded a wydowe there to sustayne the. And he arose: and went to Sarephtha. And when he came to the gate of the cite, there was a wedowe there gatherynge styckes. And he called to her, and sayde: * fet me I praye the, a litle water in a dish that I may drincke. And as she went to fet it, he cried to her, and sayde: brynge me I praye the, a morsell of breade in thyne hande. And she answered: as surely as the Lord God lyueth, I haue no breade, but euen an handfull of Mele in a pytcher, and a litle Oyle in a cruse. And se, I haue gathered a fewe styckes for to go & bake it for me and my sonne, that we maye eate it and then dye.

And Eliab sayde vnto her: feare not, but go and do as thou haste sayde: but make me therof a lytle cake fyrste of al, and bynge it out to me: and afterwarde make for the, and thy sonne. For thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israell: the pitcher of Mele shall not be wasted: neither shall thy oyle cruse be wout oyle, vntyll the Lorde haue sent rayne vpon the earthe. And she wente, and dyd as Eliab bad. And she and he, & her house dyd eate a good space, and the pytcher of Mele wasted not, neither was the oyle cruse without oyle, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde which he spake thorow Eliab.

And after these thynges, it happened that the sonne of y<sup>e</sup> wife of the house fell sicke. And his sicknesse was so sore, that there was no breathe left in him. Then sayde she vnto Eliab: what haue I to do with the, O thou man of God: arte thou come vnto me, that my synne shoulde bee thoughte on and my sonne slayne? And Eliab sayde vnto her: geue me thy sonne. And he toke hym oute of her lap and caried hym vp into a losse, where he laye, and layde him vpon hys owne hedde, and called vnto the Lorde, and sayde: O Lorde my God, hast thou bene so euell vnto y<sup>e</sup> wedow (with whom I sojourne) that thou haste slayne her sonne? And Eliab toke the boy & broughte hym downe out of the chamber into the house, and deliuered hym vnto hys mother, and sayde: se, thy sonne lyueth. Then the wyfe sayde to Eliab: now I knowe that thou arte Goddes manne, and that the worde of the LORDE in thy mouth, is truthe.

The. xliii. Chapter.

¶ Eliab is sende to Ahab. Abdiah hydereth an hundred prophetes & saureth them. Baal can not heare although the people crye very loude. Eliab kylleth all Baals prophetes: and after obtayneth rayne.

And at the laste the worde of the Lorde came to Eliab the thyrdere, saynge: go shew thy selfe vnto Ahab, that I maye sende rayne vpon thee arth. And Eliab went to shewe him selfe vnto Ahab, for there was a greete famphment in Samaria. Wherfore Ahab called Abdiah the gouernour of hys house: which Abdiah feared God greatlye: in so muche that when Jezabell destroyed the Prophetes of the Lorde, he toke an hundred of the Prophetes and hyd them, fiftie in one caue, and fyftie in a nother, and prouided bread & water, for them. And Ahab sayde vnto Abdiah: walke thorow the lande, vnto all fountaynes of water, and vnto all brookes, to se whether anye grasse maye be founde, that we maye saue the hoxses and the Mules, that we destroy not the beastes. And they deuyded the lande betwene them to walke thorow it. Ahab went one waye by hym selfe, and Abdiah went another waye by hym selfe.

And it chaunced as Abdiah went in the way, that Eliab met him. And Abdiah knew hym: and fel on his face, and sayd: art not thou my Lord Eliab. And he sayde vnto him: I am he. Go and tel Ahab that Eliab is here. And the other answered: what haue I synned, y<sup>e</sup> thou wouldest deliuer me into the hande of Ahab, to slep me? As surely as the Lord thy God lyueth, there is no nacion or kingdome, whether my Lord hathe not sent, to seke the. And when they sayde: thou wast not there, he toke an othe of the kyngdome and nacyon, because he founde the not. And now thou sayest: go tel thy Lorde, Eliab is here. And as sone as I am gone from the, the spirite of the Lorde shall carpe the away, whether I shall not knowe: and then when I haue gone and tolde Ahab, & then he can not fynde the, he shall slepe me. And yet I thy seruant haue feared y<sup>e</sup> Lorde from my young age. Was it not tolde my Lorde, what I dyd, when Jezabell slue the Prophetes of y<sup>e</sup> Lorde, how I hid an hundred of the Lordes prophetes, fyftie in one caue, and as many in another, and prouided them of bread, & water? And yet now thou sayest, go shewe thy Lorde, that Eliab is here, that he shoulde slepe me.

Then Eliab sayde: as trulye as the Lord of hostes liueth, before whom I stand: I wil shew my selfe vnto him this day. And ther vpo Abdiah went to mete Ahab Ahab & tolde hym. And Ahab wente agaynst Eliah. And when Ahab saw Eliah, he sayd vnto him: arte thou he that troubleth Israel? And he sayd: it is not I that troubleth Israel, but þe and thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken þe commaundementes of the Lorde, and hast folowed Baal. But now sende, and gather to me all Israell vnto mounte Carmel, & the Prophetes of Baal, four hundred & fiftie, & the Prophetes of the groves foure hundred, which eate of Jezabels table. And Ahab sente for all the chyldren of Israell, and gathered the Prophetes vnto mounte Carmell.

D And Eliah came vnto all the people, & sayd: why halt ye betwene two opynions? If þe Lord be very God, folow him: or if Baal be he, then folow him. And þe people aunswered him not one worde. Then sayd Eliah vnto the people: I only remaine of þe Lordes Prophetes, and Baals Prophetes are foure hundred & fiftie. Let two oxen be geuen vs, & let them chose þe one, & cut him in peces, and lay him on wood, & put no fyre vnder. And I wil dresse þe other, & put hym on wood, and wyll put no fyre vnder. And call ye on the name of your God, and I wil call on the name of the Lorde. And then the God that aunswereth by fyre, he is the verve God.

E * And al the people sayd: it is wel spoken. Then sayd Eliah vnto þe Prophetes of Baal, chose you an ox, & dresse hym first (for ye are many) & call on the name of your God, but put no fyre vnder. And they toke þe ox that was geuen them, & dressed it, & called on þe name of Baal, from morning to none, saying: O Baal heare vs. But ther was no voice, nor answeere. And they lept about þe aulter þe they had made. And at noone, Eliah mocked them, & sayd: call lowde (for he is a god: but he is talking or occupied, or in the way, or happelye he slepeth) þe he may awake. And they cried lowde, & cut them selues, as their maner was, with knyues and launcers, tyll the bloud folowed on them. And when nydday was passed, they prophesied vntyll it was time to offer. But ther was nether voice nor answeere nor any þe regarded them.

I Then Eliah sayde to all the folke: come to me. And all the people came to him. * And he mended the aulter of the Lorde that was broken. * And he toke xii. stones accordyng to the nombre of the xii. tribes of þe sonnes of Jacob (vnto whome the worde of the Lorde) came, saying: * Israel (I) albe thy name. And with the stones he made an aulter in the name of the Lorde. And he made a gutter rounde about the aulter, able to receaue two peckes of corne. And he put the woode in order, and hewed the oxe in peces, and put him on the wood, and sayde: fyll foure pytchers with water, and powre it on the sacrifice, and on the wood. And he sayde: do so agayne. And they dyd so agayne. Then he sayde: do it the thyrde tyme. And they did so the thyrde tyme. And the water ran rounde aboute the aulter, and the gutter was full of water also.

And when offryng tyme was come, Eliah the prophet wet to & sayd: o Lord God of Abraham, Isaac and of Israel, let it be knowen thys daye, that thou art the God in Israell, and that I am thy seruaunte, and that I do all these thynges at thy commaundement. Hear me o Lorde, heare me, that this people maye knowe, that thou Lorde, arte the God, and that thou haste turned the heartes backward. * And there fel fire from the Lorde, and consumed the sacrifice, and the wood, and the stones, and the duste, and lycked by the water that was in the gutter. And when al the people sawe that, they fell on theyr faces, & sayde: the Lorde, he is God, the Lorde he is God. Then sayde Eliah vnto them: laye handes on the Prophetes of Baal, let not one of them escape. And when they had taken them, Eliah broughte them downe vnto the broke Kison, and slue them there.

Then Eliah sayd vnto Ahab, get the by, and eate and dryncke, for ther is a sounde of muche rayne. And when Ahab went by to eat and to dryncke, Eliah went by to the toppe of mount Carmel. * And bowed him selfe to the earth, and put his face betwene hys knees, & sayde to his seruaunte: go by (I praye the) & loke toward the sea. And he went by & looked, & saide: ther is nothing. And he sayd: go agayne. vii. times. And þe seventh tyme, he sayd: behold, ther ariseth a litle

a. Anger is not here taken for such as is betwene enemies, but such as proceedeth of feruent loue, as when the father is angrey with the sonne not because he would him euell: but sheweth thereby that he loueth him better, for in correctyng him he prouideth that he fall not to do worse. Such an anger, zeale or Ialousie had Ihuiches also. Numeri. xxi. b.

Baal was. &c.

b. Baal was (as some thinke) a common name of all straunge goddes, because it commonly signifieth Lorde or master: and therof toke the Goddes of the gentyles their names as Baal Ihegor or phogor or Baal peor, that is, the Lorde or master or Ihegor. &c. Psal. cv. e. Roma. xi. a

The xx. Chapter.

The firste and seconde tyme that Samaria was besieged of Benhadad kyng of Siria.

III. Re. ii. c.

AND Benhadad kyng of Siria gathered all his hoste together, & xxxii. kynges with him, with horses & charrettes: and wente by, and besieged Samaria, and warred against it. And he sent messengers to Ahab kyng of Israel, into the citie, & sayd vnto him: thus sayeth Benhadad. Thy siluer and thy golde is myne, & the sayrest of thy wyues, & the best of thy chyldren be myne. And the kyng of Israel answered, & sayde: my Lorde kyng accordeinge to thy saying, I am thynne with all I haue.

And the messengers came agayne to Ahab, and sayd: thus sayeth Benhadad. I haue therfore sent vnto the, sayinge: Delyuer me then thy syluer & thy golde, and thy wyues, and thy chyldren. Or else I wyll sende my seruauntes vnto the by to morowe this tyme: and they shall serche thynne house, and the houses of thy seruauntes, whiche shall take all that is glorious in thynne eyes, & bring it awaye with them. Then the kyng of Israel sent for the elders of the lande, and sayed: take hede I praye you, & see how this felow goeth about mischeue. For he sent vnto me, for my wyues and my chyldren, and my syluer and my golde: and I denyed him nothyng of it. And all the elders of Israel and all the people sayde: heken not to him, nor consente.

Wherupon he sayd vnto the messengers of Benhadad: tel my lord & king, all that he sent for the fyrste tyme, that I wyll do: but this request I maye not do. And the messengers departed and brought him word. Then Benhadad sent vnto him, and said: thus do the gods to me and so therto, yf the duste of Samaria be ynoughe for al the people that folowe me, that euery man maye haue an handefull. And the kyng of Israel answered, and said: tel him, let not him that putteth on his harnesse bothe hym selfe, as he that putteth it of. * And when Benhadad hearde the tydynges, as he and the kynges were drynckynge in the pauillions, he sayde vnto his seruauntes: put ye in aray. And they put them selues in araye againste the citie.

Under-stande after this vic- torie obser- ued.

And beholde, there came a Prophet vnto Ahab kyng of Israel, and said to him: thus sayeth the Lorde, Seist thou al this great multitude: beholde, I wil delyuer them into thine hande this day, that thou maiest knowe, that I am the Lorde. And Ahab said: by whome. And he said: thus sayeth the Lorde: euen by the men of the gouernours of the thyres. And Ahab sayd: who shall ioine the battayle. And he sayde: thou. Then he nombred the me of the gouerners of the thyres: and they were two hundred and xxxii. And after them he nombred al the people, and all the chyldren of Israel, were seuen thousande. And they went oute at noone when Benhadad was a drynckynge stronge dryncke in the pauillions with the. xxxii. kynges that holpe him. And the men of the thyres of the thyres went out fyrste.

And Benhadad sente oute, and they shewed him, sayinge: there come me out of Samaria. And he sayd: yf they come out for peace, take them a lyue. And also yf they come for warre, take them yet a lyue. And when those men of the thyres of & thires were come out of & cytie, and the host after them, they slue euery one of the his ma. And & Sirians fled, and Israel folowed after the. And Benhadad the kyng of Siria scaped on a horse with his horse men. And the kyng of Israel went out, and smote horse, and charret, and slue a great slaughter of the Sirians.

Then there came a Prophete to the kyng of Israel, and sayde to hym: go forth, and playe the man, be wyse and take take hede what thou doest: for when the yere is aboute, the kynge of Siria wyl come againste the agayne. Then sayde the seruauntes of the kynges of Siria to him: the Goddes of þ hylles are their Gods, and therfore they had the better of vs. But let vs fight with them in the playne, and for what ye wyl, we shall haue the better of them. And this do: take the kynges awaye euery man out of his place, & put dukes in their rowmes. And do thou nombze the an hoste, lyke the hoste that thou hast loste, and horse for horse, & charet for charet, and let vs fyghte with them in the playne, and for a wager, we get þ better of the. And the kynge hekened vnto theyr voyce, and dyd euen so.

And as sone as the yere was aboute, Benhadad nombzed the Sirians, and wēt vp to Aphek to warre with Israel. E And the children of Israel were nombzed, and prouided of vitaille, and went against them, and pyched before them, lyke two litle flockes of kiddes: but the Sirians fylled the countrey. Then there came a man of God, & sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: thus saith þ lord: Because þ Sirians saye: þ the Lord is but a God of the hylles, and not God of the valeys to: therfore wil I delyuer al this great multitude into thine hande, that ye maye knowe that I am þ Lord. And they pitched one ouer againste the other. vii. dayes, and the seuenth daye toynded batayle. And the children of Israel slue of the Sirians an hundred thousande fote men in one day. And the rest fled to Aphek into the cite. And there fel a walle vpon. xxvii. thousande of them that were lefte. And Benhadad fled, and wēt into the cite, from chambre to chambre.

Then sayde his seruauntes vnto him: beholde, we haue hearde say, þ the kynges of the house of Israel are merciful kynges. Let vs put sacke cloth aboute oure Loynes, & ropes about oure heades, and go out to the kynge of Israel: haplye he wyl saue thy lyfe. And they girded sacke clothe about theyr loines, and put ropes about their heades, and went out to the kynge of Israel, & said: thy seruaunt Benhadad saith, I praye the let me lyue. And he said: is he yet a lyue: what he is my brother. And they toke the worde for good lucke, & hastily caught it out of his mouth, & said: yea, thy brother Benhadad. Then he sayde: go & bynge him. And Benhadad came out to him, & the other toke him vp into the charet. And Benhadad said: the cyties which my father toke from thy father, I wil restore agayne. And þ shalte make streates for þ in Damasco, as my father dyd in Samaria. And I wyl make an appoyntmēt w the, & sende the away. And so he made an appoyntment with him, and sent him awaye.

Then a certen man of the childre of the Prophetes, sayde vnto his felowe with the worde of the Lorde, smyte me I praye the. And the man woulde not smyte him. And he said, because þ haste not obeyed þ voyce of þ Lord: beholde, as sone as thou arte departed from me, a lyon shal slaye the. And as sone as he was departed frō him, * a Lyon founde 3. cc. lxxx. a him, and slue him. Then he founde another man, and sayde to him: smyte me I praye the. And the mā gaue him a good stripe & wounded him. And þ Prophet went forth, & waited for þ kynge by the waie, and put ashes vpon his eyes, and put him selfe out of knowledge. E And when the kynge came by, he cryed vnto him, & said: thy seruaunt wēt out in the middes of the battel. And se, there was one began to flee. And there came a man to me & said: depe this mā. And yf he be mysted, thy lyfe shal go for hys, or else thou shalt paye a talent of syluer. And as thy seruaunt had here & there to do, he was gone. And þ king of Israel said vnto him: euen so shal thy iudgemēt be, as thou hast despynd it thy selfe.

And he hasted, and toke the ashes away from his eyes: and the kyng of Israel knew him, th at he was of the Prophetes. And he said vnto the king: thus saith þ Lord: because thou haste let go a mā þ ought to haue dyed, thy life shal go for his lyfe: and thy people for hys. And the kynge of Israel wente to hys house, waywarde and heuie, and entred into Samaria.

The .xxi. Chapter.

E Isahel commaundeth to hys Naboth, for the byneyarde that he refused to sell Ahab. Heliah reprooueth Ahab and he repenteth.

After these thynges were done, it chaunced that Naboth the Jezrahelite had a vyneparde in Jezrahel, harde by þe palace of Ahab kynge of Samaria. And Ahab spake vnto Naboth, sayinge: let me haue thy vyneparde, to make me a garden of yerbes therof, because it lyeth so nye my house: and I wil geue the a better vyneparde for it: or yf it please the, I wil geue the, the worthe of it in siluer. But Naboth sayd to Ahab: the Lorde forbydde that from me, that I shoulde geue the inheritaunce of my fathers vnto the.

B Then wente Ahab vnto his house waywarde and euell apayde, because of the wordes whiche Naboth the Jezrahelyte had spoken to him, saying: I wil not geue to the, the inheritaunce of my fathers. And he layde hym downe vpon hys heed, and turned awaie his face, and woulde eate no meate. And then Jezabell his wyfe came to hym, & sayde vnto hym: why arte thou so frowarde, that thou eatest no meate? And he sayde vnto her: I spake vnto Naboth þe Jezrahelyte, and sayde vnto hym: geue me thy vyneparde for siluer, or else yf thou wylte, I wyl geue the another vyneparde for it. And he said: I wil not geue the my vyneparde.

C Then sayde Jezabell his wyfe vnto hym: what a goodlye kyngedome were thou able to make in Israel: vp, & eate meate, and let thyne hert at reste, for I wyl geue the, the vyneparde of Naboth the Jezrahelite. And she wrote a letter in Ahab's name, & sealed it wth his seale, and sent it vnto the elders & chiefe men of his citie, that dwelte where Naboth dwelte. And she wrote in the letter, sayinge: proclayne fastynge & let Naboth on hys amonge the people, and let two bnythistes before him, and let them testifye agaynst him, sayinge: thou didest curse both God and the kyng. And vpon þe cary him out, & stone him to death.

D And the elders and nobles of his citie, whiche dwelte in hys cytie, dyd as Jezabell had sente vnto them, and as it was wrytten in the letter whiche she had sent vnto them. They proclaimed fastynge, and sette Naboth an hys amonge the people, and there came in two bnythistye persones, & sat before. And þe two bnythistye persones witnesssed agaynst Naboth before þe people, sayinge: Naboth did curse God and the kyng. And vpon that they caryed him out of the citie, and stoned hym wth stones to death. And then they sente to Jezabell, sayinge: Naboth is stoned to death. And when Jezabell hearde that Naboth was stoned to death: she sayde to Ahab: vp, and take possession of the vyneparde of Naboth, the Jezrahelite, whiche he denyed to geue the for siluer, for Naboth is not alpyue, but deed. And when Ahab hearde that Naboth was dead. He stode vp to go downe to þe vyneparde of Naboth the Jezrahelyte, to take possession of it.

And the worde of the Lorde came vnto Eliah the Thesbite, sayinge: vp, & go downe to mete Ahab kynge of Israel whiche is in Samaria. Beholde, he is in the vyneparde of Naboth: for he is gone downe thither, to take possession of it. And say vnto him: thus sayeth the Lorde, thou hast kyllid and therto gotten possession. And saye mozeouer vnto him, thus sayeth the Lorde: in the place where dogges lapped þe bloude of Naboth, shal dogges lappe euē thy bloude also. And Ahab said to Eliah: hast thou founde me thyne enemye at anye tyme? And he said: yea, because thou arte vnterly geue to worcke wickednesse in the syghte of the Lorde. Beholde, I wil bryng euell vpon the, & wil make cleane ryddance of thy posterite, & wil destroye vnto Ahab all þe pysseth agaynst the walle, and yf ought be pyssoned or forsaken in Israel: I wil make thine house, like the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat: & like þe house of Baasa þe sonne of Ahiah, for the angerynge wherewith thou hast angered, & made Israel sinne.

And therto agaynst Jezabel came the word of the Lorde, sayinge: dogges shal eate Jezabel, vnder the walles of Jezrahel. And he that dyeth of Ahab in the towne, him shal dogges eate: & he that dyeth in the felde, him shal þe foules of the ayre eate. For there was none at all lyke Ahab, that was so vnterly geuen to worcke wyckednesse in the syght of the Lorde: and that because Jezabel his wyfe pricked him forwarde.

Jehosaphat iii. Kinges, Ahab Jo. lxx.

And therefore he did exceedinge abhominable, in folowynge Idoles, in al thynges lyke as dyd the Ammorites * which the Lorde caste out before the children of Israel.

When Ahab hearde those wordes, he rēt his clothes, and put sackcloth about his fleshe, and fasted, and laye in sack cloth, and went comfortlesse. And the worde of the Lorde came to Eliah the Thelbite, sayinge: seyst thou howe Ahab humbleth him selfe before me? because he so submytteth hym selfe before me, I wyll not brynge that euell in hys dayes: but in his sonnes dayes, I wyll brynge euell vpon his house.

The.xvii. Chapter.

Four hundred falsse Prophetes do counsell Ahab and Jehosaphat to warre agaynst Ramoth: onely Mischeah prophesyeth the truth, for whiche he is smytten and put in prison.

And they continued thre yere without warre betwene Siria and Israel. * And the thirde yere Jehosaphat kynge of Iuda, came to the kynge of Israel. Then sayde the kynge of Israel vnto his seruantes, know ye not that Ramoth in Gilead is oures, & we syt styll, and take it not oute of the handes of the kynge of Siria? And he said vnto Jehosaphat: wylte thou go w me to batayle, to Ramoth in Gilead? And Jehosaphat sayd vnto the kynge of Israel. * I wyl be as thou art, & my people shal be as thyne, and my horses as thyne.

And Jehosaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: * aske counsell I praye the, of the Lorde to daye. And then the kynge of Israel gathered of the Prophetes together, vpon a four hundred men, and sayde vnto them: shal I go to Ramoth in Gilead to batayle, or be styll? And they sayde, go: for the Lord shal deliuer it into the handes of the kynge. And Jehosaphat sayde: is there neuer a Prophet of the Lordes here more, that we might enquyre of him? And the kynge of Israel said to Jehosaphat: there is yet one, by whome we may aske counsell of the Lorde, one Mischeah the sonne of Iemlah. But I hate him, for he neuer prophesyeth good vnto me, but euell.

And Jehosaphat sayde: let not the kynge say so. Then the kynge of Israel called vnto one of his chamberlains, & said: set Mischeah the sonne of Iemlah hither at once.

And the kynge of Israel & Jehosaphat the kynge of Iuda sat ether in his seate, and their apparell on them, in a boyde place besyde the entrynge in of the gate of Samaria, & al the Prophetes prophesyinge before them. And Zedekiah the sonne of Canaanah made hornes of yron, and sayde: thus sayeth the Lorde: with these hornes thou shalt pushe the Sirians until thou haue made an ende of them. And all the Prophetes prophesied euen so, sayinge: go vp to Ramoth in Gilead, and prosper, for the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kynge.

And the messenger that was gone to call Mischeah, sayde vnto him: se, the wordes of the Prophetes speake good vnto the kynge with one voyce: let thy wordes I praye the, be lyke the wordes of one of them, and speake that is good. And Mischeah said: as surely as the Lord lyueth, what the Lorde putteth in my mouth, that wyll I speake. And when he was come to the king: the kynge sayd to him: Mischeah, shall we go to Ramoth in Gilead to batayle, or shall we be styll? And he sayd vnto him: * go and prosper, the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kynge. And the kynge sayde vnto hym, howe often shall I adiure the, that thou tell me nothing but trueth, in the name of the Lorde?

Then he sayd: I saw al Israel scattered vpon the hylls, as shepe that haue no shepardes. And the Lorde said: those haue no master, let them returne, every man to his house in peace. Then sayde the kynge of Israel to Jehosaphat: dyd I not tel the, that he woulde prophesye no good vnto me, but euell? And Mischeah sayd: heare therfore the worde of the Lord. I sawe the Lord syt on his seate, and all the companye of heauen standynge aboute him, on his ryght hande, and on hys lefte. And the Lorde sayde: * who shall deceaue Ahab, that he maye go and be slayne at Ramoth in Gilead? and one sayde on this maner, and another on that. Then came forth a certayne spirite, and stode before the Lord and sayde: I wyll deceaue hym. And the Lorde sayde, wherwith? And he sayde: I wyll go oute, and be a false spirite in the mouthes of all his Prophetes. And the Lorde said, thou shalt deceaue hym, and also preuayle, go forth and do euen so. Then Sedechiah the sonne of Naanah went to: and smote Michaiah on the cheke, and sayde: howe is the spirite of the Lorde gonne from me, to speake in the? And Michaiah said: beholde, thou shalt se in that daye, when thou shalt go from chambze to chambze to hyde the. And the kynge of Israel said: take Michaiah, and carye him backe againe vnto Amon the gouerner of the cytye, and vnto Joab the kynge's sonne, & say: thus sayeth the kynge. Put ye this fellowe in the prison house, and fede hym with breade of affliction, & with water of trouble vntyll I returne in peace.

Then Michaiah sayde: yf I come safe againe, the Lorde hath not spoken in me. And he said mozeouer: herke to ye people euery one of you.

And so the kynge of Israel and Jehosaphat the kynge of Iuda wente vp to Ramoth in Gilead. And the king of Israel said to Jehosaphat, * chaunge the and get the to warre: but put on thine owne apparell. And the kynge of Israel chaunged him selfe, and went to battell also. But the kynge of Siria had commaunded y capitaines of hys charettes of which he had. xxxii. sayinge: fyghte nether with smal nor great, saue w the kynge of Israel onely. And when y capitaynes of the charettes sawe Jehosaphat, they thought he had bene y kinge of Israel, and therfore turned to hym to fyght. But Jehosaphat cryed oute. And when the captaynes of the charettes sawe that he was not the kynge of Israel, they turned backe from hym.

And there went a proclamacion thozowe oute the hoste, after the sunne was downe, sayinge: euery man to his cytie, and to his owne countrey. And when the kynge of Israel was dead, they came to Samaria & buryed hym there. And whyle they washed the charet in the pole of Samaria, * the dogges licked vp his bloude, and harlottes washed hym accordyng vnto the worde of the Lorde whiche he spake.

Phoziah fell sick and as hurte and askerth counsell of Beelzebub whiche waye he myght come by health. The captaynes ouer fyfte with theyr souldiars are burnt with fyre from heauen, by the prayer of Eliab. Phoziah is reppoynd of Eliab, and dyeth, and Jehoram his brother succeedeth hym.

Phoziah the sonne of Ahab beganne to raygne vpon Israel in Samaria, the xviij. yere of Jehoshaphat king of Iuda, and was king ouer Israel two yere, and dyd euell in the lyghte of the Lorde, and walked in the waye of his father, and in the waye of his mother, and in the wale of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whiche made Israel synne. And he serued Baal, and bowed him selfe to him, and angred the Lorde God of Israel, in all thyng, as dyd his father. And the Moabites rebelled against Israel after the death of Ahab.

2. Re. viii. 1.
4. Re. iii. 1.

And Phoziah fell thorow a lattise window oute of an vpper chābre that he had in Samaria, and fel sicke. Then he sent messengers, sayinge vnto them: go and enquire of Beelzebub the god of Akaton, whether I shall recouer of this dyscase. But the Angel of the Lord spake to Eliab the Thelbite: vp and go agaynste the messengers of the kyng of Samaria, and saye vnto them: Is it because there is no God in Israel, that ye go to aske thorow Beelzebub the God of Akaton. Therefore thus sayeth the Lorde: thou shalt not come downe from the bedde on whiche thou arte gone vp, but shalt dye. And Eliab departed.

And the messengers turned backe agayne vnto him. And he sayde vnto them: why are ye thus come agayne. And they sayde vnto him: there came a man agaynste vs, and said vnto vs: go, and turne agayne vnto the kyng that sent you, and save but o him: Thus sayeth the Lorde. Is it because there is no God in Israel, that thou sendest to enquire thorow Beelzebub the God of Akaton. Therefore thou shalt not come from the bedde on which thou art gone vp, but shalt surely dye. And he said to them: what maner a man was he whiche met you, and tolde you these wordes. And they sayde vnto hym: it was an hearty man and gyrded with a gyrdle of a skynne aboute his loynes. And he said vnto the: it is Eliab the Thelbite.

Then the kyng sente vnto hym a captayne ouer fyfte with his fyfte. And whē the captayne was come to hym, beholde: he sat on the toppe of an hyll. And the captayne sayde vnto hym: man of God, the kyng byddeth the come downe. And Eliab answered and sayde to the captayne ouer the fyfte: yf I be a man of God, fyre come downe from heauen, and consume the and thy fyfte. And there came fyre downe from heauen, and deuoured him and his fyfte. And the kyng went agayne, and sent to him a nother captayne ouer fyfte, with his fyfte, whiche answered and sayde vnto hym: O man of God, thus sayeth the kyng, make hast, and come downe. And Eliab answered and sayde vnto them: yf I be a man of God, then let fyre come downe from heauen, and consume the and thy fyfte. And there came fyre downe from heauen, and consumed him and his fyfte. And the kyng sent agayne the thyrde captayne ouer fyfte with his fyfte. And when the thirde captayne ouer fyfte was come vp to him, he fell on his knees before Eliab, and besoughte him, and sayde vnto him: Oh man of God, let my lyfe, and the lyfe of these fyfte thy seruantes be precious in thy sight. Behold, there came fyre downe from heauen, and burnt vp the two fore captaynes ouer fyfte with their fyftes. But let my lyfe now be precious in thy sight. Then said the Angell of the Lorde vnto Eliab:

Eliab deuydeth the waters with his mantel. He is taken vp in to heauen. The bytter & venemouse waters are healed by the salte that Eliseus put into them. The chyldren that moche Eliseus are rent in peces.

- 1 And it chaunced, when the  $\star$  Lorde would take vp Eliab to heauen in a whorlewinde, that Eliab & Eliseus were goynge from Gilgal. And Eliab sayde to Eliseus, tary here I praye the, for the Lorde hath sent me to Bethel. But Eliseus sayd:  $\star$  as surely as the Lorde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not leaue the. And when they came to Bethel, the children of the prophetes that were at Bethel, came out to Eliseus, and sayde to him: knowest thou not, howe that the Lord wyll take awaye thy master from thee this daye? And he said, I know it too, holde youre peace.

- 2 Then sayde Eliab to Eliseus: tarye here a felowship, for the Lorde hath sent me to Jericho. And he said: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, & as surely as thy soule liueth, I wil not leaue the, and so they went to Jericho. And the children of the prophetes that were at Jericho came to Eliseus, & sayde vnto hym: art thou not ware  $\bar{p}$  the Lord wyl take awaye thy master from thee this daye? And then he toke vp the mantel of Eliab that fell from him, & went backe agayne, and stode by Iordans side, and toke the mantell of Eliab (that fel from him) and smote the water & said: where is the Lord God of Eliab, where is he? And when he had smytten the water, it deuyded, parte this waye, & parte that waye, and Eliseus went ouer. And the chyldren of the prophetes of Jericho, whiche sawe hym from a farr, sayde: the spirite of Eliab doth reste on Eliseus, and went agaynst him and bowed to the erthe vnto him. And they sayde vnto him: se, there be amonge thy seruauntes fyftie lustie me: let the go, and seke thy master: happily the spirite of the Lorde hath taken him bp, and cast him vpon some mountayne, or in some valleye. The contempt.

a. The contempt of godly mē chiefly preachers, is an offence moſte greuous: whose auctorite ought to be moſte holy & reuerent to all y people whom he that receaueth or agayne sayeth, receaueth or reiecteth god. Fathers while they correct not y wantones of their childre, while they hold the not vnder nourtour, while they suffer the to feast & scoffe with euery man, and lette them attempt euery thyng unpunished, the Lorde punisheth them with the children many wayes.

The .iii. Chapter.

The kynges of Israel Juda and Edom lacke water when they shoulde fight agaynste Moab: whiche they obtayne through the prayer of Eliseus. The kyng of Moab leseth the tyde and after sacrificeth hys sonne.

Jehoram the sonne of Ahab began to raygne vpon Israel in Samaria the .xviii. yere of Jehosaphat kyng of Juda, & continued twelue yere. And he brought that was euil in the sight of the Lorde: But not lyke hys father or his mother, for he put away the ymage of Baal that hys father had made: Neuertheles, he continued in the sinne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat (which made Israel synne) and throncke not therefrom.

And Mesa kyng of Moab whiche was ryche of shepe (and was wouete to render vnto the kyng of Israel an hundred thousande lambes, & as many rāmes w the wol) rebelled agaynst the kyng of Israel after y death of Ahab. And kyng Jehoram went out of Samaria the same cealon, & nombred all Israel. And then went, & sent to Jehosaphat kyng of Juda, sayinge: y kyng of Moab hathe rebelled agaynst me, wilt thou go w me agaynst y Moabites to battell? And he sayd: I wyl goe, and wyl be as y, & my people shalbe as thyne, and my horsles as thyne. And he sayde: what waye shal we go? And the other answered: the waye thowowe the wyldernesse of Edom.

And the kyng of Israel toke hys iourneys with the kyng of Juda, & the kyng of Edom. And when they had co: passed the way seuen dayes, there was no water for y hoste, nor for the cattell that they had w them. Then sayde the kyng of Israel: Alas, the Lorde hath called together these thre kynges to deliuer them into the handes of the Moabites. But Jehosaphat sayde: is there here no prophete of the Lordes, that we maye enquire of the Lorde by hym? And one of the kynges of Israels seruauntes answered, & sayde: here is Eliseus the sonne of Saphat, whycher powred water on y handes of Eliah. And Jehosaphat sayde: y worde of the Lorde is with hym. And so the kyng of Israel, and Jehosaphat and y kyng of Edom went downe to hym.

That is, y secured hym and wayted on hym.

And Eliseus sayd vnto the kyng of Israel: what haue I to do w thee? Get the to the prophetes of thy father, & of thy mother. And the kyng of Israel sayde vnto hym: Oh naye, but hath the Lord called these thre kynges to deliuer the into y hādes of the Moabites? And Eliseus sayd: as sure as the Lord of hostes lyueth (in whose syghte I stāde) and it were not, that I regarde the presence of Jehosaphat y kyng of Juda, I wolde not looke towarde the, nor yet se the. But now bryg me a mynstrell. And as the mynstrell played, the hand of the Lorde was vpon him. And he sayde: thus biddeth the Lord, make thyse broke full of dyches. for thus sayeth the Lord: ye shal se nether wind nor rayne, & yet this broke shalbe filled with water, & ye maye drinke: & poure beastes & poure cattell also. And thys is yet but a smale thing in the sight of the Lorde: but he wyll geue the Moabites into your hādes also. And ye shal destroye all stronge townes, and all goodly cities, & shall selle all pleasante trees, & stoppe all the welles of water, and marre al good plattes of grounde with stones. And in y morninge aboute offerynge tyme: there came such a water the waye from Edom that the constrye was filled with water.

And when all the Moabites hearde that the kynges were come to fyght agaynst thē, they gathered together, fro the yongest y was able to put on harness, and so bpwarde, and wayted in the borders.

And they beyng byerly in y morninge, y sunne arose a shone vpon the water. And when y Moabites saw the water a farre of, as red as bloude, they sayde: it is bloud, y kyngs haue fought together, & one slayne another. Nowe therefore ye Moabites get you to the spoyle. And whē they came to y hooste of Israel, y Israelitz stode by, & layde on y Moabites, & they fled before thē: And so they entred y lande & destroyed the Moabitz. And they ouerthrewe the cities, & on euery good parcel of lande, caste euery man hys stone, and ouer couered it, and stopte all y welles of water, & felde all the * good trees. And as longe as y stones thereof dyd remayne in the walles of * Byrke the syngers went vpon it and bette it.

And whē the kyng of Moab sawe, that y battell was to stronge for hym, he toke w him seuē hūdred men y drcw the swerde, to haue broken vnto y king of Edom. But they coulde not. And then he toke hys eldest sonne (y shoulde haue raygned in his steade) & offered him for a burnt offerynge vpon y walles. And ther came so great wrath vpo Israel, y they departed from hym, and returned to their owne lande.

¶ The. iiii. Chapter.

¶ God geueth a certayne poze woman oyle & flour by Eliseus. Eliseus obtayneth of God a chylde for hys hostesse: whyche dyeth & is after rapled to lyfe thowoe hym. He maketh swete the porage: and multiplyeth the loaus.

And there cryed a certayne woman of the wiues of y chyl- dren of the prophetes, vnto Eliseus, sayinge: thy seruante my husbāde is deade, & thou knowest, that thy seruante dyd feare the Lorde.

And the creditor is come to fet my two sonnes, to be hys bondmen. And Eliseus sayde to her: what shall I doe for the: tel me, what hast thou in thyne house. And she sayde: thyne hādmay be hath nothynge at all in her house, saue a pitcher with oyle. And he sayde: Goe, & borowe the in other places, of all thy neighbours, emptie vesselles, and that not a fewe. And then goe and shutte the doze to the, and to thy sones, and poure out into all those vesselles, and put the full alwaye a lyde.

And she wente from hym, & shut the dooze to her, & to her sonnes. And they broughte to her, & she powzed out. And when the vesselles were ful, she sayd to her sonne: byrnge yet a vessel: And he sayd: there is no mo. And then the oyle ceased: Then she came and tolde the mā of God. And he sayde: goe, & sell the oyle & paye thy creditor. And lyue thou and thy children of the reste.

And it fel on a dāye, that Eliseus came to Sunam, where was a rich woman y tooke hym in for to eate breade. And as oft as he came y waye, he turned in thither to eate breade. And she sayd vnto her husbāde: se, I perceaue that the man of God is perfecte, and cometh alwaye by vs. Lette vs make hym a chāber in a lytle walle, & let vs set him there a bed, a table, a stole, and a candellstycke: that he maye tourne in thither, when he cometh to vs.

And it fortunēd on a tyme y he came thither, & turned into the chambere, and laye there. Then he sayd to Gehezi his seruant: call this Sunamite. And he called her, and she came before hym. And Eliseus sayd to hym: say to her I praye the: see, thou haste made all thys prouision for vs, what shall we doe for the: Woldest thou be spoken for to the kyng, or to the captayne of the hoste?

And she carayed hym bp and layde hym on the bedde of þ man of God, and shut the doze to hym, and went out, and came to her husbāde, and sayd: sende me one of the yonge men, and an asse, that I may runne to the man of God. And so she went, and came vnto the man of God, to mounte Carmel. And when the man of God sawe her a farre, he sayde to Gehezi hys seruante: see, where our seruānt cometh. Nowe rāne agaynst her, * & aske her, whether it be all wel with her, and with her husbād, and wyth the ladde. And she sayde: all is well. But the man of God sayde: Let her alone, for her soule is vexed w in her, & the Lorde hathe hyd it frō me, and hath not told it me. Then she said: dyd I despyre a sonne of my Lorde? dyd I not saye, that þ shouldest not byngne me in a toles Paradise.

Then he said to Gehezi: * gyde bp thy lopnes, and take my staffe in thyne hande and awaye. * Yf anye mete thee, salute hym not. And yf any salute thee, answere hym not agayne. And put my staffe vpo þ boyes face. Notwithstan- ding the mother of þ chylde sayde: * as sure as þ Lorde lyueth, & as thy soule lyueth, I wyl not leaue the. And the he arose and folowed her. And then he wente a- gayne agaynst his maister, and tolde him, saying: it hath not awaked þ lad.

When Eliseus was come to þ house: Beholde, þ lad was dead, & layde vpon hys bed. And he went in, & shut the doze to the lad & hym, and prayed vnto the Lord. * And he went vp, & laye vpo the ladde, & put his mouth on his mouthe, and his eyes on his eyes, & the paulme of his hādes on the paulme of his han- des, and sprede hym selfe vpon the lad that the flethe of the childe waxed war- me. Then she went and fel at hys fete, & bowed her selfe to the groude, & toke bp her sonne, & went out. Whē Eliseus was come to Gilgat agayne, there was a darthe in þ lande, and the childe of the prophetes dwelt with hym. Then he sayde to hys ser- uant, put on a great pot, & make pota- ge for þ children of the prophetes. And one wente oute into the felde, to gather herbes, and founde as it were a wylde vine, and gathered therof Coloquint- daes his lappe ful, & came & shred them into the potte of potage, they vnwy- ting. And they powred out for þ men to eate. And when they had tasted of the potage, they cryed oute, and sayd: there is deathe in the pot thou man of God, and could not eate therof. Naaman the Syrien is healed of hys leprosy Gihazi is strecken with a leprosy because he tooke mounys and rayment of Naaman.

Naaman captayne of the hoste to the kyng of Siria, was great with hys maister and wel take: for thow him the Lorde saued Siria. And he was an actyue man, & yet a leper. And there had gone a compaigne of Soudiers oute of Siria a runnyng, and had brought oute of the contreye of Israell a lytle mayd, which was with Naamans wife.
And the Damsell sayde vnto her lady: I woulde my maister were with a prophet that is in Samaria: he wolde de-liuer him of his leprosy. And he went and tolde her husbunde, saying: thus & thus sayeth y mayde y is out of y land of Israell. And y kyng of Siria said: goe thy waye, and I wyll sende a letter vnto the kyng of Israell. And he went and toke with hym ten talentes of syluer and syxe thousande peces of golde and ten chaunge of raymentes. And he broughte the letter to the kyng of Israell contaynyng this tenour. Now when thys letter is come vp to thee: Behold, I haue sent Naaman my ser-uaunt to the, that thou shouldest rydde hym of his leprosy. And when y kyng of Israell had reade the letter, he rente his cloth & sayd: * am I God, to slei & to make a liue: y he shulde sende to me, for to deliuer a man from his leprosy.
But consider I pray you & se, howe he pyketh quarelles w me. And whē Eliseus y mā of God, had heard how that the kyng of Israell had rent hys clothes, he sent to the kyng, saying: wherfore hast thou rent thy clothes: let him come to me, that he maye knowe that there is a prophet in Israell.

Gen. xxii. f.

And Naaman came with his hories and his charet, & stode at the doore of E-liseus. Then Eliseus sent a messenger, saying: goe & washe the in Jordan seuen times, & thy flesh shal come againe to the as before, & thou shalt be cleane.
And Naaman was wrothe and wente awaye, and sayd: Scholde, I thoughte in my selfe, he wolde haue come oute, & stande, & call on the name of the Lorde his God, & put hys hande on the place of the disease, and so take awaye the leprosy. Are not Abanah & Pharpar, rivers of Damasco, better then all the waters yf Israell: Might I not rather washe in the & be cleane? And so he turned, & departed in an angre. Thē came his seruantes & comuned with him, & sayde: father, yf y prophet had byd the done some great thinge oughtest thou not then to haue done it? Howe muche rather thē shuldest thou do it, while he sayeth to the onely, washe & be cleane.
* Then he went downe & washed seven times in Jordan, as y mā of God had,
and his flesh chaūged, lyke vnto y flesh of a lytle boye, and he was cleane.

Thē he turned agayne to the mā of God: he & al his compaigne w him, and came and stode before him, & saide. Be-holde, I knowe that there is no God in all the worlde, but in Israell. And nowe I praye the take a blessinge of thy seruaunte. But he sayde: * as surely as the Lorde liueth (before whom I stāde) I wyl receaue none. And y other wold haue constrayned hym to receaue: But he wolde not do it. And Naaman sayd: yf thou wylte not: yet I praye thee, may there not be geuen to thy seruānt

For thy seruante wyl henceforth of-

And he went in the darcke and toke it of their handes and bestowed it in the house, and let the men goe, & they departed.

Then he went and stode befoze hys maister. And Eliseus sayde to hym: whence cometh Gihezi? And he sayde: thy seruante went no whether. And he sayd: wēt not myne hearte in the, when the mā turned & came of hys charet agaynst the? ## The. vi. Chapter.

Eliseus maketh pynt to swymme aboute the water. The Siriens beseege Israell, so that two women agree together to eate their owne chyldren.

When sayde the chyldren of the prophetes vnto Eliseus: see, the place where we dwell w the, is to lytle for vs. Let vs go to Jordan & there take euerye man a beame, and bylde vs a place there, to dwel in. And he sayde: goe ye. And one sayd: begyn I praye thee, & goe wth thy seruantes. And he sayde: I wyl, and so went with them.

When they came to Jordan, they cut downe wood. And as one was hewyng of a beame, the axe head fell into þ water. And he cried out, & sayde: Alas maister, for it was lent me. And þ mā of God sayde: Where fel it? And he shewed him þ place. And he cut downe a stycke and caste it in thither, & made the axe heade to swymme. And he sayd: take it bp to thee. And the other stretched hys hande and caught it.

And the kynge of Siria foughte agaynst Israell, & toke counsaile with hys seruantes, sayyng: In suche a place and in suche a place wyl I pitch. And the man of God sent vnto þ kynge of Israell, sayyng: Beware thou go not by suche a place, for there are the Sirians gone downe. And the kynge of Israell sent to þ place which the man of God told him, and warned hym of, and sauēd hym selfe there moze then once or twyse.

And the heart of the kynge of Siria C a was troubled therewith, that he sente for his seruantes & sayd to thē: *wil ye not shew me which of vs telleth þ kyng of Israell. And one of hys seruantes sayd: naye my lord kyng: Eliseus the prophete that is in Israell, he telleth the kynge of Israell the wordes þ thou speakest in thy slepyng chambr. Thē he sayde: goe and spie where he is, that I may sende and fet hym. And one told the kynge, sayyng: se, he is in Dothā. And he sent thither horse and charettys, and a greate hoste. And they came thither by night, & cōpassed þ town aboute.

l. reg. xxii. b

And when the seruante of þ man of God rose by erye and was gone oute: Beholde, there was an hoste rounde about the towne w horsses & charettes. Then sayde hys lad to hym: Alas maister, what shall we doe? And he sayde: *feare not, there are moo with vs then with thē. And Eliseus prayed, & sayde: Lorde, open the eyes of the yonge mā, and he sawe. And behold, þ mountayne was full of horsses & charettes of fyre rounde aboute Eliseus. And when the souldiers came downe to hym, Eliseus prayed vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Smyte this people (I pray the) *with blindnesse. And he smote them wth blindnes, accordyng to the desire of Eliseus. Then Eliseus sayde vnto thē: thys is not the way, noz thys is not the towne: But folow me, and I wyl bring you to the man ye seke. And he ledde them to Samaria.

When they were come to Samaria, C a, Eliseus said: Lorde, open their eyes, and and let them see. And the Lorde opened their eyes & they saw. And beholde they were in þe middes of Samaria. And the sayd the kyng of Israell vnto Eliseus when he saw the: *shal I smite the, *shal I smite the father: and he sayde: smyte them not. But smyte them thou takest wyth thynne owne swerde & wyth thynne owne bowe. But sette bread and water before them, & let them eate and dryncke, and goe to their maister. And he made great ordinaunce before them. And when they had eaten & dryncke, he sent them away, and they went to their maister. And so the soudyars of Siria came no more into þe land of Israel.

¶ After this, Benhadad kyng of Siria gathered all the hoste, & wente and beseged Samaria. And there arose a great darth i Samaria: for they had beseged it, vntill an asses head was worth foure skore cycles of syluer, and the fourth parte of a Cab of dones donge worth fyue sicles. And as the kyng of Israell walked vpon the walles, there cryed a womā to him, saying: helpe my lord O kyng. And he said: may, þe Lord helpe thee. But wherewith shoulde I helpe thee, wyth coyne or wyne? Then sayd the kyng to her, what ayleth thee? And she answered: thys woman here sayd to me, bring thy sonne, and let vs eate hym to day, and we wyl eate myne to morow. * And so we dressed my sone, and dyd eate hym. And I sayde to her another day, bringe thy sonne that we maye eate hym. But she hath the hys sonne. When the kyng hearde þe wordes of the woman, he rent hys clothes, euē as he was walkyng on the walles. And whē þe people looked vpon hym: se, he was clothed in sack cloth vnder. Thē he sayde: *God do so & so to me, yf þe head of Eliseus the sonne of Saphat tarpe on hym thys daye. And as Eliseus sat in hys house, and the elders with him, the kyng sent one frome hym. But yet the messenger came to him, he sayde to the elders: se you not howe the sonne of this murtherer hath sente, to take of mine head: be circūspect therfore when the messenger cometh, and shutte the doze, and thruste him backe therwith: for the sounde of his maisters fete foloweth hym. And whyle he yet talked wyth the: Beholde, the messenger was come vnto hym. And he sayd: Beholde, thys euell is of the Lorde, what more shal we loke for of the Lorde.

The. vii. Chapter.

¶ Eliseus propheseth plenteousnes of vntayles and other thynges to Samaria, The Sirians run away and haue no man folowynge them, The lorde þe wolde not beleue the wordes of Eliseus is troden to death.

¶ When Eliseus sayd: heare the wordes of the Lorde: for thus sayeth the Lorde: to morow thys tyme a bushell of fyne floure shalbe solde for a cycle, and two bushelles of Barley for a nother in the gates of Samaria. Thē a great lorde (on whose hande þe king leaned) answered the mā of God, & sayde: though the Lorde wolde make wyndowes in heauen, yet wolde not thys be. And he said agayne: beholde, thou shalte se it wyth thynne eyes, and shalte not eate therof.

And there were foure lepers set with oute the gate of Samaria. And they sayde eche to hys companion, what sit we here vntyll we dye? Thoughe we thoughte that we myght come into the citie, yet is þe darthe so great in þe citie, that we shal there dye. And yf we tarre here, we are but dead also. Nowe therfore come, & let vs flee to the hoste of the Sirians: If they saue oure lyues, we shal lyue: And yf they kyll vs, then are we dead. And so they arose, in the darcke to goe to þe hoste of þe Sirians. And when they were come to the syde of the hoste of Siria: se, there was no man there.

For the Lorde made the hoste of the Sirians heate a noyle of charettes, and a noyle of horyses, and the noyle of a great hoste. In so much þe they sayde one to another: se, the kyng of Israell hath the hyred agaynst vs, the kynges of the Hethites, and the kynges of Egypt, to come vpon vs. And vpon that they arose & fled in the darcke, and left their tentes, their horyses, their asses, and the felde they had pitched, euē as it was, & fled for their lyues. And when these lepers came to the edge of þe host, they went into the tente, & dyd eate and dryncke and caried thence syluer, gold and rayment, & went and hydde it: and came agayne, and entred into another, and Then they sayd one to another: it is not wel þ we do, for this daye is a day to bringe good tidings. And if we hold oure peace, & tarye tyl it be daye light, we shall fynde a mischiefe. Nowe therfore come, let vs goe tell the kynges household. And so they went, and called to the porter of the citie, and tolde the, sayinge: we came to the pauplyons of the Sirians: and se, there was no man there, neither voyce of man, but horses and asses tied, & the tentes euen as they were wont to be.

Then the porters called & tolde the king's house within. And þ kyng arose in þ nyght, & sayde to his seruautes. I wyl shewe you now, howe the Sirians haue serued vs. They knowe þ we are oppressed with hungre, and therefore are gone out of their pautillys, to hyde the selues in the felde, saying: they wyl come out of the citie, and then we shall catch them alyue, and get into the citie. And one of hys seruautes answered, and sayde: Let men take fyue of the horsles that remaine, & are leste in the citie. Beholde, they are as good as all the multitude that are left in the citie: and as good as all þ multitude of þ citie þ are consumed, and let vs send and se. And they toke two charettes of horses, and the kyng sente after the hoste of the Sirians, sayinge: go and se. And they folowed after them, euen vnto Jordan: and se, al the waye was full of clothes and vesselles which the Sirians had caste from them for haste.

And the messengers returned, & tolde the kyng. And then þ people went out, robbed the tentes of the Sirians. And so a bushel of flour was solde for a peny, and two bushelles of barley for a peny, & accordyng to the worde of the Lorde. And the kyng sette the Lorde (on whose hande he leaned) to kepe the gate. And the people troade hym in the gate, that he dyed: accordyng to the sayinge of the man of God, whiche he sayde: when the kyng came downe to him. And it came to passe accordyng to the worde of the man of God had spoken to the kyng, sayinge: two bushelles of barley for a sicke: and a bushel of barley for another, shall be to morowe thys tyme in the gates of Samaria. And the lorde answered the man of God & sayde: though the Lorde made wyndowes in heauen, yet wolde thys not be. And the other sayde: Beholde, thou shalt se it with thyne eyes, & shalt not eate therof. And so it chauced vnto hym: for the people troade hym vnder fete in the gate, that he dyed.

The .viii. Chapter.

And Jehu folowed after him a sayde: smyte him also. And they smote him in his charet at y going vp to Sur by Jebelaam, and he fled to Bagedo a there dyed. And his seruantes caried him to Ierusalem, a buryed him in his sepulchre with his fathers, in the citie of Dauid. And in the .xi. yere of Jehoram sonne of Ahab, begane Ohoziah to raygne ouer Iuda. And when Jehu was come to Jezrahel, Jezabel heard of it, a starched her eyes, a tyed her head, and looked out at a wyndow. And as Jehu entered at y gate, she said: had zamri peace whiche flewe his master. And he lyft vp his eyes to y wyndow, and sayd: who is of my side, whor. And there loked out to him two ozt hze lordes that were chamberlaynes. And he sayde: Throwe her downe. And they thzew her downe. And he spynkled of her bloude vpon the walles, and on the horsles, and troade her vnder fote.

And then when he was come in, a had eatē and droncke, he sayde: goo a vylet I praye you, yonder curst creature, a burye her, * for she is a kynges daughter. And when they came to burye her, they founde no more of her, then the skulle and the two fete: a the two handes. And they came agayne and tolde him. And he sayd: it is the worde of the Lorde which he spake by the hand of his seruauit Elish the Thelbite, sayinge: * in the felde of Jezrahel shall dogges eate the flethe of Jezabel, and y carkas of Jezabel shalbe donge vpo the erthe, in the felde of Jezrahel, that men shall not save, this is Jezabel.

Jehu causeth the lxx. sonnes of Ahab to be slayne, a after that. xlii. of his brethren. He sendeth a meanie also to kill all the prestes of Baal. After his death his son raygneth in his steede.

Ahab had. lxx. sonnes in Samaria. And Jehu wrote letters, a sent to Samaria by to y elders that were lordes of Jezrahel, a to the that a nourced by Ahab's chyldren, saying: now at the coming of these letters to you, ye haue w you your masters sonnes, a ye haue with you charettes a horsles, a a strōg citie a harnesse. Therfore chole the best, a him that most pleaseyth you of your masters sonnes, a put him on his fathers seate, and fight for youre lordes howse. And they were exceedingly afrayde, a sayde: se, two kynges were not able to stande before him, howe shall we then stande. And the gouernour of the kynges howse, a of the citie, a of the elders a the nours ces sent to Jehu, saying: we are thy seruantes, and will do all that y shalt byd vs: we will make no man kinge: but do thou what semeth good in thyne eyes.

Then he wrote another letter to the, saying: If ye be myne, a wyll obeie my voyce, the take the heades of your masters sonnes, a come to me to Jezrahel, by to morow this tyme. And the kynges sonnes were. lxx. persones, w the great men of the cytie, which nourysshed the. After that Jehu gathered all the people together, & sayd to thē: * Ahab serued Baal a lytle: But Jehu shall serue him a good. Nowe therfore call vnto me all the Prophetes of Baal, & all his seruantes, & all his preastes, that none be lackyng. For I haue a great sacrifice to do to Baal: and if any be missed, he shal not lyue. But Jehu dyd it for a so teltpe, to destroye the seruantes of Baal. wherfore Jehu sayde: Apoynte a solempne feast for Baal, & they procla med it. Then Jehu sent thorowout all Israel. And all the seruantes of Baal came, that there was not a man left behinde ꝑ came not. And when they were come into the temple of Baal, the tēple was full from one ende to another.

Then he sayde to the keeper of the be strye, byynge forth garmentes for the seruantes of Baal. And he brought them out garmentes. And Jehu went with Jehonadab sonne of Rechab into the house of Baal: and sayde to the seruantes of Baal: searche and loke, that there be none here with you of the seruantes of the Lorde, but the seruantes of Baal onlye. And they went in, to offer sacrifice & burnt offeringes. But Jehu appoynted him foure skozemen without and sayde: If any of the men whiche I shall byng vnto youre handes, escape, he that letteth him go, shal dye for hym.

And as sone as he had made an ende of offering of burnt sacrifice, he sayde to thē of the garde & to the Lordes: go in and sle them, let none come out. And they smote them with the edge of the swerde. And ꝑ garde & the Lordes cast thē out, & wēt vnto the cytie of ꝑ house of Baal, & fet out the Image out of the house of Baal, & burnt it. And they brake the Image of Baal, & brake ꝑ house of Baal, and made a sege of it euer after. And so Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whiche made Israel synne, with the golde calues in Bethel and Dan, Jehu departed not.

Then the Lorde sayde to Jehu, because thou hast lustely done that pleaseth me, and hast done to the house of Ahab all that was in myne hert, therfore shall * thy chyliden in the fourth generation spt on the seate of Israel. But Jehoahaz besought the Lord, & the lord heard him. For he had sene the oppressiō of Israel, how y kyng of Siria oppressed thē. And therfore the lord gaue Israel a delyuerer, & they wēt out from vnder the hādes of the Sirians.

And y children of Israel dwelt in their tentes as before tyme. Neuerthelesse they departed not from the synne of the house of Jeroboā whiche made Israel synne, but walked therein. And there remayned an idoles groue also in Samaria styll: But there were left of the people to Jehoahaz, but xlviii. horsemen, & ten charrettes, & ten thousand fote men for the kyng * of Siria had destroyed them, & made thē lyke threshed chaffe. The rest of the actes of Jehoahaz, & all he dyd, and his power, are writte in the chronicles of y kynges of Israel. And Jehoahaz rested with his fathers, and they buryed him in Samaria, & Joas his sonne raigned in his steade. In the xxxvii. yere of Jehoas kyng of Iuda, begāne Joas the sonne of Jehoahaz to raigne ouer Israel in Samaria, & continued. xvi. yere, & dyd unhappely i the syght of the lord, & departed in nothing from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, that made Israel synne, but walked therein.

The remnant of the actes of Joas & all he dyd, & his power, how he fought with Amaziah king of Iuda, are writte in y chronicle boke of the kynges of Israel. And when Joas was layde to rest with his fathers, Jeroboā sat vpon his seate. And Joas was buryed in Samaria among the kynges of Israel.

Whē Eliseus was fallen sycke of the sycknesse wherof he dyed, Joas kyng of Israel came to him, & wepte before hī, & sayd: * O my father my father, y charret of Israel, & the horsemen of the same.

And Eliseus sayde vnto him, brynge bow & arrowes. And he brought to him bow & arrowes. And he sayde to y kyng of Israel: put thine hand vpon the bow, and when he had put his hāde vpon the bow, Eliseus put his hādes vpon the kynges handes. Then he sayde, open a wyndowe eastwarde: & he opened. And Eliseus sayd: shote, & he shotte. And he sayd: the arrowe of helpe of the Lord, &

Thē he sayde: take arrowes: & he took thē. Then he sayde to the kyng of Israel, smyte the groude: & he smote thre se, and ceased. And the mā of God was angrie with him, & sayd: thou shouldest haue smyten fīue or syxe tymes, and thē thou haddest smyten the Syriens tyll thou haddest cōlumed them: where now thou shalt beate them but thre se.

Whē Eliseus was deed and buryed, the souldiars of y Moabites came in to the lande, the same yere solowynge. And it chaūced as they were burpunge a man, that they spyed the Souldiars, & therfore cast the man into y sepulchre of Eliseus. And as sone as the man came & touched the bones of Eliseus, * he reuīued, and stode vp on his fete.

And Hazael oppressed Israell all the dayes of Jehoahaz. But the Lorde had mercy on them, and pitied them, and turned to them, because of his appoyntement made with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob: and woulde not destroye them, * ether cast them from him as yet. And when Hazael king of Siria was dead: Benhadad his son raigned in his stead. And then Joas y sonne of Jehoaz went againe: & toke out of y hand of Benhadad sonne of Hazael, y cyties whiche he had taken awaye oute of the handes of Jehoahaz his father, with warre: And thre tymes did Joas beate hī, & brought the cities of Israell againe.

Jeroboam      iii. Kynges.      Azariah

sonne raygned in his steade.

The. xv. Chapter.

¶ Azariah the kyng of Iuda began his reigne. And Jotham raygned for him. Selum killeth Jeroboam & succeedeth him in the kyngdom. After Selum raygneth Manahem, after Manahem Phakeiah, after Phakeiah Phakeh, after Phakeh Hosia, after Hosia Jotham and after Jotham Ahaz.

SHe. xxvii. yere of Jeroboam kyng of Israell, Azariah sonne of Amaziah kyng of Iuda beganne to raigne. Sixtene yere olde was he when he was made kyng, and he raigned. lii. yere in Ierusalem, his mothers name was Iecholiah, & was of Ierusalem. And he dyd that pleased the Lorde in all thynges as dyd his father Amaziah: saue that they put not & hyllaulters away: for the people offered, & burned fat still i the hyllaulters. And the Lorde smote the kyng, that he was a leper vnto the dawe of his death, *and dwelt in an house at lybertye, and Jotham the kynges sonne gouerned the house, & iudged the people of the lande. The reste of the dedes of Azariah & all he did, are written in the Chronicles of the kynges of Iuda. And Azariah layd him to slepe with his fathers, & they buried him wyth his fathers in the cytie of Dauid, and Jotham his sonne raygned in his steade.

In the. xxxviii. yere of Azariah kyng of Iuda, was zachariah the sonne of Jeroboam made kyng vpon Israell in Samaria, and raigned syxe monethes, and dyd that displeaseth the Lorde, as dyd his fathers, and turned not from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, which made Israell synne. And Selum the sonne of Iabes conspired agaynst him, and smote him before the people, and kyled him, and raygned in his steade.

CThe rest of the deades of zachariah, are writte in the chzontcles of the kynges of Israell. This is the sayinge that the Lorde spake vnto Jehu, sayinge: *thy sonnes shall syt on the seate of Israell in the fourth generacion. And it came so to passe.

Selum the sonne of Iabes beganne to raygne the. xxxix. yere of Azariah kyng of Iuda: and he raygned a moneth in Samaria. For Manahem the sonne of Gadi came vp from Thersah and went to Samaria and smote Selum the sonne of Iabes in Samaria, and slue him, and raygned in his steade. The rest of the deades of Selu and the treason, which he conspired are written in the chzontcles of the kynges of Israell. The same tyne Manahem destroyed Thaphlah and all that were therein, & the costes therof fro Thersah (because they opened not to him) he smote & tent all the women with chylde.

DThe. xxxix. yere of Azariah kyng of Iuda, beganne Manahem the sonne of Gadi to raigne vpon Israell, and continued ten yere i Samaria. And he dyd euell in the syghte of the Lorde, & turned not away al his dayes from the synne of Jeroboam, the sonne of Nabat, which made Israell synne. And Phul kyng of Assiria, came vpon the land. And Manahem gaue Phul a thousand talentes of syluer, to helpe him, to stablishe his kyngdome. And Manahem rayled the money in Israell, vpon all men of substance, for to geue the kyng of Assiria fyftie cycles of syluer apeece. And the kyng of Assiria turned backe agayne, & taried not there in the lande.

EThe rest of the dedes of Manahem and all he dyd: are written in the chzontcles of the kynges of Israell. And when Manahem was layd to rest with his fathers, Phakeiah his sonne raygned in his steade.

The fyftieth yere of Azariah kyng of Iuda, beganne Phakeiah the sonne of Manahem to raigne ouer Israell in Samaria, & continued two yere, & wrought wyckedly in the syght of the Lorde: and left not of from the synnes of Jeroboam, the sonne of Nabat, whiche made Israell synne. And Phakeh & sonne of Romeliah a Lord of his, conspired agaynst him, and slue him in Samaria: euen in the palayse of the kynges house, with Argob and Ariah: and fyftie men with him that were Gileadites: and when he had kyled him, raygned in his rowme. The rest of Phakeiah, and all he dyd, are writte in the chzontcles of the kynges of Israell.

FAnd the. lii. yere of Azariah kyng of Iuda, beganne Phakeh the sonne of Romeliah, to raygne ouer Israell in Samaria, and continued. xx. yere, and ah d did eucl in the syght of the Lorde, and turned not from the synnes of Jeroboam sonne of Nabat, that made Israell synne. In the dayes of Phakeh kynge of Israell, came Teglahth Phalasar kynge of Assyria, and toke Aion, Abel, Beth, Maacah, Janoah, Kades, Hazor, Gilead, Galile, and all the land of Nephtali, and caryed them awaye to Assyria.

And Hosea the sonne of Elah conspired treason agaynst Phakeh the sonne of Romeliah, and smote hym, and slue him: and raygned in hys steade, the .xx. yere of Jotha the sonne of Ozia. The rest of the actes of Phakeh, and all he dyd are wyrtten in the stories of the kinges of Israell.

The seconde yere of Phakeh sonne of Romeliah kynge of Israell, beganne Jotham the sonne of Oziah kynge of Juda to raigne. fyue and twenty yere olde was he when he began to raygne: and he raygned .xvi. yere in Jerusalem, hys mothers name was Jerusa the doughter of Zadok. And he dyd that was ryghte in the syght of the Lorde: euen in all thyng as dyd hys father Oziah, dyd he. But they put not away the hyl aulters: for the people offered and burnt incense styll in the hyl aulters, he bilt the highest doze in the house of the Lord. The rest of the dedes of Jotham, and all he dyd, are wrytten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Juda. In those dayes the Lorde began to send agaynst Juda, Razin the kynge of Siria, and Phakeh the son of Romeliah. And Jotham rested with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cytie of Dauid his father, and Ahaz his sonne raigned in his steade.

¶ The xviij. Chapter.

¶ Ahaz kynge of Juda consecrateth hys sonne in fyre: and hath many battels agaynst the kynge of Israell. He causeth an alter to be made lyke vnto it of Damasco. In the steade of Ahaz raygneth Hezekiah his sonne.

Ahaz .xvii. yere of Phakeh sonne of Romeliah kynge of Israell, Ahaz sonne of Jotham kynge of Juda, beganne to raygne .xx. yere olde was he, when he was made king: and raygned .xvi. yere in Jerusalem, & dyd not that was right in the eyes of the Lorde his God, lyke Dauid his father: But went in the way of the kynges of Israell, and therto he offered hys sonne in fyre, after the abominacion of the hethen, whiche the Lorde caste oute before the chyldren of Israell. And he offered and burnt the fat in the hyl aulters, and on the hilles, and vnder euery thycke tree. * Then Razin kynge of Siria, and Phakeh sonne of Romeliah kynge of Israell, came by to Jerusalem to tighte. And they beseged Ahaz, but coude not ouercome him. At the same tyme Razin kynge of Siria brought Ailath agayne to Siria, and ryd the Jewes thence. And the Sirians went to Ailath and dwelt therein vnto this daye.

Then Ahaz sent messengers to Teglahth Phalasar kynge of Assyria, saying: I am thy seruaunt and thy sonne, come and delyuer me out of the hande of the kynge of Siria, and oute of the hande of the kynge of Israell which are rylen agaynst me. And Ahaz toke the syluer and the golde that was founde in the house of the Lord, and in the treasure of the kynges house, and sente it for a rewarde to the kyng of Assyria. * And the kynge of Assyria hekened to hym, and wente to Damasco, and toke it, and caryed the people awaye to Kir, and slue Razin.

And king Ahaz went agaynst Teglahth Phalasar king of Assyria, to Damasco. And when he saw a certaine alter that was at Damasco, he sente to Aziah the preeste the paterne of the alter, and the facyon of all the workmanship thereof. And Aziah the preeft made an alter in all poyntes, lyke to the paterne, whiche kynge Ahaz had sent frome Damasco, and had finished it by the kynges commaunde frome Damasco. And when the kynge was come from Damasco, and sawe the alter, he wente to it, and offered thereon. And he burnt his burnt offeringe, and sprynckeled the bloud of his peaceoffringe, and powred his dryncke offeringe and sprynckeled the bloude of his peaceoffringes vpon the sayde alter. And the brasen alter that was before the Lorde, * he fet from before the house, from betwene the alter and the house of the Lord, & put it on the north syde of the sayde alter.

The. xlii. Chapter.

Hosea kyng of Israel is taken. And he and all his realme brought to the Assirians.

In the. xlii. yere of Ahas kyng of Iuda, Hosea son of Elah began to raygne in Samaria vpon Israel, and continued.
ix. yere, & dyd that displeased the Lord, but not so euell as dyd the kynges of Israell that were before hym. And Sal-manasar kyng of Assyria came vpon hym, and Hosea became his seruaunte and gaue hym presentes. And the kyng of Assiria founde treason in Hosea, because he had sente messengers to Sua kyng of Egypte, and sente no presentes vnto the kyng of Assyria, as he was pe-rely wonte to do. Therefore the kyng of Assyria beseged him and put hym in prison. * And then the kyng of Assiria came thorowout all the lande, and came to Samaria, & beseged it thre yere. * And in the nyynth yere of Hosea, the kyng of Assyria toke Samaria & caried Israell awaye vnto Assiria and put them in Bala in Habor on the ryuer of Gozan, and in the cyties of the Medes. For the chyldezen of Israel had synned against the Lorde theyr God, whiche broughte them oute of the lande of Egypte, from vnder the hande of Pharaon kyng of Egypt, and feared other Goddes. And they walked in the ordinaunce of the hethen, which the Lorde cast out before y<sup>e</sup> chyldezen of Israel, and in the thynges whiche the kynges of Israel had made.

And the chyldezen of Israel wrapt them selues in thynges that wer not well to: warde the Lorde theyr God. And they bylt them hilaulters in al theyr cyties, bothe in the * towres where they kepte watche, and also in the stronge townes.
And they made them Images and gro-ues on euery hye hyll, and vnder euery grene tree. And there they sacrificed in the hilaulters, as did the hethen, which the Lorde caried awaye at theyr comaynge, and wroughte wycked dedes, to anger the Lorde with all. And they serued Idolles, whereof the Lorde had sayde to them: * ye shall not do so.

And the Lorde testified to Israel & to Iuda, by all the prophetes, and by al the sears, sayinge: * Turne from your wicked wayes, and kepe my commaundementes and mine ordinaunces: accor-dyng to al the lawes which I commaunded your fathers, & as I sent to you by my seruautes y<sup>e</sup> prophetes. Notwithstanding they wold not heare: but hardened their neckes, like to y<sup>e</sup> neckes of their fathers, y<sup>e</sup> did not beleue y<sup>e</sup> lord their god, And they refused his ordinaunces and his appointment that he had made with their fathers, and the witnesses, whiche he had wytnessed to them, and folowed vanyte, and became vayne, lyke to the hethen that were rounde about them, of whiche the Lorde had charged them, y<sup>e</sup> they shoulde not do like them. But they lefte the comaundementes of the Lord theyr God: made them Images of mee-tal, * euen ii. calues: and made groues and bowed them selues vnto all the * hoste of heauen: & serued Baal. * And they sacrificed theyr sonnes and theyr daughters in fyre, and bled witchcraft and enchauntmentes, and were solde to worke wickednesse in the syghte of the Lorde, for to angre him.

Wherefore the Lord was excreadinge wrothe with Israel: and put them oute of hys syghte, that there was lefte but the crybe of Iuda only, and therto Iuda kepte not the commaundementes of the Lorde theyr God, but walked in the ordinaunces of Israell, which they had made. Therefore the Lorde caste vp all the sede of Israell, and vexed them, and deliuered them into the handes of spoylers, vntil he cast them out of his sight. And Israell deuyded them selues from the house of Dauid, & made Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat kynge. Whiche Jeroboam drewc Israell awaye from the Lorde, and made them synne a greatesynne. And so the chyldren of Israell walcked in all the synne of Jeroboam whiche he had set vp, and departed not therfrom, vntyll the Lorde had put Israell awaye oute of his syght, as he had sayde by all hys seruauntes the prophetes. And so he traunslated Israell oute of theyr land to Assyria, euen vnto thys daye.

* And the kynge of Assyria broughte men from Babylon, and from Cutha, & fro Aua, & from Hemath, & from Sepharuaim, & put the in y cyties of Samaria, in steade of the chyldren of Israell. And they possessed Samaria, and dwelte in the cyties thereof. But at the begynnyng of theyr dwellynge, they feared not the Lorde. Wherefore the Lord sent Lyons vpon them, which slue them. Then men tolde the king of Assyria, saying: The nacyns whiche thou haste translated, and put in the cyties of Samaria, knowe not the lawe of the God of the lande, and therefore he hath sent Lyons vpon them, whiche slaye them because they knowe not the maner of worshyping of the God of the lande.

Then the kynge of Assyria commaunded, saying: carpe thether one of the prestes whiche ye broughte thence, and let him go & dwell there, and teache them the facyon howe to serue the God of the contreye. And then one of the prestes whiche they had caried thence, wente and dwelt in Bethel, and taughte them howe they shoulde feare the Lord. Howe be it euery nacio made their owne goddes, and put them in the houses of the hylaulters, whiche the Samaritans had made, euery nacyon in theyr citis, where they dwelt. The men of Babilon made Socoh, Benoth. The me of Cuth made Nergell. They of Hemath made Alina. The Euites made Nebahaz, & Tharthak. And y Sepharuaites burnt their chylzen in fyre vnto Adramelech and Anamelech, the Goddes of the Sepharuaites. And though they feared y Lorde, yet they made them preestes of the lowest of the people, for the hylaulters, whiche sacrificed for them in the houses of the hylaulters. And so they feared the Lorde, and yet serued their owne Gods after the maner of the people from whence they were brought.

Vnto this daye they do after y olde maner: they neyther feare the Lorde, neyther do after theyr owne ordinaunces and customes, and after the lawe & commaundementes which the Lord commaunded the chylzen of Jacob whose name he called Israell, and made an appoyntment with them, and charged them, saying: feare not any other goddes, nor bowe your selues to them, nor serue them, nor sacrifice to them: but feare the Lorde whiche broughte you oute of the land of Egypte with greates power and a stretched oute arme: hym feare, and to him bow, and to him do sacrifice. And the ordinaunces, customes, lawe and commaundemente, whiche I wrote for you, se that ye be diligente to do for euermore, and feare not anye othet Goddes. And the appoyntmente y haue made with you, se ye forget not, and that ye feare none othet Goddes: but the Lorde youre God ye shal feare, and he shal delpyer you oute of the handes of al your enemyes. Howe be it they heard not, but dyd after the olde maner. And euen so did these nacions feare the LORD and serued theyr ymages thereto: and so dyd theyr chylzen, and theyr chylzens chylzen to. Euen as dyd theyr fathers, so do they vnto thys daye.

To Tame yfury The. xx. Chapter.

Hezekiah is rich and receaueth the sygne of his helth by the dyall of Ithaz. He receaued the rewardes of Berodach, and is comprehended of Ilaiah because he shewed him the treasure. He dyeth and is anasthy by a sonne raigned in his steade.

Woute that tyme Hezekiah was lycke vnto the death. And the prophet Ilaiah sonne of Amoz came to hym, and sayde to him. Thus saythe the Lorde: put thine housholde in an ordze, for thou shalt dye, and not lyue. And Hezekiah turned his face to the walle, and besoughte the Lorde, sayinge: O Lorde, remembre yet howe I haue walcked before the truly and with a perfect heartte, and haue done that whiche is good in thy syghte, and wepte a greate pace.

And Ilaiah was skarce gone oute into y middle of the cytte, but that the word of the Lorde came to him, saying: turne againe, and tel Hezekiah the captayne of my people. Thus sayth y Lorde God of Dauid thy father. I haue herd thy prayer, and sene thy teares. Behold I wil heale the, & this daye thre dayes y shalt go vp into the house of the Lorde. And I will length thy dayes yet fyftene yere, and will deluyet bothe the and this cytte oute of the hande of the kyng of Assyria, and will defende thys city for mine owne sake, and for Dauid my seruantes sake. And Ilaiah saide: brynge a lumpe of fygges. And they broughte and put it on the soze, and he reconered.

Then sayde Hezekiah to Ilaiah: what is y signe, that the Lorde wil heale me, and that I shal go vp into y house of the LORD the thyrde daye And I saiah said: this signe shalt thou haue of the Lord, that the Lord wyl do that he hath spoken: shall the shadowe go for ward ten degrees; or go backe agayne ten degrees? And Hezekiah sayde: it is a lyghte thyng for the shadowe to go downe ten degrees. Therfore I wyl not that: but let the shadowe go backward ten degrees. And Ilaiah the prophete called to the Lorde, * and he broughte the shadowe ten degrees backwarde, by

* The same ceason Berodach Baladan the sonne of Saladan kyng of Babilon, sente letters and presentes vnto Hezekiah, for he heard how that Hezekiah was lycke. And Hezekiah harkened vnto them, and shewed them all that was in the spicery house, and his siluer and golde, and odoures, and pzeiouise oyntmentes, and his armory, & all that was founde in hys treasure: there was nothig in his house or in al his realme, that he shewed them not.

Then came Ilaiah the prophet vnto kyng Hezekiah, and sayde to hym: what say these men, and from whence come they to the? And Hezekiah sayde: they be come from a far countree, euen from Babilo. And he said againe: what haue they sene in thy house? And Hezekiah sayde: al that is in my house haue they sene: there is nothyng among my treasure, that I haue not shewed them. And Ilaiah sayde to Hezekiah: heare y worde of the Lorde. Beholde, the daye shal come, that al that is in thine house, and that thy fathers haue layde vp in store vnto this daye, * shalbe caried to Babilon, and nothyng shalbe left, saith the Lorde. * And of thy sonnes, that proceeded oute of the, whiche thou begat, test, shal there be caried away, and shalbe made chaumbreclaynes in the palace of the kyng of Babilon. The xxii. Chapter.

After Josiah hearde of the boke of the lawe that was founde in the temple, he sendeth to Oloth & Phothephese for counsell.

A Josiah was * blis. yere olde when he begonne to raygne, and he raygned. xxi. yere in Jerusale. His mothers name was Jedidah the daughter of Adaiab of Bezecath. And he did & seemed righte in the syghte of the Lorde, & walked in al the wayes of David hys father, and bowed nether to the right hande, or to the lefte.

U par. 34. b * And the. xliii. yere of his raygne kyng Josiah sent Saphan the sonne of Azaliab the sonne of Mesulaim the scribe to the house of the Lord, saying: * go to Helkiah the hye priest, and let him summe the syluer that is broughte into the house of the Lorde, whiche the keepers of the doores haue gathered of the people, and let them delyuer it into the handes of the workmen, that haue the ouersyght of the house of the Lord, whiche shal geue it to them that worke vpon the house of the Lord: (to repaire the decayed places therof,) euen vnto carpenters and masons, and for to bye timbre and fre stone to repayre & house. Howe be it, let no rekenyng be made with them of the money that is deliuered into their handes, but let them do it of their conscience.

U par. 34. c * And Helkiah the hye priest sayde to Saphan the scribe. I haue founde the boke of the lawe in the temple of & lord, and Helkiah gaue the boke to Saphan, and he reade it. And then Saphan the scribe went to the kyng, & brought him worde agayne, and sayde: thy seruantes powzed out the syluer & was founde in the temple, and haue delyuered it vnto the workmen, that haue & ouersyght of the house of the Lorde. Furthermore Saphan the scribe shewed the kyng, sayinge: Helkiah the priest hathe delyuered me here a boke. And Saphan red it before the kyng.

And the kyng as sone as he had hearde the wordes of the boke of & law, he rent hys clothes, and commaunded Helkiah the priest and Ahikam & some of Saphan, and Achobor the sonne of Michaiab, and Saphan the scribe, and Asahiah a seruaunte of the kynges, sayinge: * go ye and seke of the Lorde for me, and the people, and for al Juda, concernyng the wordes of this boke that is founde. for it is a great wrath of the LORDE that is kindled vpon vs, that oure fathers haue not herkened vnto the wordes of this boke, to do in all poyntes as it is wyrtten thern.

And Helkiah the hye priest and Ahikam, Achobor, Saphan, Asahiah wente vnto Oloth the Prophetesse wyfe of Selum the sonne of Tekuah the sonne of Haraham keeper of the robes, whiche Prophetesse dwelte in Jerusalem in the seconde warde, and communed with her. And she sayde to them: thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel. Tell the man that sente you to me: thus sayeth the Lorde: beholde I wil brynge euell vpon this place and on the dwellers therein: euen all the wordes of the boke whiche the kyng of Juda hathe red, because they haue forsaken me and haue burnt offeriges vnto other gods, to angre me with all the * workes of theyr handes. Therefore is my wrathe kindled againste this place, and shall not be quenched.

But to the kyng of Juda whiche sente you to enquire of the LORDE, so shall ye saye: thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel, as touchyng the wordes whiche thou heardest. Because thyne heart did melt and thou mekedest thy selfe before me the Lord, when thou heardest what I spake agaynst this place and the inhabitants of the same, howe that it shoulde be destroyed and made a cursed: and tarest thy clothes and weptest before me: of that also I haue hearde sayeth the Lorde. And therefore se, I wyll receaue the vnto thy fathers and wyll fet the vnto thy grane in peace, thyne eyes shall se none of the euell whiche I wyl brynge vpon this place. And they broughte the kyng worde agayne.

The. xlii. Chapter.

Josiah readeth Deuteronomie before the people. He putteth downe the Idolles, after he had kylled the priestes thereof. He kepeth passeouer. He was kylled in Bagebo, & hys sonne Jehoahaz raggeth in hys steade: after he was take, hys sonne Jehoahaz was made kyng.

AND then the kyng sent and gathered vnto him all the elders of Juda and of Jerusalem. And the kyng went by into the house of the Lorde, and all the men of Juda and all the inhabitoures of Jerusalem with hym, & the priestes and the prophetes & al the people bothe smalle and greate. And he red in the eares of them all the wordes of the booke of the couenaunte, whiche was founde in the house of the Lorde. And the kyng stode by a pyllar, and made a couenaunte before the Lorde that they shoulde walke after the Lord, and kepe hys commaundementes and his wytnesses and his ordinaunces with all theyr hertes and all theyr soules, and make good the wordes of the sayde appoyntment that were wyrtten in the sayde booke. And all the people consented to the appoyntment.

And the kyng commaunded Helkiah the hie priest and the inferioure priestes and the keepers of the doore, to bring out of the temple of the Lorde, all the vesselles that were made for Baal and for the groue and for all the hoste of heauen. And he burnt them withoute Jerusalem in the felde of Cedron and caried the ashes of them in to Bethel.

And he put downe the Camarites which the kynges of Juda had set to burne offerynges in the hylaulters in the cytyes of Juda roundeabout Jerusalem and also them that burnt sacrifices vnto Baal, to the sunne and to the moone, and to the planetes, and to all the hoste of heauen. And he brought out the groue from the temple of the Lorde without Jerusalem vnto the broke Cedron, and burnt it at the broke Cedron & stampe it to pouldre, and caste the duste therof vpon the graues of the people of the cytye. And he brake downe the celles of the male hores that were in the house of the LORD, where the women woue litle houses for the groue. them in their lyfe tyme.

And he brought all the priestes oute of the cyties of Juda, and despyled the hylaulters where the priestes dyd burne sacrifice, euen from Gibeon to Bersabe. And he brake downe the hylaulters of the Gates, that were in the enteringe of the gate of Josua the gouernoure of the cytye, whiche were on the left hande of the gate of the cytye. Neuerthelesse the priestes of the hylaulters myghte not come at the alter of the LORD in Jerusalem, saue onely they dyd eate of the swete breade amonge theyr brethren.

* And he despyled Topheth also, whiche is in the valey of the children of Hennon, because no man shoulde offer his sonne or hys doughter in fyre to Moloch: he put downe the hoxles that the kynges of Israel had geuen to the sunne at the entringe of the house of the Lorde, in the chabze of Nathaniemelech the chamberlayne which was of Paruarim, and burnt the charettes of the sunne with fyre. And the aulter that were on the toppe of the parloure of Ahaz, which the kynges of Juda had made, and the aulter whiche Manasseh had made in the two courtes of the house of the Lorde, the kyng brake downe, and ranne thence and caste the duste of them in to the broke Cedron.

And the hylaulters that were before Jerusalem on the ryghte hande of the mounte Makhith, whiche Salomon kyng of Israel buylt to Ashtaroth the abhominacion of the zidons & to Chamos the abhominacion of the Moabites, and to Milchom the abhominacion of the children of Ammon, the kyng despyled: and brake the ymages and cut downe the groues and fylled the places with the bones of men.

Moreouer the aulter that was at Bethel, the hylaulter made by Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat which made Israel synne: bothe the aulter and also the hyl he brake downe and burnt the hyl and stampe it to powder, & burnt the groue. And as Josiah turned him selfe, he spied the graues that were in the mounte & sente and fet the bones out of the graues and burnt the vpon the aulter

The. xxiii. Chapter.

Jehoachim dyeth, and after him succeedeth Jehoachin. Jerusalem is besieged of the Babilonians. Jehoachin yeldeth him selfe to the kynge of Babilon. And in hys towne cāe Mathaniah, which was called zedekiah

In his dayes came Nabuchodonozor kyng of Babilō, and Jehoachim became hys seruaunte thre yere, and then turned and rebelled agāst hym. And the Lorde sent vpon him men of warre out of Caldey, oute of Siria, out of the Moabites, and from y<sup>e</sup> chyl- dren of Ammon: and sent thē into Juda, to destrope it, accordinge to y<sup>e</sup> saying of the lord which he spake by his seruātes the Prophetes. Onely at the byddynge of the Lorde happened it so to Juda, to put them out of his syght, for the synne of Manasseh accordynge to all he dyd: and for the innocent bloude that he shedde and fylled Jerusalem with innocent bloude, which the Lorde woulde not forgeue.

B The rest of the dedes of Jehoachim and all he dyd, are wrytten in the chronicles of the kynges of Juda. And Jehoachim layde him to slepe with his fathers, and Jehoachin his sonne raygned in his steade. But the kynge of Egypt came now no more out of his lāde: for the kynge of Babilon had taken fro the ryuer of Euphrates, al that pertained to the kynge of Egypte. Jehoachin was. xviii. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and raygned in Jerusalem thre monethes. His mothers name was Nehultha the doughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. And he dyd that displeased the eyes of the Lorde in all poyntes as his father dyd.

* In his tyme came the seruauntes of Nabuchodonozor kyng of Babilon, to Jerusalem and y<sup>e</sup> citie was besieged. And Nabuchodonozor came to y<sup>e</sup> citie as his seruauntes were yet a beseking of it. * And Jehoachin the kynge of Juda came out to y<sup>e</sup> king of Babilon, with his mother, his seruauntes, his lordes and his chamberlaynes. And the kyng of Babilon toke him, in the eyght yere of his raygne.

* And he caried out thence al y<sup>e</sup> treasure of the house of y<sup>e</sup> Lorde, & the treasure of the kynges house, and brake al the vesselles of golde which Salomon kyng of Israel had made, in y<sup>e</sup> temple of the Lorde, as the Lorde had sayde. And he caried awaye all Jerusalem, and all the Lordes and all the men of mighte, to the nombre of ten thousande into captiuytie and all craftes mē and Joyners, none remainyng saue y<sup>e</sup> poore people of the lande. * And he caried awaye Jehoachin to Babilon, and the kynges mother, and y<sup>e</sup> kynges wiues, and his chambrelaynes, and the mightie of the lande caried he awaye from Jerusalem to Babilon. And al the men of actiuite to the numbre of seuē thousande, and craftesmen and ioyners a thousande, al strōg & apte for warre, did the kynge of Babilon byng to Babilō to dwel. * And y<sup>e</sup> kynge of Babilō made Mathaniah his fathers brother, kyng in his steade, and chaunged his name and called him zedekiah.

* zedekiah was. xxi. yere olde when he beganne to raygne and he raygned. xi. yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Hamital y<sup>e</sup> doughter of Jeremiah of Lobnah. And he did euell in the sight of the Lorde, in al poyntes like to Jehoachim. For throughe y<sup>e</sup> wrath of the Lorde it so chaunced to Jerusalem and Juda, butyl he had caste them out of hys syghte. And the sayde zedekiah rebelled agāst the kyng of Babilon.

The. xxv. Chapter.

By the rebellynge of zedekiah is the towne of Jerusalem besieged of Nabuchodonozor. The towne and the temple are bothe buente. The sonnes of zedekiah are slayne before his eyes, and after are his eyes put out. Juda is brought to Babilon, and after is Jehoachin exalted.

Herfore in the * nynthe yere of his raygne, the tenthē day of the tenthē monethe, came Nabuchodonozor kyng of Babilon with all hys power to Jerusalem: and pytched agāst the towne and made engynes agaynst it on euery syde. And y<sup>e</sup> citie continued besieged vnto
